Non-Violent Resistance Drive Begins In Palestine

Tanks, More Men Sent to Jerusalem; Renewal of Riots Feared by Leaders

By the Associated Press.

Jerusalem, May 19.—Jews throughout Palestine launched a determined passive resistance campaign today against British plans to reduce them to the status of a permanent minority in an Arab-dominated independent state.

The program of noncooperation and economic pressure got under way under the watchful eyes of steel-helmeted troops on the alert to prevent recurrence of yesterday's rioting in which a British constable was killed and 114 persons injured.

Quiet prevailed in contrast to the turbulence of the previous 24 hours following mass demonstrations by Jews, but many quarters feared that unless Britain moved to change her Palestine policy further "incidents" would occur.

Maj. Gen. R. Haining, commanding the British Palestine forces, warned that if necessary his troops would "meet force with force" in any future disturbances. He backed up this statement by sending armored cars, tanks and truckloads of soldiers into Jerusalem today.

The Jews declared they would pursue a three-point program in their effort to change the announced policy of Britain to eventually withdraw from Palestine, which it governs under a League of Nations mandate, and give Arabs control of the government.

The Jewish program calls for:

1. A bitter fight in the House of Commons next Monday when issue comes up for debate.

2. Establishment of new settlements on nationally owned land in Palestine.

3. "Legally or illegally" to do everything in their power to bring more immigrants into the country.

Their campaign will be backed by a loan of approximately $4,700,000 which they considered "certain of subscription" by United States, British, French and South African interests.

Jewish national institutions said they deplored yesterday's bloodshed but that they were "proud" of the demonstrations preceding them in which 175,000 Jews throughout the country participated.

Historic Oath Renewed

Washington Jewry, answering a call of American Zionist leaders and their own rabbis, gathered in synagogues throughout the city last night to renew their historic Biblical oath, as a pledge of support to Jews of Palestine in combating the new British policy for the Holy Land.

Their oath, the same spoken by ancient Jews exiled in Babylon, was "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, may my right hand forget its cunning, may my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, if I forget thee, O Zion."

Among members of the Rabbinical Council of Washington who called the special services were Rabbi Joshua Klavans, Mosha H. Levenson, Solomon H. Metz, Jacob Dubrow, Julius T. Loeb, Zemach Green, Aaron Volkman, Arthur Bogner, Henry Segal, Harry Silverstone and Charles Williamovsky.

Surrender to Terror

In Adas Israel Synagogue, Rabbi Isadore Breslau, director of the Zionist Bureau, told the congregation Palestine is facing the same fate as Czecho-Slovakia.

"The people of Czecho-Slovakia were asked to make a vain sacrifice for the sake of the peace of Europe, the Jews of Palestine are now asked to make the same vain sacrifice for the peace of the Near East," Rabbi Breslau said. "The first was a surrender to fear and terror, the sec-

Black Sheep at 24 Days, Zoo's Baby Mouflon Takes to Bottle

Samuel P. Morris, keeper of the antelope house at the Washington Zoo, has "adopted" this baby mouflon deserted by his mother, a wild mountain sheep. The youngster has to be fed from a bottle

Of some faces it is said they are such that only a mother could love but even the mother of George, jr., does not love him, though his face is pretty to behold and his disposition pleasant.

George, jr., named by a policeman for the keeper who rescued him, is a 25-day old mouflon, or wild sheep, at the zoo. He is the only mouflon ever to be brought up on cow's milk here.

"Luckily, he's taken to the bottle like a duck to water," Samuel P. Morris, George's foster mother, said yesterday.

Morris is the keeper in charge of the antelope house, where George, jr., is "growing up." It was George W. Fagan, another keeper, who found the gentle little beast shortly after its birth in an outside pen where it had been left to die and brought it to the antelope house.

The mother mouflon is ornery that way. Some time ago she bore a young one and allowed it to freeze to death. The keepers can't understand her.

Yesterday, a hundred yards or so from where the foundling George, jr., was romping in his cell, a mother eland fondly licked her 2-day-old baby. A couple of hundred yards away in the opposite direction Ramona, the Kadiak brown bear, frolicked with her two hybrid cubs.

Only George, jr., who is still unsteady on his wobbly legs, was alone. His arrogant parents, parents only in a biological sense, grazed on a hillside far away.

Soldiers Hunt Man Who Shot Harlan Picket

Police Watch Roads for Chicago Reds; Murphy Sends 2 Justice Aides

By William H. Lawrence,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Harlan, Ky., May 19.—Brig. Gen. Ellerbe Carter tonight ordered National Guardsmen to arrest John J. Padgett, who allegedly shot a mine picket in the presence of militiamen, and escaped into the mountain forests.

Carter said that Eugene Sullivan, United Mine Workers' union member, was shot by Padgett, who allegedly leaped from a coal company automobile, knocked a guardsman sprawling and shot one of three men who were said to have shouted "scab."

Sullivan purportedly was a member of a picket party which patrolled near the R. C. Tway Co. mine at Dressen, Ky., although he described himself merely as an onlooker. He was shot in the right thigh and taken to a hospital here. His condition is not serious.

Padgett, reported to be employed as a truck driver transporting miners for the Tway Co, fired three shots at Sullivan, according to Carter, leaped back into his car, in which Tway Mine Superintendent Russ Collins also was riding, and left the scene.

12 Indicted, 5 More Held In Poison Ring

'Kiss-of-Death' Widow Gets Hearing; Jury to Act on 12 Others

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 19.—Seventeen men and women, including thrice-widowed Rose Carina, were given hearings or indicted on murder charges today as conductors of the mass murder-for-insurance case set the stage for early trials.

Today's dozen additional indictments left an equal number awaiting grand jury action on murder or conspiracy charges.

Mrs. Carina, arrested in New York yesterday, literally was yanked to a courtroom and held without bail on a charge of poisoning a common-law mater, Pietro Stea.

These details included:

Disclosure that four different poisons were found in the exhumed body of Raymond Mandiuk, a baker, whose widow is among those held.

A charge that one defendant substituted another person in applying for life insurance on his deaf mute sister, who later died.

Description of an elderly "fortune teller" as an agent of the ring who referred "women with husband trouble" to two "executives" of the "crime corporation."

Transatlantic Air Service Starts Today

Clipper to Leave On Anniversary of Lindbergh's Flight; Mail Only on 1st Hop

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 19.—Regular air transport service over the Atlantic, linking the Old and New Worlds, starts tomorrow.

Planned for ten years, the service will be inaugurated with departure of the "Yankee Clipper" 41½-ton flying boat carrying a crew of 14.

On the twelfth anniversary of the day Col. Charles A. Lindbergh pulled his little monoplane off the runway of a Long Island airport for Paris, the giant airliner will initiate service between Southampton, England, and Baltimore and New York.

Only mail will be carried in the beginning. But by July 1, Pan American Airways, to which a Government agency today awarded a "route certificate," expects to be selling transatlantic tickets over the counter. The schedule calls for two round trips a week.

24-Hour Flights Planned.

On the so-called "southern route," by way of the Azores, Lisbon, and Marseille, the elapsed time is expected to be less than 40 hours. On the "northern route," by way of Botwood, Newfoundland, and Foynes, Ireland, the flights will be made in about 24 hours.

The fare, officials said, probably would run between $350 and $400.

The airplanes to be used are all 41½-ton flying boats, with accommodations for 74 passengers on short hops. The number to be carried across the Atlantic will depend on the route followed and on weather conditions, but the maximum will be about 35.

Tonight the Yankee Clipper, rested on the water at Baltimore, its tanks filled with 4,200 gallons of fuel, for the takeoff tomorrow.

Capt. A. E. La Porte will be in charge of the clipper, scheduled to leave New York for the Azores promptly at 12 noon (E.S.T.). His first officer will be C. A. Lorber.

Lindbergh May Be Present

Col. Lindbergh is expected to be present for the takeoff ceremonies.

The clipper will fly over the World's Fair in Flushing Meadows in salute to the members of the crews of the NC-4 Navy flying boats which started just 20 years ago this month for Europe to demonstrate the feasibility of transoceanic flight.

One member of the NC-4 crews, Commander John Towers, will be on the Fair Grounds to receive the salute. Towers, now a rear admiral, is chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics.

Other members of the clipper's crew will be A. E. Kalkowsky, H. Brock, R. D. Fordyce, R. M. Elzey and W. J. Garrison, all junior flight officers; J. W. Etchison, engineering officer; John Fisk and S. N. Kritser, assistant engineering officers; A. W. Beiderman and R. T. Dutton, radio officers, and William Thaler and Joseph Raviol, stewards.

At the New York postoffice 100,000 pieces of mail were ready for loading into the clipper and on a waiting list for the first passenger flight were the names of several hundred persons. No mail will be carried beyond Marseille.

Survey flights on the two routes were completed in 1937.

Air Executive's Daughter, 13, Is Missing Two Days

New York, May 19 (AP).—An eight-State police alarm was broadcast tonight for Isla Aylesworth, 13, daughter of John Aylesworth, airline executive, who reported her missing from their Queens home since yesterday.

The girl's 10-year-old sister Jean said she had last seen here talking to a blond man about 25 years old, wearing overalls and moccasins.

The girls had started for the World's Fair, where their father is in charge of the American Airlines exhibit, Jean said, when they met the man, and Isla, after talking with him for a while, told her to go on home.

Ban on Bund Struck From Alien Bill

Army Objected to Burden of Licensing; Strecker Case Covered

A proposal to place drastic restrictions on "civilian military organizations" such as the German-American Bund, has been stricken out of the Smith bill on subversive activities by a House Judiciary subcommittee, it was learned yesterday.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Healey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who is also a member of the Dies committee, has reported the Smith measure without recommendation to the full Judiciary Committee, which will begin work on the bill Tuesday.

As originally introduced by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, the bill outlawed "civilian military organizations" unless they were licensed by the Secretary of War. It specifically excepted Army units, including the various reserve groups.

Army Objects to Burden

Said by Representative Smith to have been aimed primarily at the Bund, the section on "civilian military organizations" included groups that advocate denial of constitutional rights by use of force, threats or economic coercion, to any citizen on account of his race, color, religious or political faith.

It is understood that the sub-committee was prompted to delete the paragraphs partially by fear that "if the Bund is outlawed, it will only be driven underground," as one member said.

Another consideration was difficulty of administration, springing from the "enormous number of perfectly innocent organizations that

Inhabitants Flee Verde Island as It Sinks 3 Feet

Manila, Philippine Islands, (Saturday) May 20 (INS).—As 200 frightened refugees of tiny Verde Island fled to nearby isles after their land sank three feet and large fissures opened near their homes, authorities today expressed belief that the 1,300 remaining inhabitants of the stricken island were in "no immediate danger."

A series of earthquakes caused the "sinking" of the island, according to Father Miguel Selga, a weather bureau director.

The stricken island, only 15 kilometers square, is midway between Luzon and Mindoro in a passage which connects the Sibuyan and China seas.

German Claims Glider Record

Berlin, May 19 (AP).—A 25-year-old pilot, Peter Gloeckner, made a two and one-half hour flight today in which he claimed to have broken the world altitude record for gliders.

Gloeckner's instruments recorded an altitude of 9,200 meters (about 30,600 feet). The mark is being submitted to the Federation International Aeronautique for official recognition.

Navy Suspects Sabotage in Warship Fire

Flames Gush as Oil in Air Lines Hits Rivets In Yard at Norfolk

By International News Service.

Norfolk, Va., May 19.—A Naval board of inquiry tonight launched an investigation to determine whether sabotage was responsible for a fire in the Navy Yard which routed several workmen and threw 750 into idleness for the day, and endangered two warships.

Fire started when air lines to rivet compressors spouted oil instead of air when they were turned on. The oil splashed onto forges set up for heating rivets for overhauling the destroyers Morris and Wainwright, and burst into flames.

Several men were forced to flee. Though damage was declared nominal, work for the day was halted while the inquiry got under way.

Tonight the board had been unable to determine whether sabotage might have been responsible or whether some worker or workers had made an "accidental error" in connecting the air lines with oil tanks instead of the air compressors.

Jefferson Shrine Foreman Killed By Falling Drill

A foreman directing construction of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial was killed instantly yesterday when a gigantic drill stem broke from its cable and toppled upon him.

The man killed was James Marianaccio, 51, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

When the cable broke and the warning was shouted, according to witnesses, Marianaccio started running and came directly into the path of the falling shaft. Henry C. Boschem, superintendent of construction, standing only 10 feet away, said that Marianaccio would have escaped unscathed had he stood still.

The 28-foot 3,000 pound drill stem had just been pulled out of a deep pipe and was resting with one end on the ground, Boschem said, when the 2-inch cable snapped at its connection with the drilling machine.

British Again Ask Nazis for Peace Pledge

Chamberlain Sees Hope Of Adding Russia to Anti-Aggression Bloc

By the Associated Press.

London, May 19.—The British government disclosed today it was giving cautious consideration to Soviet Russia's stand for a full military alliance and at the same time asked Germany to renounce aggressive aims in favor of a long-range policy for European peace.

Prime Minister Chamberlain and R. A. Butler, undersecretary of foreign affairs, outlined the government's position in a foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons.

Butler declared an outright alliance with Soviet Russia and France involved such a "big departure in British policy" that the government "is approaching this matter with caution and giving proper time to the consideration of such an important step."

Defends Counter-Proposal

He said it believed the British counter-proposal to Russia's insistence on a hard and fast alliance, "though less comprehensive than a military alliance," is "better designed to give effective support where support is most needed . . ."

Chamberlain stated he was willing to discuss with Germany the question of her war-lost colonies but added:

"We in this country are not prepared to buy peace at the price of concessions which would only lead to further demands."

Chamberlain indicated the gap between Britain and Soviet Russia had narrowed and expressed hope that conversations in Paris tomorrow might produce a formula to add Russia to the front.

King Grants Throne's 1st Interview, Quips at It

'You Can Certainly Take It,' Reporter Tells Ruler; Queen Gracious to Press

By Edward T. Folliard
A Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, Ontario, May 19.—There must have been a commotion among the royal tombstones of Westminster Abbey along about 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

For the first time in the 900-year history of what is now the British Empire, the King and Queen talked to newspaper reporters.

The precedent-shattering event took place in Rideau Hall, the residence of the Governor General, and this evening astounded British correspondents were cabling home the sympathetic remark of a New York reporter whom the King had engaged in conversation.

"Your Majesty," said the reporter, "you certainly can take it."

His Most Excellent Majesty, George VI, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the Dominions beyond the seas, King, defender of the faith, Emperor of India—in short, the democratic 44-year-old monarch who is here with Queen Elizabeth on an epochal tour—had asked the reporter whether he was working hard.

Unprecedented Praise

The newspaperman admitted that he had been working hard. Then, remembering what he had seen since the King and Queen arrived in Quebec—the unending ceremonial, the handshaking, the changing of clothes, the smiling and saluting—he blurted out his prizering remark about the King being able to "take it."

Whether the sovereign knew what he was talking about is one of those things that must remain unanswered.

The invitations to today's reception were addressed to some 58 newspaper correspondents who are traveling on the royal pilot train, 18 of them Americans. The invitation, embossed with a crown and the letters G R E, said:

"The Governor General has received Their Majesties' commands to invite * * * to a reception at Government House."

(At Washington, President Roosevelt said yesterday he doubted if it would be polite to invite the King to attend a White House press conference here.—Editor's note.)

When the guests had been arranged in a semicircle in the reception room, the King and Queen entered. The King had discarded the red field marshal's uniform he had worn earlier and had on what a stock broker might wear in England: A short black coat, striped trousers and a hard, turned-down collar.

Queen Also at Press Parley

The Queen, who in a ceremony earlier in the Parliament Building had appeared in a crystal gown that caused fashion scouts to rush for the telegraph offices, wore a blue lace informal frock this afternoon, and a minimum of jewelry. That is to say, she had on only a bow-knot of diamonds and sapphires, a modest diamond bracelet, and a double strand of matched pearls with a diamond clasp.

They moved slowly around the semicircle, the Queen in the lead. As Walter Thompson, press officer of the royal tour, presented each correspondent, the Queen extended her hand. The King, just behind, did likewise.

How ever they do it is a mystery, but the royal couple, having been engaged in smiling all day, were smiling still.

The Queen frequently paused for a talk. Thus, when she extended her hand to Dixie Tighe, a Washington-born girl now writing for a New York newspaper, her Majesty

Somoza to Give Bride Away To Chauffeur of Legation Here

Pretty, black-eyed Leticia Martinez, nurse in the home of a State Department official, will walk down the aisle of St. Paul's Catholic Church Monday with her friend, President Somoza, of Nicaragua, to marry Jose Antonio Garcia, chauffeur at the Nicaraguan Legation.

Miss Martinez grew up in the family of Senora Somoza, in Nicaragua, and the President and Senora Somoza will act as her "padrinos" or sponsors for the wedding. The President will give the bride away.

Now employed as children's nurse by Mrs. Laurence Duggan, wife of the chief of the American Republics Division in the State Department, Miss Martinez came to this country six years ago as nurse for the children of Dr. Henri De Bayle, brother of Senora Somoza, and of Dr. Leon De Bayle. Dr. Henri De Bayle was former Nicaraguan Minister here and Dr. Leon De Bayle is present Minister.

Like her parents, Miss Martinez grew up in the De Bayle family, and she has been a friend of Senora Somoza since childhood. President and Senora Somoza are returning from their visit to New York today.

The wedding will be held at 6:30 p. m. Afterward the wedding party, including the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora De Bayle and the legation staff, will attend a supper at the home of Mrs. Duggan, 3105 Cathedral avenue northwest.

Yank at Oxford, Unimpressed, Quits to Marry British Coed

Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France, May 19 (U.P.).—An almost penniless Oxford student from Omaha, Nebr., and the 20-year-old daughter of an English professor of philosophy today asked American and British consular officials to help them get married and defeat the combined opposition of their families.

"Nothing could inspire us to marry as quickly as parental opposition," said Samuel Mercer, 19-year-old American.

He said he and Lucy Joad, also an Oxford student, had eloped from England—with the money obtained from selling their romantic story to a London newspaper—after members of their families had gone into council, forbidden the marriage and cut off their allowance.

Mercer described Oxford as "an organized waste of time" and his intended bride agreed. She said she was "fed up with the place" and glad to escape from it.

"Anyway, Oxford is hardly the place for lovers, and we were getting nowhere there," she added. "Nearly all women at Oxford are just academic and not human. I don't like them."

Discussing the financing of their elopement by the sale of their love story to the London newspaper, Mercer said: "I hate to be sordid about romance but we have to eat."

He said they were determined to marry and that they would remain in France as long as possible.

Dies Summons 4 Witnesses on Fascist Plot

General Moseley Called to Testify On 'Fantastic' Scheme

By Robert C. Albright.

Four witnesses were subpenaed yesterday by the Dies un-American committee as investigators pressed inquiry into an anti-Semitic movement purportedly organized to counteract a "fantastic" plot against the Government.

Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, retired, an alleged leader of the movement which distributed reports of the plot, and Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican National Committee, who supplied a Moseley associate with a Republican committee list, were among those called.

Hamilton explained last night that the list was supplied by his Washington office as "a matter of routine." He said he had no recollection whatever of James E. Campbell, of Owensboro, Ky., who asked for the list, and who was said to have disseminated copies of Moseley's speeches and "reports" to a group on his mailing list.

Identity Not Secret

"There is no secret about the identity of the membership of the National Committee since their names appear in the World Almanac and other similar documents," Hamilton said in a statement. "As a matter of course, this list is sent upon the request of anyone."

He said he was informed by his Washington office that Campbell wrote several letters to him after the last election, "as did thousands of others," and in one requested the committee list.

"There was nothing whatever in any letter that Mr. Campbell sent to headquarters which in any way would indicate any anti-Semitic interest or activity," he said. "If there had been, there would have been no correspondence on my part."

Others Subpenaed

Others subpenaed to appear before the Dies Committee at 1:30 p. m. Monday are:

Felix McWhirter, Indianapolis bank executive, and former Chamber of Commerce official, who is alleged to have inquired in a letter whether Alf Landon, William Allen White and Mrs. Cordell Hull were of Jewish blood.

George Deatherage, of St. Albans, W. Va., commander of "The Knights of the White Camellia," who allegedly wrote Campbell a letter mapping a plan for building an organization based on "State and county leaders all over the Nation that we know without a shadow of doubt are men that will stick under any kind of fire."

Telegram Quoted

Chairman Dies said he had heard Deatherage "is out to get me, so we are obliging by paying his passage up here."

A wire received from Deatherage by the Dies office yesterday said: "A committee has been appointed to plant a pansy dedicated to you and all the boys. Send you a great big kiss."

Meanwhile, in a letter to the committee, Representative Barry (Democrat), of New York, asked an investigation of the "relationship of the Mayor of New York and his administration to un-American communistic activities."

Speech at Fair Cited

Citing Mayor LaGuardia's speech dedicating the Soviet pavilion at the New York World's Fair, Barry declared that "a politician who praises one alien un-American doctrine in order to ingratiate himself with the followers of another is a danger to the institutions of this country and his motives should be exposed to the American people."

No replies from Dies subpenaes were received, but Hamilton said in Chicago he would "be very happy to appear" and answer all questions.

Transcripts Due Today

Transcripts will be made public today of testimony taken Thursday at which the Dies committee questioned Campbell, Dudley Pierpont Gilbert, wealthy and socially prominent New Yorker; James F. Cooke, commander of the Tennessee department of the American Legion, and Reid Brodie, Owensboro, Ky., banker.

According to Dies, reports of a plot to overthrow the Government were given to Gilbert by an unnamed "waiter" in an exclusive New York club. Some of these were alleged to set forth what Dies called "fantastic" plans by a minority to take control of the Government by striking first in the New York area, depressing prices of United States bonds to create a panic, and seizing control of arsenals and public utilities. The report referred to use of thousands of professional soldiers, some of them brought here from Spain through Mexico, investigators said.

To counter this "plot," Gilbert was alleged to have relayed the information to Campbell, who disseminated it to a select mailing list. Dies said the material sent out by Campbell actually was interwoven with anti-Semitic propaganda purporting to show a close connection between affairs of government and highly placed Jews. Discounting the "plot," Dies suggested this material might have been used to build up a fear psychology to further purposes of the campaign.

March 14 Letter Quoted

A letter dated March 14, from Moseley to Campbell, in the record of the committee, disclosed Moseley suggested showing a March 1 report of the "plot" to Gen. Malin Craig, Army chief of staff. He wrote Campbell he would "liketo be able to tell him briefly and confidentally something of the source and probable reliability of the information given." (This was the report alleged to contain military plans by a subversive group to seize Government control.)

Campbell replied under date of March 16 that he was leaving this matter "entirely to your discretion."

"You know the source of those G-2 reports," Campbell replied. "You know the personnel comprising the meetings. You know that subsequent events have proven every report correct. If Gen. Craig can be given this in the utmost confidence, so that it does not reach the Administration, because I believe he should be so advised, because I believe the time may come when a demur will have to be taken by the Army. But in the event this information gets beyond him, it means the life of the operative now situated within their center. My personal belief is that it would be much better to discuss it with the general personally upon your next visit to Washington. Give him the contents, but do not give him a copy of the report. It is time that our high command knew the exact status of the communistic situation in this country."

Letter to Delameter

The committee earlier made public a letter to Moseley from Brig. Gen. Walter A. Delameter, of the New York National Guard, interceding with the retired general to talk to Lewis L. Strauss, of Kuhn Loeb & Co., who, Delameter said, "has been greatly distressed at quoted statements of yours in the press regarding his firm, and which of course are not true as he can prove."

Mosely did not see Strauss. His reply to Delameter, dated April 21, contained the remark that "the fact is that the most serious problem confronting America today is just this problem of the Jew and how to get rid of his influence definitely—locally, nationally and internationally."

A subsequent letter from Moses to Campbell, dated May 12, said "I sent S a letter he will have no difficulty in understanding. I will mail you copies just as soon as I can have some made." It was this letter to Campbell that said: "If the Jews bump me off be sure to see they get credit for it from coast to coast."

Washington: City of Contrasts

Illegitimacy Rate for D. C. More Than Twice As High as for Nation; 8.3 per 1,000 Births

ILLEGITIMATE BIRTH RATE IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, 1937
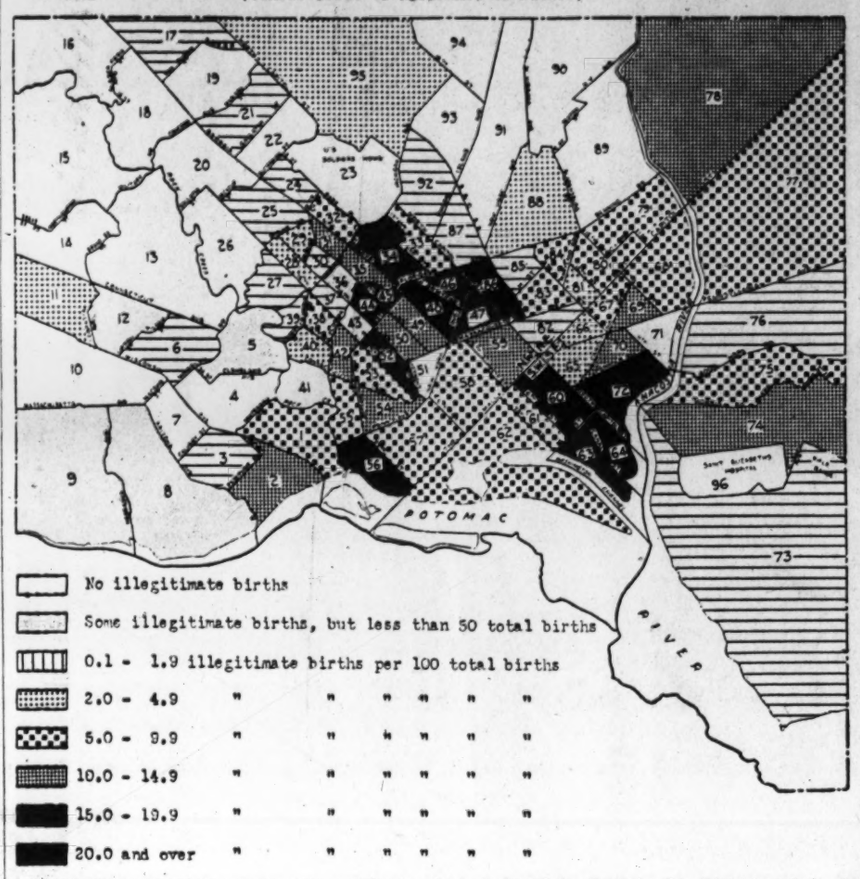
(Census Tract of Residence of Mother)



This is the fourteenth in a series of articles on social and health conditions in the Capital. The fifteenth, and concluding article, will appear tomorrow in Section III, Page 5.

By Eugene Pharo.

Even illegitimate births within the District emphasize the effect of low-standard, poverty-stricken living conditions on the lives of some of its inhabitants, according to an analysis issued yesterday by the Washington Council of Social Agencies. They occur most numerously where the residents are least able to live decent, socially-respecting lives.

The study proves that the economic and environment factor contributes to the preponderance of such births among the section of the population which is forced to live at the lowest economic and social level. For only those sections which are in the higher economic levels show a total absence of such births.

In this respect the Capital shows one of its most glaring contrasts. The District rate for 1937, as pictured on the accompanying map, was more than twice as high as that for the Nation. In the country as a whole, with a total of 74,938 illegitimate births, the rate was 4.02 per 100 total births. In the District it was 8.3, based on a total of 841 such births.

At the same time, the white illegitimate rate in the District was below that for the United States. For every 100 white berths in the District there were 1.4 babies born of unmarried mothers, as compared with 2.09 for the country as a whole. Both in the District and in the United States, the poorer economic and social position of the Negro showed itself in higher rates than those for the whites.

These economic and social conditions in the census tracts, shown heavily shaded in the accompanying map, are in relation to the absence of protective care for unmarried colored mothers, and exist in relation to adequate playgrounds and recreation centers for colored children. Case work services and facilities for unmarried mothers of either race form no part of the public child care program of Washington, although they have been recommended to the Senate District Commitee by the Budget Bureau. Private agencies, which render service for a limited number of mothers, are confined exclusively to the white.

Chicago Found Profiting From WPA Project

Demolition Gave $45,231 to City, Committee Hears

Chicago has made a profit out of WPA demolition projects, the House committee investigating the work-relief agency heard yesterday.

E. W. Erickson, committee investigator and former FBI agent, said that on May 1 the city had obtained $45,231 from the sale of materials salvaged from buildings the WPA had demolished free of charge.

Some of the salvaged material, Erickson added, was used by the city as its sponsorship contribution on other WPA projects.

Taxes Lowered

Erickson said the city invited building owners to have their structures torn down, with the inducement that taxes on the property would be lowered when it was turned into a vacant lot.

"In other words, the city of Chicago is conducting a campaign to reduce its own tax receipts," said Representative Taber (Republican), of New York. "That's right," Erickson said.

The witness said some owners had canceled private demolition contracts when they learned the WPA would do the job for nothing.

"Petty Cash Account"

Erickson said that when he attempted to learn the amount of money the city had received from the sale of salvage, he was told that it was just a "petty cash account." Later, he said, "when I looked into it, I found there was $45,231 as of May 1."

J. J. McTigue, another investigator, said city permits for private demolition projects were difficult to obtain unless back taxes on the property were paid, but this requirement was waived, he said, when the WPA did the work.

Representative Wigglesworth (Republican), of Massachusetts, read to the committee a letter from Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin (Republican), of Connecticut, who asked for return of work relief to the States. Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, observed that the Baldwin letter would make a "fine political campagin document for 1940."

Save Labor Act By Revision, AFL Demands

Congress Told Law May Be 'Obliterated' In '40 Unless Amended

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor last night demanded immediate action by Congress on A. F. L. amendments to the Wagner labor act, and warned that failure to make the revisions will lead to "probable obliteration" of the law in 1940.

The council also went on record as being unanimously opposed to a proposed amendment in the social security law which would allow States to reduce the current 3 per cent tax paid by employers to finance unemployment compensation benefits.

It took the position that instead of reducing the levy, larger reserves should be built up to permit earlier and longer payments of benefits to the unemployed.

Green to Speak

The council adjourned to meet again in Atlantic City August 7, when it will prepare its report for submission to the annual A. F. of L. convention to be held in Cincinnati in October.

Coincident with the council's demand for action on the Wagner act amendments, it was announced that A. F. of L. President William Green will make an address over the Columbia Broadcasting System at 9:45 p. m. Sunday, in an attempt to rally Nation-wide support behind the federation's program.

A resolution adopted in the closing session condemned the National Labor Relations Board as an "ally of the C. I. O." and as being "detrimental to the A. F. of L. and to the public." It held the act to be sound, but criticized the administration of it as "improper and unjust."

Charges Biased Rulings

Amendments to the act are necessary, the resolution said, to curb "unrestrained, biased discretion" by the board. It charged that beneficiaries of the board's "biased" rulings are seeking to befog the issue before Congress by "false name-calling" and other methods.

"This issue must be settled by this Congress to meet imperative and immediate needs for reforms proposed by A. F. of L. amendments and to prevent probable obliteration of the act in 1940," the council held.

Western Union Head Legs Wire And Gets a Dime

Annandale, N. J., May 19 (AP).—The principal in this story told it today:

The telephone at his farm rang. The voice which came over the line was that of the telegraph operator at a nearby railroad tower who said he had a telegram for a neighborhood farmer's wife and had been told that by calling his listener's number he might get a suggestion on how to deliver it.

The man who received the call made the delivery, was given a dime and told, "Buy yourself a cigar."

Senate Votes to Make Sergt. Alvin York World War Hero, Colonel on Retired List

By the Associated Press.

Promotion from sergeant to a colonel on the Army's retired list today was almost within reach of the man who captured—single-handed—132 Germans during a single engagement of the World War.

SERGT. YORK

Under a bill passed by the Senate, Sergeant Alvin C. York, of Tennessee, called by Gen. Pershing the greatest hero of the World War, would be made a colonel of the United States Army and then placed on the retired list. The bill now goes to the House.

Withdrawal by Senator Taft (Republican), Ohio, of his earlier objection resulted yesterday in unanimous Senate confirmation of the nomination of William M. Leiserson to the National Labor Relations Board.

Leiserson, now chairman of the National (Railway) Mediation Board, will take the place of Donald Wakefield Smith, who has served under a recess appointment since his regular term expired last year.

Taft, who had objected Thursday to confirmation of Leiserson's nomination, told reporters he "had not found sufficient basis for a fight against confirmation."

The Senate passed a bill to set up an administrative bureau for Federal courts.

The agency, headed by a $10,000 a year director, would examine dockets, seek to reduce delay in disposing of cases and handle administrative problems of the judiciary, including its budgets. The plan originally was proposed in President Roosevelt's court reorganization measure of 1937.

Senator Barbour (Republican), New Jersey, gave cupid a helping hand and as a result a postponed wedding will take place in Los Angeles June 3 as originally planned.

Ensign Warren C. Hall, aboard the U. S. S. West Virginia at San Pedro, Calif., will be the bridegroom. Barbour helped him to get into the Naval Academy.

A Congressional investigation of "pro-Japanese activities by the Government of President Manuel Quezon of Philippines" was asked in a resolution introduced today by Representative Alexander (Republican), Minnesota.

The resolution said "President Quezon and certain Philippine public officials have attempted to inject a pro-Japanese attitude and spirit into the Philippine people in an attempt to disrupt harmonious relations between the Philippines and the United States."

President Roosevelt declined to say yesterday whether he would veto a House-approved bill designed to prevent Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World War draft dodger, from returning to this country from Germany. When such a question was put at his press conference the President replied he could not say about that.

The House rejected by a voice vote a request by Representative Bland (Democrat), of Virginia, for an appropriation of $2,500 to permit the Bureau of Fisheries to investigate the causes of "pink oysters."

Bland explained that there had recently developed along the Atlantic Coast from Rhode Island to Virginia a condition where oysters in transit to market had developed a reddish color, which preliminary investigation had demonstrated did not affect the shellfish's edibility, but did interfere with marketability.

Designed to preserve America's tobacco export trade, a House bill prohibiting the exportation of tobacco seeds and plants today was passed by the Senate and sent to the White House for Presidential approval.

O. John Rogge, SEC Aide, Gets Justice Post

Nominated Assistant Attorney General in Criminal Division

By the Associated Press.

O. John Rogge, Securities and Exchange Commission lawyer, was nominated by President Roosevelt yesterday to be an Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Criminal Division of the Justice Department.

He will succeed Brien McMahon, who resigned this week to enter private law practice in Washington and Connecticut, his native State.

Rogge, 35, is assistant general counsel for the SEC. He has been in charge of the commission's investigation of Transamerica Corporation, $200,000,000 California holding concern which the commission has charged with making "false and misleading" statements.

The newly appointed head of the Justice Department's Criminal Division is a native of Springfield, Ill. He was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1922 and from Harvard Law School in 1925. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and while in law school was on the staff of the Harvard Law Review.

From 1925, through 1927, he was in private law practice in Chicago. Later he became a research fellow at Harvard Law School. From 1934 to 1937, when he went to the SEC, he was special counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corportion. He tried the RFC's case against the Central Republic Trust Co. of Chicago, winning a judgment of $9,600,000.

New Spending, Lending Plan Being Drafted

Would Aid Small Business, Railroads, Liberalize Pensions

Influential administrative and legislative New Dealers are working on a new spending-lending program to put "idle dollars" to work and stimulate recovery, which has failed to materialize this spring, it was learned yesterday. The program will combine help to small business, railroads, housing and liberalization of social security benefits.

At his press conference yesterday, President Roosevelt asserted that he is opposed to using the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to finance such a program. He added that he had not heard reports that another such program was in the offing.

Six-Point Program

Establishment of a new Federal agency for loans to business, especially small firms which have been "capital starved." The agency would probably not be included in the regular budget, but would come under the Federal loan agency proposed in the reorganization plan.

Government purchase of railroad equipment and its rental to the carriers. This plan was advanced last year but was abandoned.

Reduction of interest on construction loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration to speed up improvements.

Liberalization of social security benefits, calling for old-age pensions of $40 monthly for single persons and $60 monthly for married persons.

Barkley Sees Approval

Among those working on the new recovery program, it was reported, are Senators Wagner (Democrat), of New York, and Pepper (Democrat), of Florida; Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and Leon Henderson, newly appointed member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, majority leader of the Senate, said he had not heard of a new recovery program when newspapermen questioned him. However, he added: "I think a reasonable spending bill would be passed by the Senate."

President Roosevelt on Tuesday asked the Monopoly Committee to find out why this country was glutted with "idle dollars" instead of their flowing into productive channels necessary to turn over the economic machine. He asked the committee to find an answer to this question.

Large Firms Self-Sufficient

The hearings have developed into a broad picture depicting the stagnation of capital. From the four-day record it has become obvious that the committee wants to emphasize that large corporations are self-sufficient and are not dependent upon the capital markets for their expansion capital.

The committee will call shortly executives of small concerns to show that small and medium-sized corporations cannot obtain funds readily and therefore are "capital starved." The SEC will supplement this testimony with exhaustive data on the capital needs of small business from a survey which it is conducting jointly with the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Bleeding Nose Follows Tift in NLRB Hearing

Tulsa, Okla., May 19 (AP).—A flare-up between opposing counsel interrupted a National Labor Relations Board hearing today on charges of unfair labor practices against the Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation.

Elmer Davis, regional attorney for the NLRB, left the hearing with a bleeding nose, but explained he had had a sinus operation a few days ago.

J. C. Denton, general counsel for the company, had objected to the line of questions, declaring "Mr. Davis wants to pave the way for a union boycott of our customers."

"You're a liar if you say that," shouted Davis.

"What," Denton cried, lunging around the counsel table, "You can't call me a liar and get away with it." Davis also lunged.

Other attorneys and spectators grabbed the two men. After some confusion both men resumed their seats.

Moulton Tells Of Research At Brookings

Many Studies Near Completion, He Informs Trustees

Numerous economic and governmental studies under way by the Brookings Institution will be completed within the next few months, according to Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president, who spoke yesterday at the annual meeting of the board of trustees.

Dr. Moulton outlined the following studies which are nearing completion:

Government in Relation to Industry. A broad analysis of the fundamental issues involved in relations existing between government and private enterprise.

Wages Studied

Wages, Productivity and the National Income—a Study of the National Income. A study of the significance of wages as part of the national income.

Wartime Price, Wage and Fiscal Policies—a study undertaken at the suggestion of the War Department with a view to formulating a program for use in the event of a future war.

Capital expansion and economic stability—a comprehensive investigation of the significance of, and problems involved in re-opening of the capital markets.

The Federal regulatory system—an analytical study of all Federal regulatory agencies, their functions, procedures and methods.

Dwight F. Davis was re-elected chairman of the board and Clarence Phelps Dodge was made vice chairman to succeed Dr. Leo S. Rowe, who remains a member.

Dr. Lyon Speaks

At a dinner last night, Dr. Leverett S. Lyon, executive vice president, discussed the study of government in relation to industry, which he is conducting. Present at the dinner were Dean G. Acheson, Washington; Robert Perkins Bass, Peterboro, N. H.; Harold W. Dodds, Princeton, N. J.; Marshall Field, New York; Jerome D. Greene, Cambridge, Mass.; Alanson B. Houghton, Washington; Roland S. Morris, Philadelphia; Lessing Rosenthal, Chicago, and Anson Phelps Stokes, Washington.

Adkins Sentences Woman Convicted Of Healing Fraud

Unmoved by Mrs. Rosalyn Randle's plea that she was sorry and would not do it again, Justice Adkins yesterday refused probation and sentenced her to three to eight months in jail for bilking a woman out of $500 by pretending she could cure a brilliant college boy of a "suicide complex." He also held her on $1,500 bond for trial for using the mails to defraud.

Assistant District Attorneys Caldwell and Grace Brown Stiles prosecuted Mrs. Randle and will present, probably next month, a charge that she mailed out promises to teach immunity to any disease, for $500 in advance.

Senate Approves Putting Mergers In Effect July 1

The Senate yesterday unanimously agreed to commence operation of the President's first two reorganization plans on July 1, the first day of the new fiscal year.

A joint resolution by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, changing the effective dates of both plans, was adopted by the Senate and sent to the House. Chairman Cochran of the House Reorganization Committee said he will call a meeting of his group, and predicted House approval of the resolution.

Adoption of the resolution, it is understood, would make it possible for the President to send his nominations to head three new agencies created to the Senate, without waiting for the plans to take effect.

Senate Votes D. C. Increase to Nine at West Point

The Senate yesterday passed a bill increasing the number of West Point appointments from the District of Columbia from four to nine. The increase would give Washington the same percentage rating now enjoyed by States of similar population, it was pointed out by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

In another Senate bill passed yesterday age limitations in civil service examinations would be removed. The measure was sponsored by Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, who claimed that "under the existing laws scarcely a Senator is eligible to take a civil service examination."

Chicago, May 19 (INS).—Stricken with pneumonia, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, internationally famous physician and surgeon, was rushed from a hotel in Chicago to a hospital tonight.

WPA Boosts Public Art Use, Official Avers

100,000 Creations Put In 14,000 Institutions, U. S. Federation Told

The Federal Art Project has done more to further the public use of art "than has been accomplished during any previous period of American history," the American Federation of Arts was told yesterday by Thomas C. Parker, deputy director of the WPA unit.

More than 100,000 murals, sculptures, paintings and prints have been allocated to 14,000 tax-supported institutions since September, 1935, said Parker, a speaker at the closing session of the federation's thirtieth annual convention.

25,000 Attend Center

The project's community art center program, he said, marks "the first time in our history that an organized country-wide effort has been made to offer the greatest number of people an opportunity to share in the experience of art."

H. Stewart Leonard, director of the Zanesville (Ohio) Art Institute, described the development of the privately endowed community art center there, pointing out that it has an annual attendance of 25,000, though only 2 years old.

High Standards Urged

Miss Charlotte R. Partridge, director of the Layton gallery and art school in Milwaukee, said that that organization, "though founded on a shoestring," has thrived because "it believed in artist-teachers who could and did create with raw materials in education as a way of life instead of as preparation for life and in not going to art, because we live with it."

Forbes Watson, associate editor of the Magazine of Art, urged museum heads and instructors to fight to keep standards high.

Security Bloc May Force Issue On Townsend Plan

By the Associated Press.

House leaders indicated last night that they might force a vote on the Townsend old-age pension plan before letting the House consider expanding the social security system.

Amendments to enlarge the social security system and pare down the taxes which support it were approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, but the formality of introducing a bill and submitting it to the House must be carried out. Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, said that might be done late next week.

A poll of Democrats showed, they said, that the Townsend plan would be defeated decisively, and they reasoned that if the Townsend bill comes up in advance of social security, members would have no opportunity to dodge the issue by saying they already had voted for more liberal old-age pensions.

House Votes Funds for Trade Pacts Over G. O. P. Opposition

Financing of Hull Program Kept in State, Justice and Commerce Supply Bill Despite Effort to Recommit Measure

By the United Press.

After defeating two Republican attempts to eliminate State Department funds for the reciprocal trade treaties program, the House yesterday passed a $121,399,620 appropriation bill covering operating expenses for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments during the 1940 fiscal year beginning this July 1.

The final departmental appropriation scheduled to come up this session, the measure represents an increase of $26,691,315 over last year's funds for the three executive offices. The increase was accounted for partly by a $21,900,000 appropriation for the sixteenth decennial census and $3,000,000 for the care of an increasing number of Federal prisoners.

Ballot on Party Lines

The first G. O. P. sortie to eliminate reciprocal trade treaties funds was started by Eastern Republicans who described the Administration's cherished trading program as "iniquitous" and "ruinous to this Nation's economy." The first attempt to remove the item was defeated 127 to 98, and the second, 165 to 139. Balloting was along strict party lines.

The disputed State Department item totaled $225,000 out of the total departmental appropriation of $18,225,200, an increase of $1,326,350 over last year's figures. The Justice Department gets $50,745,320, an increase of $6,473,325, a small part of which is for a G-man drive against increasing foreign espionage in this country.

The Commerce Department appropriation totals $52,428,600, or $18,892,140 more than for the fiscal year 1939, which ends June 30.

G. P. O. Protest Ignored

A Republican protest against the State Department's request for funds for the American embassies at Colombia, Panama, Venezuela and Soviet Russia was raised by Representative John M. Vory's (Republican), of Ohio, who said that President Roosevelt had acted without authority in raising the three Latin-American legations to embassy rank. So far as Russia is concerned, he said, Congress never had authorized an embassy there. The point of order was rejected on grounds that such acts are the constitutional prerogatives of the President.

Nye Sees Curb On Marines In War Poll

Referendum Would Prevent Landing of Them in China, He Says

By the Associated Press.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, an advocate of the war referendum amendment, believes it would ban even the landing of an expeditionary force to protect American property abroad, unless the people approved.

He expressed the opinion in reply to a question yesterday from Senator Hatch (Democrat), New Mexico, as to whether the United States "could land marines in China if American lives and property were threatened there" unless the people voted in favor of war.

Nye said he thought the force could not be landed. He held an expedition would constitute an act of war.

Borah on Veto Plan

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, entering the committee hearing as Nye was approving a proposal of Senator Wiley (Republican), Wisconsin, that Congress should have the power to veto a referendum choice of war, said he thought that plan would make the amendment useless.

"If we haven't got confidence enough in the people to let them decide the question," Borah said, "let's keep the decision ourselves."

He said that by the time the people "fool with the proposition" for several months and then Congress took additional time to decide, "the war would be over."

Nye saw the factor of delay as a strong argument in favor of the referendum.

"The finest place for delay is in the business of starting into war," he said. "Could there have been more delay in 1917, combined with a requirement that the people be armed with the facts which seemed to call for war, we might well have been erecting magnificent monuments to 'delay' rather than to the dead."

Senatorial critics of President Roosevelt's foreign policies expressed confidence yesterday that Administration efforts to revise the neutrality law had been blocked for this session of Congress.

Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, who recently urged Congress to remain in session all summer if necessary to guard against involvement of this country in war, expressed the opinion that there would be no new neutrality legislation this year.

His views were known to coincide with those of Senator Borah.

"I think the neutrality hearings held by the committee have demonstrated to the Administration," Johnson said, "that it can't get from this Congress what it wants—absolute discretion for the President and the right to name an aggressor."

[From Frankfort, Ky., the Associated Press quote Maj. Joe Burmna, of State highway patrol headquarters, as saying patrolmen have been stationed at practically all of Kentucky's interstate bridges and roads "to keep Communists out of the State."

Chicago Reds Awaited

[Gov. Chandler said he had received a warning that a group of Communists had left Chicago for the coal fields.—Editor's note]

The shooting high-lighted a day in which Federal conciliators met separately with members of the Harlan County Coal Operators Association and U. M. W. A. officials in an effort to compose their differences over a union shop clause in a new collective bargaining contract.

[Seriousness with which the Government views the Harlan trouble was indicated yesterday when Attorney General Murphy dispatched Brien McMahon, assistant attorney general, and Henry A. Schweinhaut, chief of the department's Civil Liberties Division, to the area.

[They directed the Government's three-month trial of Harlan coal operators last year. The present trip, it was indicated, was motivated by belief that civil liberties may be violated and that the Government should have observers on the spot.

[It was also declared that the mere presence of Justice Department officials on the scene would serve as a deterrent to law violations.

[Presence of Justice Department agents in Harlan for the past month was explained as a partial coincidence. Two F. B. I. investigators had been sent to Kentucky to recheck evidence for disbarment proceedings scheduled for June 1 against a Harlan lawyer accused of running a "perjury mill" during last year's trials. They were on hand when the recent violence flared and were instructed to remain.—Editor's note.]

Word was received that the Works Progress Administration had certified more than 500 strikers for relief allotments.

Although the operators apparently were more disposed to talk peace terms today than at any time since the stalemate began, soldiers with fixed bayonets continued to guard the mines where more than 2,000 men were estimated to be working.

The Federal and State conciliators met with representatives of the operators' association this afternoon and several other meetings were planned, with the effort to end the dispute scheduled for 10 a. m. Monday. There was a possibility, however, that the latter date might be advanced.

The WPA aid, which aroused cheers from the pickets, was announced by Adeline Kell, assistant Kentucky WPA administrator, who arrived today. She said food was being shipped "in great quantities" by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation. She estimated supplies would support the strikers for a month.

No distinction will be made, she said, between those now receiving relief from the U. M. W. A. and those without means of assistance.

Decision to ship the food, it was indicated, came when mine company stores ceased allowing credit to nonworking miners.

The U. M. W. A. is distributing 18 to 20 tons of food daily.

King Astounds Empire by Granting Throne's First Press Interview and Then Quips at It

'You Can Certainly Take It,' Reporter Tells His Majesty

inquired if Miss Tighe were able to sleep well on the pilot train.

"Yes, ma'am," replied Miss Tighe. "I can too," said the Queen.

"Wouldn't it be terrible if we couldn't. Our train is so beautiful."

King a Trifle Nervous

The King was a trifle nervous at first, and made frequent passes at his necktie with his idle hand. Gradually, however, he too began talking to the newspaper people.

Thus he found that one of them was from New Zealand, he wanted to know where in New Zealand.

"Wellington, Your Majesty," was the reply.

"Oh, the windy place," said the King.

He and the Queen, when they were the Duke and Duchess of York, visited New Zealand, Australia and other parts of the empire on which the sun never sets.

An Australian, whom the Queen engaged in conversation, said that the land from down under hoped their Majesties might visit there again.

"I hope so," she said. "Oh, such glorious memories."

The enthusiastic—at times, ecstatic—welcome given the King and Queen in Canada, has made an empire tour a real possibility, according to those who ought to know.

The King was interested in an American press association correspondent when he learned that his dispatches went all over the world. He asked him if the changing time on the trip across Canada wouldn't confuse him.

"Yes, sir," was the reply, "I suppose I will have to get about six watches."

His Majesty Quips

"And no doubt," said His Majesty, "they will all be wrong."

A close-up of the King and Queen emphasizes the impression that the camera lens is not always faithful. For example, art editors have placed a beard on George VI and then called attention to how much he resembles the late George V. The fact is, though, that the closer you get to him the more he looks like his older brother, the Duke of Windsor, who abdicated to marry Wallis Simpson, of Baltimore.

The Queen is more slim than her photographs would indicate, and also has a glow about her face that the camera cannot capture.

The royal day was a precedent-shattering day. First, the King personally received the credentials of Daniel C. Roper as minister to Canada, something unheard of in history.

Then, for the first time, he sat with his Queen on thrones in the Canadian Senate and assented with brief nods of his head, to eight bills of Parliament. The first of these was the new Canadian-American trade treaty. Roper sat in front of the dias and witnessed the ceremonies.

Parliament Hears King

Receiving Roper's credentials, the King exchanged with the former Secretary of Commerce felicitations and expressions of friendship.

When he addressed Parliament later in the day, His Majesty said, "I hope my visit to the United States will help to maintain the very friendly relations existing between that great country and the nations of the Commonwealth."

Overcast skies and intermittent rain greeted the King and Queen today for the first time since they entered Canada. Punctual to the minute, the royal train arrived at 11 a. m. It had remained on a siding near the sleepy hamlet of Caledonia Springs, population 153, all night so the royal party might rest better and so none of the scenery of Canada would be missed. This practice of traveling only in daytime will be followed throughout the tour.

Ottawa's Welcome

But the inclement weather did not lessen Ottawa's welcome and the royal route was packed.

The King, in a field marshal's uniform, splashed through rain puddles on the station platform as he inspected a guard of honor. He was piped through the stiff ranks by a full band of bagpipes shrilling "The Scottish Borderers' Regimental March" in the Queen's honor.

Her Majesty wore for the arrival a wool suit of pale mauve, trimmed with light beige fur. Her turban was of the same shade of mauve with a veil hanging down the back.

As they entered a state coach for the royal procession, the skies began to clear but the King and Queen kept a rug pulled up to their waists because of the dampness.

For the ceremonies in Parliament, which began at 3 p. m., the King changed to the brilliant full-dress uniform of a British field marshal, his scarlet tunic encrusted with glittering orders and decorations. His trousers were skin tight and he carried a ceremonial sword and cocked hat with white plumes.

The Queen wore an evening gown of egg-shell satin, trimmed with sequins, made with a hooped skirt and a sweeping train. It was trimmed around the bottom with silver lace. With it she wore a diamond tiara and a string of pearls.

21-Gun Salute

Other jewels were a blazing diamond necklace with huge rubies and a diamond bracelet, the latter worn over long, white gloves. Two pages in white satin knee breeches carried Her Majesty's long train of gold lame, which also was used in the trimmings of her gown. The train was thickly incrusted with thousands of tiny pearls and diamonds. Across her breast the Queen wore the wide blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter.

As Their Majesties entered the grounds of Parliament, cannon boomed out a 21-gun salute. The roar of the cannon had not been expected by the crowds jammed behind police lines and a shriek of fear went up. One woman fainted and Red Cross attendants carried her off on a stretcher.

As the royal pair walked down the Hall of Fame in the Houses of Parliament, Her Majesty resorted to a typical feminine gesture when she "fixed" her hair just before entering the Senate chamber.

Ermine and Scarlet

In the chamber, the sovereigns were seated on a gold and scarlet dais, on scarlet silk chairs. Beside them were Prime Minister MacKenzie King and Senate Leader Dandurand, with his white beard cascading down his gold-braided Windsor uniform, honorary aides de camp in brilliant uniforms, and page boys. On a scarlet circular woolsack midway of the chamber sat the seven justices of the Canadian Supreme Court, dressed in medieval style, scarlet full-round capes and skirted robes trimmed with wide bands of white ermine.

MacKenzie King and Dandurand bowed low before Their Majesties and the speaker of the Senate, on behalf of the sovereigns, requested the gentleman black rod, in black silk frock coat and knee breeches, to summon the members of the House of Commons. He paced slowly down the aisle, pausing three times to bow to the throne.

Then ensued five minutes of complete silence, with the hundreds of eyes in the chamber fixed on the King and Queen. The Queen bore this ordeal easily and whispered now and then to the King, smiling slightly. His grave expression never changed.

The only time she revealed any agitation was later when the King rose to speak. Nervously she crushed her handkerchief in her left hand until the speech was well under way. When it became evident that his delivery was good and that her husband's speech was "going over" well, she relaxed.

Dr. Dafoe Worries

Callander, Ontario, May 19 (INS). Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe confided to reporters this afternoon that his anxiety over the quintuplets' first trip to Toronto next Sunday was overshadowing the feeling of excitement over meeting the King and Queen he would ordinarily feel.

"I'm not worried about their health—but you never know what may happen. It's a pretty anxious time," he said.

The quintuplets will wear pale blue silk frocks and flannel coats in the same shade for traveling. White organdy period frocks, reaching the floor, and tiny white kid slippers will be their presentation garb.

Texts of Roper's, Kings' Talks

By the Associated Press.

Ottawa, May 19.—The texts of the message read today by Daniel C. Roper in presenting his credentials as United States Minister to Canada and of the reply by King George VI follow:

Roper's Message

I have the honor to place in the hands of Your Majesty the letter whereby the President accredits me as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Canada.

The President asks that I convey to Your Majesty the assurances of his friendship and genuine good wishes for the continued happiness and well-being of the Canadian people.

At his request, it is also my duty to deliver to Your Majesty the letter of recall of my distinguished predecessor, Mr. Norman Armour, whose term of office in Canada was the source of deep satisfaction to my Government.

It was the privilege of Mr. Armour to assume his duties as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Canada at a time when all British peoples were engaged in celebrating the silver jubilee of his late Majesty King George V. It is a source of equal gratification to me that my mission in this capital will coincide with the first sojourn of a reigning sovereign among his Canadian subjects.

The American people could not fail to be conscious of the anticipation with which this significant event has been awaited throughout the length and breadth of Canada and at the request of the President I am happy to convey the best wishes of the American people for the unqualified success of Your Majesties' journey.

The President and the people of my country are likewise looking forward with keen pleasure to the visit of Your Majesties to the United States next month. In addition to personal considerations the feelings of the American people toward their Canadian neighbors will be reflected in the warmth of the welcome which will be accorded Your Majesties.

The King's reply:

I am greatly pleased to receive the letter of the President of the United States of America appointing you to the position of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Canada, and to extend to you on behalf of my people in Canada a very cordial welcome to our country.

Would you convey to the President of the United States my sincere thanks for the assurances of his friendship and his good wishes for the happiness and welfare of the Canadian people, which I cordially reciprocate.

I thank you for bringing the letter of recall of your distinguished predecessor, Mr. Norman Armour, who, during his stay in Canada, was held in high esteem and regard.

It is pleasant to recall that the beginning of Mr. Armour's mission coincided with the silver jubilee of my father. I am happy that your mission should begin at this time.

I thank you warmly for the good wishes for the success of our journey, which the President has requested you to convey to the Queen and myself on behalf of the people of the United States.

I also highly appreciate your references to our forthcoming visit to your country. The close friendship between my Canadian people and their neighbors, to which the President refers, makes us look forward to the visit with particular pleasure.

I trust that your term of office will be marked by happiness and interest and that the friendly ties and associations between our peoples may be further strengthened by your presence in Canada.

Rural Areas Have The Most Aged, Survey Reveals

Growing conflict between education needs for youth, and pension programs was cited yesterday in a study by the American Youth Commission.

The study pointed out that the rural areas of the United States have the greatest number of dependent older people, and also the heaviest proportionate educational load. In 1930, for every 1,000 adults, the farming areas of the Middle West had 158 dependents over 65, and 578 children between 5 and 17, the study said.

Pointing out that in some States pension advocates have urged taking money from educational funds, Dr. Homer P. Rainey, commission director, warned that "solicitude for the care of the aged and for the education of youth should go hand in hand, with neither permitted to absorb a disproportionate share of the social income."

Franco Looks To Pacification Of Europe

Expresses Desire to Take Part, as Climax To Victory Parade

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, May 19.—Generalissimo Franco, speaking at the climax of a great civil war victory celebration tonight, declared "our desire is to collaborate in the pacification of Europe."

"Let us place our dignity and our independence above all," he said.

Franco spoke after reviewing a parade of 150,000 troops which was intended as a farewell to Italian, German and Moorish forces which helped the nationalists win the war.

Rain Drenches Parade

The nationalist leader called on all Spaniards to work together in the nation's reconstruction.

Earlier the victory parade had been held in a heavy rain.

Italian, German and Moorish troops joined some 127,000 Spaniards sloshing along the drenched Avenida del Generalissimo to pass in review before the tribune where stood the winner of the bitter conflict.

Two million spectators—Madrilenos and visitors from every corner of Spain—cheered the soldiers and chanted Franco's name as the generalissimo stood heedless of the weather.

23,000 Foreigners March

More than five hours after the parade began, motorized equipment of the German Condor Legion splashed past the reviewing stand, one of the final units of the parade.

The commander of the Condor Legion, Gen. Baron von Richthofen, joined Franco in the reviewing stand as the German troops, consisting chiefly of artillery and anto-aircraft and machine gun units, marched past.

The parade was witnessed by diplomats of every nation recognizing Franco's government, including the British, French, German and Italian ambassadors and the United States Charge d'Affaires, H. F. Matthews.

In the line of march were at least 1,000 field and anti-aircraft guns and 400 tanks.

In addition to Spanish troops there were 10,000 Italians, 8,000 Moors and 5,000 Germans who are expected to leave Spain within two weeks.

Palestine to Try Non-co-operation

ond is to be another surrender to the same fear and the same terror."

Declaring the British plan to limit Jewish immigration into Palestine was submission to the "terroristic threats of a small band of Arab extremists," Rabbi Breslau called upon the British people to "so swell the chorus of right and justice that your present government will be impelled to keep open the doors of Palestine, and to facilitate as it has promised the establishment of a Jewish homeland."

Cable to Chamberlain

Rabbi Breslau said the Jews of Palestine are determined not to give up their new found freedom, "until the blood of the last survivor shall have been mingled with the soil made sacred by the sacrifices of thousands of martyrs of the generations past."

Earlier a group of American religious and lay leaders, in a cablegram to Prime Minister Chamberlain, expressed their "deep concern" over the plan of the British white paper limiting entry of Jews into Palestine. In the Balfour declaration, the cable said, Great Britain made "a pact with the conscience of mankind." They expressed hope that Great Britain would carry out letter and spirit of the Balfour declaration.

Rabbi Wise Comments

New York, May 19 (AP).—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, vice president of the Zionist organization in America, said at a press conference today "there will be resistance" to Great Britain's new Palestine plan outlined in its White Paper.

"But resistance," he said, "does not necessarily mean violence."

It will be something approximating Gandhi's policy of passive resistance, of nonco-operation, in India.

Woman Bitten, Takoma Park Rounds Up Dogs

A general roundup of unlicensed dogs in Takoma Park was started last night immediately after a police dog sprang at Mrs. Viola M. Gunn, 22, in front of her home, 35 Fremont avenue, and ripped her left hand and fingers.

Mrs. Gunn was treated at the Washington Sanitarium. Charles Downey, pound master, began to round up all stray dogs in order that the police dog might be examined for rabies.

Franco Called Fascist Front For Americas

Hitler and Mussolini Using General for Their Propaganda, U. S. Told

Hitler and Mussolini have made Generalissimo Franco their mouthpiece in spreading Fascist philosophy thruogh Latin America, a key official of the vanquished Spanish republican regime charged here yesterday.

Julio Alvarez del Vayo, foreign minister and Spanish delegate to the League of Nations uunderthe loyalist government, pointed out that straight Italian or German propaganda "doesn't go too well in South America."

"But now the fascists have Spain," he said, "with the same language and traditions as Latin America, and that is the channel they take to cross the Atlantic. It is clear as day."

Denies "Red" Influence

Del Vayo energetically denied all suggestions of Communist influence in loyalist Spain. "It is entirely mistaken," he declared, "to assume because we purchased war materials from any particular country we became politically engaged to that country."

Del Vayo told a press conference at the Mayflower Hotel that "what makes Hitler a great political strategist "is his gift for calling all opponents of aggression Communists."

In case of war in Europe, the former foreign minister believes Franco will issue a declaration of neutrality but allow Germany and Italy to use Spain as a naval and air base.

Says Franco Can't Last

DelVayo expressed confidence Franco's regime cannot last. "We will be back—soon," he said. When presed to say how soon, the former diplomat cheerfully replied, "Sooner than you think."

Del Vayo is traveling in this country to support a campaign to raise $1,000,000 for aid to Spanish refugees in France. Sponsors include Secretary Ickes, Mrs. Louis Brandeis, Brig. Gen. Henry Newcomer, Mordecai Ezekiel, Leon Henderson and the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris.

The former loyalist official will speak at the National Press Club auditorium at 8:15 p. m. Sunday. He leaves in two weeks for a conference with President Cardenas of Mexico.

U. S. Beef Raisers Smug, Says Elliott

Forth Worth, Tex., May 19 (U.P.).—Elliott Roosevelt suggested tonight that his father may have expressed preference for Argentine beef for the United States Navy "merely to cause the cattlemen to get out of this smug and contented attitude and do something about a situation which has been brought about to the detriment of the cattle producers by the great packers of the country."

Roosevelt's comment was made in one of his semiweekly commentaries broadcast over the Texas State network. He is visiting in the East and the address was a recording.

Navy Chief Hints Hitler Challenge On Battleships

Berlin, May 29 (INS).—That Chancellor Hitler is embarking on an intensive battleship-building program to keep pace with Britain, the United States and France, was indicated tonight by Admiral Erich Raeder, commander in chief of the German navy.

Speaking to the Hitler Youth Congress at Braunschweig, Admiral Raeder, recalling the Fuehrer's recent junking of the Anglo-German naval treaty, said:

"Battleships are indispensable, because they alone can obtain and defend the control of the sea. We must decognize the principle that every war is decided at sea. This will play a decisive role in Germany's fight for existence."

Doctors Discover 2 Drugs Aid in Heart Attacks

New York, May 19 (INS).—A new medical miracle of saving human beings from fatal heart attack by soothing the jittery nerves of the chest with a drug was announced today by two Chicago physicians, Dr. Geza de Takats and Dr. George K. Fenn.

One of the serious and sudden types of heart attacks is due to the blocking of the arterial pipe-lines through which the blood circulates in the chest. This is caused sometimes by some blood clot formed as the result of a surgical operation. The nerves which control the size of the blood vessels become irritated and cause a contraction, greatly increasing the blood pressure.

It was found that such nerve stimulation is prevented by the soothing drug, atropin. Another drug, papaverine, directly reduces high pressure in the blood vessels. The two drugs together helped to save lives.

Service by Mail Challenged In Appeal Here

Legality of 18,810 Cases in Small Claims Court Attacked

Legality of steps in 18,810 cases in the Small Claims Court—more than 90 per cent of the first year's work of the agency set up here to deal out cheap and rapid justice—was attacked in the Court of Appeals yesterday.

The procedure challenged was service of papers by registered mail, which has been used for a quarter of a century and is one of the keystones of the simplified justice program.

The mail method was chosen by 18,810 of the 20,871 persons who filed claims in the Small Claims Court's first year.

Among those served by registered mail was Mrs. Anna L. Wise, of 1733 Westover drive southeast, who failed to respond. The Chesapeake Motor Co., represented by Attorneys J. E. Bindeman and James A. Willey, obtained default judgments totaling $69.57, claimed for the rental of two trucks. Marshals went to attach Mrs. Wise's automobile.

Mrs. Wise, wife of Alfred Wise, a contractor, retained Max Ammerman, who contended that the service by mail was unconstitutional. Judge Ellen K. Raedy overruled him and he took the dispute to the Court of Appeals.

Laws Refuses Probation to 5 in Numbers

Writers Sentenced To From 4 Months To a Year and a Day

Justice Laws yesterday refused probation to five colored numbers writers.

Sentencing the men to four months to a year and a day in jail, the justice said he felt the courts ought to use their power to "break the flagrant and persistent attempts to violate the District numbers laws."

The men sentenced were Roy Brent, Leonard N. Richardson, Joseph E. Joyner, Ollie Timberlake and Herbert L. Prigden. They were caught last fall with lottery tickets they were taking to numbers headquarters.

Charles E. Ford, attorney for the five, pleaded for probation for them because, he said, running a numbers lottery was not wrong in itself, but only because it had been denounced by statute.

Prince Georges Will Enlarge Auction Plants

System of Tobacco Selling Believed in Maryland to Stay

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST. 821 Rheems Ave., Hyattsville, Md. Telephone GReenwood 3559.

Encouraged by the initial success of the tobacco auction system in southern Maryland, sponsors of the markets at Upper Marlboro and Hughesville yesterday revealed plans for immediate enlargement of the two plants.

At Hughesville it was announced that preliminary work had already started on construction of a warehouse three times as large as the present one. The latter will be converted into packing house. A new warehouse will be built in the next three weeks, at Upper Marlboro, increasing the floor space by one-third. Facilities at both places will be about the same when the work is completed, it was said.

Sponsors unanimously said the auction system had come to southern Maryland to stay.

French Buyers Bidding

The auction houses were opened the first of this month, the first time in history that leaf tobacco had been sold at auction in southern Maryland. For years growers from this area shipped their crops in hogsheads to Baltimore to be sold by commission merchants.

Bob Hall, secretary-treasurer of the Upper Marlboro Tobacco Market, Inc., said prices had been good, particularly for the medium grades. He pointed out that French buyers, who have purchased very little Maryland tobacco in recent years, were bidding on the crop this year.

Hall advised growers of the importance of grading their tobacco before bringing it to market. Mixed grades, he said, are not receiving best prices.

Greenbelt Plans Fair

Not to be outdone by New York and San Francisco, the Government-owned town of Greenbelt will stage its own fair the last of the summer or early fall, Wallace Mabee, chairman of arrangements, announced yesterday.

Mabee said tentative plans call for many features of the old-time county fair as well as modern innovations.

The only thing definitely decided upon so far is a yard and garden contest, for which the town council has set aside $100 for prizes. An additional $250 has been appropriated for prizes in other events.

Mabee said the fair would probably include exhibits of home cooking, sewing and garden produce.

"The fair will be modernized," he added, "by including such events as swimming and diving contests, tennis matches and orchestral recitals. In all probability, the town also will enter exhibits showing its progress during its two-year history."

Bund Ban Struck From Alien Bill

might have come under the law but had every right to be exempted." The War Department, it is understood, objected to having imposed upon it the burden of licensing the various organizations.

Deportation Clause Dropped

A provision ordering deportation of aliens unless they become citizens within five years after entry into the United States was also removed from the bill, as was a provision forbidding aliens to commute to work across the American boundary line.

As it now stands, the bill would forbid anyone—whether citizen or alien—to urge, by speech or writing, the overthrow of the Government by force or violence "or by any other unlawful means;" or to become a member of any society advocating violent or illegal destruction of the Government. The bill would forbid anyone to incite a member of the Army or Navy to disobedience.

The measure would deny naturalization to any alien believing "in any form of government for the United States contrary to that existing in the United States." It would require deportation for aliens sentenced to a year's imprisonment for a crime involving moral turpitude; aliens carrying certain weapons without authority; aliens convicted of violation of narcotic laws, those who have aided smuggling into the country of other aliens and those engaged in espionage.

Strecker Case Covered

Fingerprinting and annual registration of resident aliens would be required. A special section was inserted to take care of contingencies similar to that in the Strecker case, in which the Supreme Court recently held that an alien Communist could not be deported if he had ceased to be a Communist. The bill now provides for deportation if the alien has ever been a member of "anarchistic and similar classes."

ARE U.S. BEERS OUT OF THEIR CLASS AGAINST FAMOUS IMPORTED BEERS?

37 Experts can't tell the difference in 3 U. S. and 3 Imported—but as the beer they liked best they chose Gunther's over 2 out of 3 of Europe's famous imported beers

ONCE AGAIN the U. S. A. tops Europe! This time Uncle Sam is taking the play away from foreign countries in one of their great industries . . . the art of making great beer! 37 international experts, who recently compared 3 U. S. A. beers and 3 of the finest brands imported from Europe, could hardly believe it. But they proved it themselves!

Who Are the Experts?

Each one of these experts is a member of the International Barmen Association. Each is a beer expert in his own right. Many have European backgrounds. All have responsible jobs here in the States. And in most every case you'll find them directing the beer and wine cellars of some of the country's finest clubs and hotels.

How Test was Made

These experts were told that there would be 3 beers from the U. S. A. and 3 famous imports from abroad. Nothing else. They were not told which was which. They were asked to use their own standard for judging quality, flavor, body, purity. And when the 37 men had made all their comparisons, here was the result:

FIRST: 3 world-famous imported beers had scored 49 points.

3 fine beers made in this country had scored 50 points.

Virtually no difference.

SECOND: Each man had also been asked to pick the beer he preferred to all the others! The voting was close. They were all good beers. A European beer won. But Gunther's, the beer so well known in Baltimore and Washington, came next and actually led the other two fine imported beers!

HERE'S HOW EXPERTS VOTED FOR 1st CHOICE
(The beer they liked best!)

Import A	24.3	Import B	16.2
Domestic X (Gunther's)	18.9	Domestic Z	13.5
Domestic Y	16.2	Import C	10.9

Total—100%

Try Gunther's . . . only a dime

So step up you real beer drinkers. Prove to yourself that Gunther's compares with any beer made regardless of price.

Remember that Gunther's is the only "Special Dry Lager" sold in this part of the country. And remember, too . . . experts have chosen it right up with the world's finest . . . and here GUNTHER'S COSTS YOU NO MORE THAN ORDINARY BEERS! On draught . . . or in bottles.

Gentlemen:-

On last Thursday evening, at a dinner of our members, held in the Empire Room of the Hotel Lexington, a very thorough and comprehensive test was made to determine the relative merits of famous imported and domestic beers.

It was gratifying to see how the standards of brewing in this country have produced beer so excellent in taste, body, and color; that three domestic beers were virtually comparable in every way with three world-famous imported beers.

Thirty-seven experts, all master bar-men and wine stewards, engaged in this test, and none were permitted to know the names of the beers they tasted until the test was concluded.

You may also be gratified to learn that Gunthers was one of the highest ranking beers, receiving, as it did, the second highest number of votes for first choice. It was only exceeded by one world-famous imported beer in the opinion of these experts.

Yours very truly,

A Happy Augury

The installation last night of Dr. Norman Gerstenfeld, who succeeds the late and much beloved Dr. Abram Simon as rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, was itself a matter of widespread community interest. It was rendered more so by the gratifying display of religious fraternalism which the ceremony brought forth.

Officiating in the service were prominent divines of other faiths, including the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, and the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, chairman of the Committee of Religious Life in the Nation's Capital. The presence of these and other nationally known religious leaders was a moving tribute to Dr. Gerstenfeld, who has won a real place for himself in the esteem of the people of Washington.

But the ceremony was really much more than a tribute to any single individual. It was above all, a demonstration of the unity of aspiration and spirit which binds all men of good will, whatever their faith, in these days of rabid intolerance and savage prejudice.

Many Protestants, Catholics and Jews are increasingly inclined to minimize their doctrinal differences and, while remaining completely loyal to their own respective creeds, to draw together in defense of the many interests which they have in common. A striking instance of this tendency was the installation of Dr. Gerstenfeld as the spiritual leader of Washington's oldest and largest Hebrew congregation. It served not merely as a tribute to the good relations which have existed in the Nation's Capital between Christians and Jews in the past, but as a happy augury of increasing co-operation in the future.

A Trial Balloon Pops

Ever since the Japanese seized Shanghai, Americans and others residing in the International Settlement there have viewed with understandable alarm Japan's steady encroachments on their treaty rights and interests.

Directly, and through puppet governments which they have set up throughout the conquered area, the Japanese have made life increasingly difficult for other foreigners seeking to reside and trade in China, as the latter have a wholly legitimate right to do.

In the International Settlement at Shanghai, the richest prize in China still outside their grasp, the Japanese have perforce moved slowly. But there is little doubt as to their intentions of seizing this area, if that action ever seems practical as well as desirable.

It was not surprising, therefore, that much anxiety was aroused when Japan last week landed troops at Kulangsu, the International Settlement of Amoy. Seizure of that relatively unimportant extra-territorial area was regarded in Shanghai as a move preliminary to the seizure of the International Settlement there. And if the seizure of Kulangsu had gone unresisted, the International Settlement of Shanghai would almost certainly have been the next victim of Japan's appetite.

The Kulangsu occupation, however, has been resisted. Immediately after the Japanese coup, American, British and French warships hastened to Amoy and landed forces there. And it is more than a coincidence that, concurrent with the show of force at Amoy, the United States has taken occasion, through the American Ambassador at Tokyo, to direct to Japan a strong note rejecting out of hand the Japanese demands for a change in the land regulations of the International Settlement.

These land regulations constitute the charter of government for the Settlement and the Japanese have sought to modify them in such a fashion as, in effect, to give Japan complete control. Declaring itself ready at any time to become a party to "friendly and orderly negotiations" regarding any needed revisions in these regulations, the American Government points out that conditions in Shanghai at the present time are so far from normal "that there is totally lacking a basis for a discussion." And the fact that Japan comes into court with unclean hands is brought out in the American insistence that Japan evacuate the Settlement area which, for many months, she has illegally occupied.

For two years Japan has had it all her own way in China. Hitherto, protests have come only in the form of notes, which Japan has cheerfully ignored. The joint landing of American, British and French bluejackets at Kulangsu indicates that from now on these protests are to receive material backing. If so, it may be predicted that Japan's attitude will swiftly become more reasonable.

Bulgaria's Case

Despite the humiliation and territorial losses suffered by Bulgaria in the World War, the government of that country has consistently refused to agitate for overthrow of the settlements of 1919. The little kingdom of King Boris, with an area slightly less than that of Ohio and a population of some six millions, has for more than 20 years loyally accepted the deprivations which followed defeat.

This attitude is based on principle rather than weakness. It has been as pronounced since the rise of Hitler as it was when there were no powerful friends to whom Bulgaria could turn for assistance. Economically this Balkan nation is securely attached to the Berlin orbit. From a political viewpoint it would seem equally natural for dissatisfied Bulgaria to gravitate to the Berlin-Rome axis. But this step the Sofia government has refused to take. It continues to rely on reason rather than force for the attainment of ambitions which to all Bulgarians seem only the realization of simple justice.

In the Dobruja, a former Bulgarian province now part of Rumania, occurred last week a savage episode which has stirred the more feeling in Sofia because of that capital's uncomplaining acceptance of annexations at its expense. While the Rumanian and Bulgarian accounts differ pronouncedly it is agreed that more than a score of peasants of Bulgarian origin were ruthlessly shot down by Rumanian gendarmes. Dispatches from Bucharest claim that the slain were "robbers." Dispatches from Sofia say that they were peaceful agriculturists who, as Bulgarians, had merely protested conscription into the Rumanian army.

At this distance it is impossible to pass judgment between these conflicting accounts. But what is very clear is that great bitterness against Rumania has been stirred in Bulgaria, and that this bitterness, in the present state of European tension, has far-reaching implications.

Bulgaria lies between Rumania and Turkey. The last two countries, together with Poland, are now parties to the anti-aggression bloc which London and Paris are building in opposition to the Berlin-Rome axis. With the support of Bulgaria this line-up would prove a formidable barrier to the German Drang nach Osten. But a hostile Bulgaria, forced into active co-operation with the axis, would drive a most destructive wedge into this eastern barrier.

It is obvious that Bulgaria, despite German pressure, does not wish to ally itself with the axis. King Boris is as anxious to attend strictly to domestic reconstruction, and to avoid involvement in power politics, as he has been since he ascended the throne during the collapse of 1918. But it is equally evident that Bulgaria will tend more and more to an alignment with Germany if claims and grievances considered reasonable receive sympathy only in that quarter.

The need for rectification of post-war injustices did not disappear with the formation of the anti-aggression bloc. The purpose of this bloc must be confined to opposing forceful change, and not to stereotyping the status quo where its unreasonable nature can be demonstrated. And it would be dangerous as well as unjust if Bulgaria should find the moderation of its attitude actually operating to close the door to reconsideration of convincing claims.

The Corned Beef Row

The Senate Appropriations Committee's 9-to-7 vote against purchasing foreign food for the Navy has apparently closed the latest international incident to disturb relations between President Roosevelt and Congress.

An oratorical field day was precipitated not so much by the foreign source of the beef, though that was provocation enough, as by the President's bold assertion of superior quality in the Argentine product. Seldom have Senators and Congressmen been presented with a better opportunity to appear in their favorite role of defender of the American farmer and they made the most of the opening.

The exact import of the President's comparison—the fact that Argentine packers use superior beef for canning, while the best American cuts go for steaks and roasts—was pretty much ignored in the uproar. Meanwhile, the exultation of Congress at its triumph is somewhat dimmed by the embarrassing disclosure that Brazilian corned beef is being served in the Senate's own restaurant. And further investigation would probably show that canned corned beef of other than South American origin is difficult to find on the shelves of American grocery stores.

The whole affair illustrates how hard is the way of reciprocal trade when the self-interest of a large bloc of voters is seemingly opposed to concessions. It is no secret that the relative coolness of Argentina toward the United States, and toward our plans for Pan-American solidarity, is due to refusal to open our markets to her great staples. The economy of the Argentine Republic is predominantly agricultural. It depends on exports of wheat and corn, beef and mutton, to pay for the increasing volume of manufactured goods required by a growing population and rising standard of living.

Similarly, though agriculture is no longer our first industry and now occupies only a minority of our people, it is still important enough to be a major concern of government. Declining export markets for American farm products, and chronic domestic surpluses, also help to create a situation that offers a highly unfavorable setting for a satisfactory trade agreement with Argentina, as one of the world's foremost agricultural nations.

It is an unfortunate impasse. The efforts of the Department of State on behalf of inter-American friendship, and the desire of American manufacturers to strengthen their position in the rich Argentine market, find themselves in sharp conflict with the interests of the American farmer and the position taken as axiomatic by Senators from cattle-raising States.

District Relief Policy

With commendable foresight the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations recently decided to cut through complications which for many years have blocked the District's school-building program. There is urgent need for similar tactics in adopting a new local relief policy.

During the last year, by order of Congress, relief in the District has been subjected to sweeping investigation. It would scarcely be supposed that Congress would itself ignore the findings and recommendations growing out of this inquiry. But since precisely that course was taken by the House, the Senate has a special responsibility to give more than casual attention to the plight of the unemployed here.

The extensive reorganization called for by Burdette Lewis, who directed the relief study, cannot be made operative through an appropriations bill. It should be considered in connection with the proposed overhauling of the District government under the Griffenhagen plan. But Senator Overton's committee can take note of the grave inadequacy of the $900,000 allowance for general relief, and it can remove restrictions upon the Board of Public Welfare which tend to make efficient administration impossible.

With the funds provided in the House bill, the board will be able to care for only those families without a breadwinner which are most urgently in need. It will have nothing whatever to offer the destitute but able-bodied unemployed. Since the number in this category aided by the WPA is almost certain to be reduced during the coming year, the prospects for many of Washington's jobless seem little short of desperate.

Regardless of what amount is appropriated for relief, two limitations on its expenditure should either be eliminated from the House bill, or else extensively modified. The restriction that not more than $48 per month may be spent on any one family is utterly inequitable. There are only about 200 cases in which payments now exceed that figure. But these are very large families which cannot subsist on average allowances. Some discretion in matters of this sort ought to be left to the Board of Public Welfare.

The Burdette Lewis report laid emphasis on inefficient relief administration in the District. The proposed restriction of personnel expenditures to 8½ per cent of the total fund may operate to increase abuses in this field. Some investigators now have to supervise as many as 200 families because of shortage of personnel. That is not economy but an opening for waste.

Regretted Resignation

The decision of Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal to return to private practice on November 1 is keenly regretted by all Washingtonians familiar with the service he has rendered the District. Since Mr. Seal succeeded E. Barrett Prettyman in his present office, in 1936, he has been one of the few officials on whom the actual burden of governing the District has really rested.

A considerable number of the measures actively sponsored by Mr. Seal have been enacted into law, including the financial responsibility act for motorists, the lunacy act and the statute modernizing the special assessments law. Other legislative efforts, such as his work on the small-loans bill and various tax reforms, are yet to be confirmed by legislative action. Whatever the field of his civic endeavor, Mr. Seal has established a reputation for good judgment and conscientious public service.

Aside from his legislative work, Mr. Seal has become one of the chief advisers to the Board of Commissioners. Under different circumstances he might have been induced to regard the District service as a career. But our haphazard system of local government offers little incentive to capable and progressive young men to remain in its employ. Until Washington achieves a municipal government worthy of the name this city must reconcile itself to the frequent loss of outstanding public servants after too brief a turn of constructive work.

Well, anyway, this much can be said of the world of today: There's never a dull moment.

Aw, what's the use? If you associate with people, you're bored; if you don't, you're lonely.

The Syllabus of Errors

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An editorial in a recent issue of The Post eulogizes the Pope to the skies. In fact there has been so much printed in your paper during the last year or so flattering to the Roman Church or its head that it is beginning to pall very much upon a great many people who have felt very kindly toward your publication.

The Pope is continually trying to grab more power and authority, and your paper is continuing to give him publicity which is really becoming nauseating.

You should read the "Syllabus of Errors," which is an official decree of one of the Roman pontiffs and is generally accepted as the rule and guide of the Church's policies and beliefs. LIBERAL.

Philippine Industry

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The action of the Senate Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs in reporting favorably by a unanimous vote S. 2390 is of the utmost importance to the Philippines. This report clears the way for consideration by the Senate of the proposed measure which, in so far as the Philippines is concerned, has the character of emergency legislation. Only by the enactment of this legislation can the threatened ruin of four Philippine industries be averted.

The two amendments inserted by the committee will not give rise to any objection on the part of the Filipinos. The elimination of the definition of "refined sugar" will maintain the status quo and the exemption from the excise tax of coconut oil not used for edible purposes will be a benefit to the coconut growers in the Philippines but will not harm the butter or cottonseed-oil producers in the United States.

This decision of the committee will be received with satisfaction and gratitude by the Filipino people, proving as it does the continued interest of the committee members in the problems vitally affecting the welfare of the Philippines.

Investments

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Investment Problems," in The Post of May 18, is a clean-cut expose of the financial condition of the country today.

To be sure, the country is running over the brim with idle capital, but who will invest when conditions are so uncertain and the investor is in fear of a "draft" on his money? Capital is a timid animal and at the first sign of a storm cloud on the horizon crawls into its hole . . . and pulls the hole in behind it.

Your cartoon on same page shows that. This New Deal cannot, or will not, see that when banks are full of money there is no safe investment. Money at large has no prospect of a safe activity.

Then again, why should we worry when the Government scatters dollars by the billions? "Nobody shoots Santa Claus."

We have had panics before. We shall always have them, but the businessman pulls us out. Give him a chance and he will do it again. But he must be his own boss of his own business. A nation can be taxed to death. It cannot be taxed into prosperity. W. J. DERMOTT.

Is The USHA Program Out Of Balance?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read Mr. Nathan Straus' statement in your issue of Sunday, May 14, concerning the economies accomplished and contemplated by the United States Housing Authority; and in spite of its evident sincerity, it leaves me uneasy. Let me try to tell you—and also Mr. Straus—why.

We are deeply sympathetic, not only with Mr. Straus' efforts to administer the law so as to eliminate slums and provide decent housing for former slum dwellers, but also with most of the objectives (yes, and the methods, too!) of the New Deal. For several months, however, we have observed ominous signs of a reaction that threatens to destroy well-nigh everything accomplished by the New Deal so far. We have not forgotten what happened in the years following President Wilson's era of reform and war hysteria.

People are saying everywhere that the USHA is undertaking to provide at the public expense, for the poorer element of our population, a quality of housing far beyond the means of the great majority of families who pay their own way and would starve before asking the Government for help. The Post editorial to which Mr. Straus refers suggests something of the same idea in the passage quoted by him to the effect that the USHA system of annual contributions "magnifies housing benefits to a relatively small number of families out of all proportion to other forms of public aid and relief."

Mr. Straus expresses disagreement; but it seems to me that in giving his reasons he does not exactly face the issue. He demonstrates clearly enough that the cost of the annual subsidy per family or per person is not formidable—unless multiplied by the number of families or persons comprising a third of a nation, against the background of a budget already alarmingly out of balance through taking care of that same third of a nation—but I fear that he leaves the main question implied in the editorial unanswered.

The thing that bothers the friends of the New Deal for whom I am presuming to speak is the sort of reasoning we are more and more frequently called upon to refute. It goes somewhat as follows: Taking the commonly accepted rough division of the country into three income groups, the overwhelming majority have incomes of less than $1,500 a year. The average income of this great mass, making up the backbone of our citizenry, is probably somewhere between $1,000 and $1,500. They can afford to pay rents, if they live in apartments, of from $20 to $30 a month, and if they live in houses, from $15 to $25 a month. What kind of an apartment for a medium-sized family can be built on the basis of an economic rent for $20 a month? What kind of a house for $15 a month? The answer gleefully given by enemies of the New Deal is: nothing remotely approaching the minimum standards of quality established or contemplated by the USHA.

The people in the lower brackets of the middle third of our income groups, running into millions of voters, are listening to these enemies of the New Deal. When they become convinced that, through the indirect taxes they pay, they are providing for families poorer and no more deserving than themselves far better living quarters than they can afford for their own families, they are likely to snarl and show their fangs. And then, I'm afraid, millions of them will go to the polls next year and vote for any sort of reactionary that either the Republicans or the Democrats may nominate.

There must be some answer to these implied criticisms of the USHA—some explanation of its policy which will satisfy these millions of voters potentially hostile to the New Deal—an explanation based on something not too altruistic for them to understand and approve and not consisting of a mere questioning of the figures I have quoted. Will not Mr. Straus please make public such an explanation?

Bootleg Milk

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Much has been written in the Washington papers about the milk investigation, with its so-called startling disclosures regarding bootlegging. As a matter of record, the powers that be have known for a long while that bootlegging existed. The thing that the public did not know is that nothing was done about it until it had been brought to the attention of the Corporation Counsel's office.

According to the testimony given, many thousands of gallons of uninspected milk has been sold in Washington over a period of years, which is against the law—or is it? If we have a law saying that milk sold for fluid consumption must be inspected in the distributing plant and at the farm, why has it not been enforced? Why should one producer have to see to it that the Health Department of the District forces other producers to abide by the law?

I have not seen a line written by any of our Washington organizations as to whether they want the regulations to remain strict so as to insure our city the best milk supply obtainable, which is what they have now, or if they will be satisfied with whatever our Western politicians are willing to let us have. We must remember that we shall be drinking milk in Washington after this set of politicians has been defeated.

Is our Medical Society, Dental Society or any one of a number of health organizations not enough interested in the condition of the Washington milk supply to come out and insist that our laws pertaining to milk and cream not be done away with, but enforced?

I think Mr. Donald Kane hit the nail on the head Tuesday, when he told the investigating committee that all any one would get out of lowering the health standard would be grief. Washington would get a poor grade of milk, the distributor would get less for his product and, last but not least, the goat of them all will be the farmer who has to get to his barn by 4 o'clock in the morning every day in the year, rain or shine, Sundays and holidays included. He will have to continue working 14 to 15 hours a day and get less pay.

PAUL R. MARSH.

Too Smart

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The "Buy American" slogan is all right but just now our greatest need is to "Sell American."

As to the canned beef issue, millions of housewives have checked it off their menu because of its inferior quality. Someone states that American canners put in "everything but the moo," but even that seems to be included.

If Argentine meat is superior, let's have it. It may be an object lesson to the canners and may result in providing a better home product that will increase our own home consumption of it. It is ridiculous to go into hysterics over $4,000 worth of beef, and the cattle industry is too smart to fall for such "official propaganda." A WESTERNER.

To Protest

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your account of the arrival of Their Britannic Majesties at Quebec the following phrases were used:

"King George . . . smiled with genuine abandon . . ."

"The Queen smelled sweet."

As an ardent admirer of Their Majesties and of the British Empire, I wish to protest this insidious attempt to make Their Majesties appear ridiculous.

The Post Impressionist

Taproom

THE YOUNG MAN from Texas looked at his watch. "Look," he said, "I don't want to go back to the hotel yet. Let's go somewhere. Let's go somewhere and get a drink."

"You've been about everywhere that visitors to Washington go," George said.

"What about the night life in Washington? You don't mean to tell me all those people I saw down at the Capitol today, and on F street at lunchtime and in the restaurant at dinnertime, go to the movies like we did and then go home to bed, do you? You ever been to N'Orleans? You ought to see the night life there!"

"We can get some beef," George said. "I know a little place not far away . . ."

It was one of those narrow places with a door on the sidewalk and a window full of liquor signs and crepe paper streamers and glaring neon labels, and when you got inside you saw booths on either side of the aisle. In the booths people sat drinking beer and talking. At the far end of the place was a bar and a slot-machine phonograph from which the magnified voice of a girl who couldn't sing was singing about her heart belonging to daddy. George and the young man from Texas found an empty booth about halfway down the aisle.

"This is not any night club," the Texan said.

"No," George agreed.

They sat and the Texan looked around him. "In N'Orleans they've got beer places where you can dance. They've got hostesses in 'em, too. Some of 'em are French girls."

A waitress came to take their order. She was young, with a round pink face, and she wore a white dress with red dots on it and white ruffles on the shoulders and down the front. She was oblivious to the noise and the smoke and the hour. Holding her pencil over her pad, she ignored the looks she got and waited for some one to speak.

"Two beers," George said.

It was impossible not to hear the conversations all around. In one booth a sailor sat with a girl. It was obvious they had been there a long time, for now and then the sailor beat on the table with the palms of his hands and the girl was sad.

"I know how it will be," she said. "If there's a war you'll go away and where will I be? I just ask you?"

"All you can talk about is war! Who said there was going to be any war anyhow? 'Course I'd go—that's my business. But if there was one, who said we'd be in it?"

"Maybe you can tell me," the girl said, "why we got in that last one? I been asking a lot of people, ever since I met you. And nobody knows. All we got out of it was the bills to pay for the others, and a lot of people killed. I'm for peace myself."

"Who said I wasn't? But look here—what makes you so sad? Didn't I call you up soon as I got ashore? Haven't I spent hours telling you what a good guy I am and asking you to marry me? Come on now, be a good girl and forget war. Let's talk about us."

"I don't see any future in marrying a sailor. I want a little apartment with a kitchen and a radio and money enough to go to the movies on Saturday night. I want to live in one place."

The sailor leaned toward his girl. "Come on, honey," he said, "and snap out of it. Let's have another beer. What do you say?"

The waitress came with two glasses of beer and left. The phonograph exchanged the husky voice of the girl for the high one of a tenor. Some people left; some others came in. A man went to a coin telephone on the wall and dialed a number. In the booth on the other side of George and the Texan two women were talking.

"She can't say I didn't tell her," one of them said. "She's crazy to marry a man like that."

"I always say that any man who's so anxious to divorce his wife to marry you might be just as anxious to divorce you."

"I told her that. She knows that."

"Then what's wrong with her? She's got a good job. She makes $20 a week and nobody to spend it on but herself. What's wrong with her, anyhow? If she's not happy, she's crazy."

"She's crazy about him."

A long sigh came from the booth. They heard it in the pause the phonograph allowed while it flipped over the record just played. A woman's voice said:

"Nothing can give you trouble like love."

George and the Texan rose and went out on the pavement. The Texan was saying:

"Washington's a pretty city all right—all white buildings and trees, but if you ask me it's pretty slow. Now take that place back there—nothing going on. Why, you ought to see the night life in N'Orleans."

Reporters Are Human

ALTHOUGH the porch-climbing school of journalism has died of disrepute, reporters still have a duty to get the story and photographers the picture, in spite of difficulties and social exclusions. It was the enterprise and direct approach of American newspapermen which broke down the stupid reserve of the British bureaucrats in Whitehall during the war, when a group of them went direct to the Home Office and bullied their way into the presence of Sir Francis Younghusband, the home secretary, to obtain permission to visit Dublin while the blood and ashes of the Easter revolution were still warm.

He was fair flummoxed by the audacity of this proposal and in a moment of confusion gave in and sent them off from Holyhead on a torpedo boat of His Majesty's navy to the stuttering indignation of the cap-touching native pressmen of London, who, up to that time, had been in the habit of inhaling sharply in the presence of the very flunkeys lest they contaminate the official atmosphere.

British Pressmen Grew Bolder

NOT LONG afterward the British pressmen grew so bold as to send a committee to accompany the American reporters to a mass interview with his excellency, the home secretary, and the spokesman of the group was so affected by this recognition and by the humiliation which had been put upon the journalistic home guards in the Dublin affair that he broke into tears. It was touching.

This gain for American journalism was not entirely profit, however, for the British are not dumb, and they soon developed a system whereby the Americans were calling around in posses on such formidable patriots as Admiral Blinker Hall, the chief of naval intelligence; Sir Robert Cecil, who had foreign affairs; Sir Frederick Maurice, the army's chief of operations, and, occasionally, John Buchan, alias Lord Tweedsmuir, the present Governor General of Canada. They had asked for this intimacy, and the British, having granted it, exploited the opportunity to make propaganda, as the Germans say.

Newsmen Feted By Propagandists

BUT IMPURE news was considered to be better than no news, and it could be hoped that the Germans and Austrians, on their side, would be smart enough to do the same so that the American people, reading their papers, would be able to balance one propaganda with another. The London bureaus of American papers and press associations were invited to send representatives to official dinners where the Burgundy was needled with hands-across-the-sea orations, and, of course, the head man usually strapped on his funny clothes to go to the more pretentious brawls, but even the cubs would be sent to a scoff-touch, or free-loading, now and again at such lesser rejoicing as the annual banquet of the Greengrocers' Guild or the honorable company of ironmongers.

These were not unimportant incidents in the social and economic life of a fire engine chaser doing London on 5 pounds 11 and thruppence a week and accustomed to tea and kidney in the London equivalent of the one-arm lunch. They had olives at the banquets, and each place was barriered behind a row of glasses which would have inspired a Swiss bellringer to mischief.

Why Mr. Coolidge Lost Popularity

IN WASHINGTON, in recent years, journalism has ceased to be strictly stag, and the unpopularity of Cal Coolidge was due in some degree to the fact that on one of his tours up in the Green Mountains he refused to pull up for hours, passing by many attractive gasoline stations—a lack of consideration which was bitterly and outspokenly resented by gentlemen of the press who were traveling en famille. The next President who prefers to go stag will find it necessary to break down a custom which, with a little more encouragement, would convert the press detachment on tour into a modernized version of the Indian caravan, encumbered with papooses, go-carts and other homely utensils.

It seems to me that it were better for the American press and the people that the reporters covering the visit of their British Majesties be not invited—and possibly taken in—as guests at social functions arranged for them. Reporters are human, and social vanity exists in the Washington corps and might be exploited by invitations to royal occasions, even though the bids be addressed impersonally to the soulless corporations which employ the inkstained wretches. If our press is so sensitive socially as to resent snubbing and retaliate with disagreeable publicity in the papers, then it follows that this same press would be equally grateful for social recognition and would give the British breaks they don't deserve.

After all, a reporter or photographer can't expect all his assignments to hold still like barnyard ducks.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

In Calmer Waters

By Barnet Nover

Has Europe Ridden Out The Storm?

EUROPE'S FEVER has subsided and there are many who now say that, for this year at least, the Old World is safe from a new attack.

In this country, certainly, pessimism is on the wane. The latest Gallup poll shows that, whereas in April, 51 out of every 100 Americans questioned believed war to be just around the corner, only 32 feel that way now.

Nor is evidence lacking to confirm this encouraging belief that the international crisis has eased appreciably. For five weeks Europe has suffered no new aggressions. Germany's occupation of Prague on March 15 and of Memel a short time later has had no calamitous sequel in Danzig and the Corridor.

Italy has not overstepped the boundaries of occupied Albania. Tunisia, Corsica, Corfu, Gibraltar, Rumania and other areas believed last month to be on the "next" list of the axis powers continue to enjoy the status quo.

IT IS however, in Asia that we find the most striking proof that tensions in Europe have temporarily declined.

The western democracies have reacted toward the Japanese seizure of the International Settlement at Amoy in a manner far different from the way they reacted to the seizure of Hainan and the Spratly Islands and the steady closing of the Open Door. That indicates they do not, at the moment, fear a coup by the axis. The landing of British, American and French sailors and marines at Amoy shows a determination hitherto noticeably absent to resist Japanese encroachments.

But this readiness to act in defense of threatened interests in the Far East might not have been shown had the situation in Europe been as critical as it was five and six weeks ago.

THE WESTERN powers have been wise in taking advantage of the breathing spell in Europe to mend their fences in the Far East. But it would be foolhardy in the extreme to assume that this breathing spell will be of indefinite duration.

What has happened during these five weeks is the re-establishment of something resembling a new balance of power in Europe and one which, potentially at least, is weighted on the anti-axis side.

Up to now Germany and Italy have been able to throw their respective weight against one victim at a time and since each of these victims has been small and relatively very much weaker than the aggressor, the axis powers have had it all their own way. Not Austria nor Czecho-Slovakia nor Lithuania nor Albania could hold out against the overwhelming force directed against them.

AS IT HAPPENS, there is probably not a nation in Europe, not even Great Britain or France, which, if forced to fight the axis without allies, could anticipate victory. Most of them are much weaker than was Czecho-Slovakia before Munich. The obvious strategy of the axis, therefore, has been first to isolate, then to destroy, its victim and to do so, if possible, with a minimum expenditure of military force.

That policy came a cropper after the occupation of Prague and the attack on Albania. For then it became apparent even to Great Britain that, ultimately, they might be placed in the sorry position in which Czecho-Slovakia had found herself. Alone, Great Britain is not today a match for Germany and certainly not Germany and Italy combined. Nor is France. And Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Hungary, the Scandinavian states and the Baltic republics clearly are not.

THESE CONSIDERATIONS have resulted in a revival, if in truncated form, of the thesis of collective security. What one nation could not do, a combination of them might. Hence Great Britain's alliance with Poland and Turkey and her guarantees of support to Rumania and Greece; hence, also, the effort, so far bungled, to bring Russia into the non-aggression camp.

These developments, plus the institution of conscription in Great Britain and a further stepping up of the British rearmament program, have undoubtedly impressed the axis states. But the new system of collective security which the British have been trying to build up remains, as yet, a house without a roof, with leaky plumbing and an uncertain foundation.

If the present is a breathing spell for the non-aggressive states it is also a period in which the totalitarian dictatorships are also not letting any grass grow under their feet. For the moment they find it necessary to subside into silence and relative inaction. But it is certain that they will not stay put any longer than they have to.

Their present period of relative inactivity indicates that they do not underestimate the strength of their enemies. But they have also learned, through long experience, to probe out their weaknesses. And, after all, there is the significant fact that the men who made Munich are still at the helm in London and Paris. Appeasement appears to be dead. It may only be dormant.

Flag Society Lauds N. J. Salute Bill

Industrial Scientists Convene Here

Research Problems Affecting Consumer Are Discussed

An organization of the Nation's industrial scientists opened its first annual convention in Washington yesterday, discussing problems whose solution affects consumers everywhere.

The group, known as the Industrial Research Institute, is affiliated with the National Research Council, in whose building the meeting is being held. Members of the institute are research directors and workers of companies manufacturing everything from soap to steel.

Discuss Science Tour

"This country has 1,765 industrial research units which spend $300,000,000 a year," explained Maurice Holland, executive officer. "Eleven hundred of these units have a personnel of 10 or less. The institute is primarily for their benefit."

At the opening of the meeting yesterday the members discussed what they had just seen on a "science travel tour" to the Hoover Company plant in Ohio, the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. laboratories in Pittsburgh and the Hercules Powder Co. experimental station in Wilmington, Del.

Robert Potter Speaks

H. W. Graham, of Pittsburgh, is chairman of the executive committee, successor to Robert B. Colgate, vice president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.

At a banquet held at the Hotel Mayflower last night Robert Potter, news editor of Science Service, spoke on "What Is News in Science?"

New Subspecies of Flea Bubonic Plague Carrier

A new subspecies of flea which is a potential carrier of bubonic plague was described yesterday by the United States Public Health Service. The insect is the parasite of a Colorado prairie dog.

Prairie dogs are not dogs but burrowing rodents, first cousins of ground squirrels and marmots.

The Farm Program

By Mark Sullivan

Noncompulsory?

THE FOLLOWING letter was sent by Triple A to a farm owner in a Southern State. It is signed by a subordinate of Secretary Wallace, the county agent of the county in whcih the farm is located. It is a form letter, except that blanks are left for the figures, which are filled in. I assume that millions of similar letters were sent to farmers all over the country. The letter reads:

Dear Sir:—This is to inform you that the general depleting acreage allotment for your farm for 1939 is 42.1 acres. In other words the total acres of corn, oats, rye, barley, sorghum, millet, sudan grass and truck crops outside of the home garden, harvested in 1939, should not exceed this amount. This acreage is in addition to your wheat allotted acreage.

Last September you were notified that your wheat allotment for harvest in 1939 is 7.9 acres. This acreage has been checked and if you have exceeded this amount you will be notified and may destroy the excess (if not more than 5.0 acres) before May 15 if you desire to comply with the Agricultural Conservation Program.

For purposes of the Agricultural Conservation Program the appraised yield per acre of wheat on your farm is 8 bushels per acre.

The County Committee realizes that all appraised yields in the county are probably too low, however, it was necessary to cut the appraised yields in order to comply with the county allotment.

This program is not compulsory and this statement is being mailed to you so that you may get the full benefits of the program if you so desire.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION COMMITTEE, By County Agent."

'Not Compulsory' But Highly Attractive

THAT LETTER says that the limitation of acres the farmer may plant is "not compulsory." No, it happens not to be compulsory in this case.

But in the last line of the letter the farmer is told that he must comply if he wants to get the full benefits of the program." These benefits are important. In the case of wheat, a farmer who complies with Triple A gets about 17 cents per bushel as a "conservation payment," and about 12 cents as a "parity payment." The sum, 29 cents, is quite material at a time when wheat sells at about 60 cents a bushel.

For a gratuity of 29 cents a bushel, the farmer submits to Triple A's condition. He consents to control of his farm and himself. Thus a precedent is established; a system gets under way. Presently, without doubt, the gratuity will be withdrawn—but the system will continue. Every intelligent farmer must know that the immense appropriations of money for paying these benefits and gifts will come to an end some time. But the farmer will have been geared into the system.

Cotton Raiser Forced Into U. S. Program

BESIDES, with respect to one crop, cotton, the system is already compulsory. A cotton raiser must raise only what Triple A says he may raise—or pay a punitive tax of half the value of any excess he raises.

Even in the case of wheat, involved in this letter, the system could have been compulsory this year, or any year. If Secretary Wallace has chosen to impose a quota, and if a referendum had resulted in adopting the quota, the farmer addressed in this letter would have been obliged to do what the letter tells him to do—or suffer a penalty in the form of a heavy tax on the excess of wheat he raised. Mr. Wallace says the word "compulsory" cannot fairly be used when, in referendum, 66 out of each 100 farmers vote in favor of the quota. But it is certainly compulsory on the other 34.

'It's A Mad World, My Masters'

THE PERSON addressed in this letter happens to be a considerable landowner. Habitually he plants some 200 acres in various crops. This letter from Triple A tells him he may plant exactly 50 acres.

The second paragraph of the letter is especially worth noting. If the farmer last fall planted more wheat than Triple A said he should, but if in the spring he repents and wants to conform, he could get back into grace. He could "destroy the excess" by May 15. That date is about five weeks before the wheat would be ripe.

Well, I suppose we still have liberty to quote a line that seems to call for frequent quotation these days:

"It's a mad world, my masters."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Crux Of The Recovery Problem

THE GREAT achievement of Senator O'Mahoney's committee is that it has succeeded in defining the problem of recovery. If the country, if Congress, and if the President would only fix in mind the elementary and fundamental proposition that has now been demonstrated by the testimony of Prof. Hansen and Dr. Currie, there would be a lot more light and very much less heat in the current controversies.

In fact, a full understanding of the proposition would go far to resolve the deadlock between Congress and the Administration, and between Washington and the business community. The underlying truth, on which competent men are now agreed, would, if it were sufficiently realized, dispel a large part of the confusion, the suspicion and the destructive divisions that are paralyzing this country at home and impairing its influence abroad.

I know this is a large assertion, and it may seem rather simple-minded these days to believe that there is such a thing as truth which can prevail over prejudice and partisanship. But, nevertheless, I believe that violent and irreconcilable controversy would give way to constructive debate among men, be they economists, Republican businessmen or New Dealers, who have studied and digested the Hansen and Currie testimony.

Capital Investment Determines Prosperity

THE FUNDAMENTAL proposition that has been demonstrated in their testimony is, as Prof. Hansen put it, that "the margin of income which is created by the capital goods industries . . . fills the gap between prosperity and depression." It is, in other words, the money spent on machinery and on all kinds of construction which determines whether times are good or bad, whether there is full employment or unemployment.

We have, of course, heard this before. We have heard it a thousand times from Wall street bankers, from corporation managers, from Republican orators, from conservative editors. But we are now hearing it also from the President, from this committee which has in charge the laying of the basis for New Deal policy, and from economists who are among the most trusted technical advisers of the Administration.

So at least on this proposition, that recovery depends on capital investment, there exists complete agreement in all quarters. We can go further. We can now say in fairly specific figures what is the problem of recovery. According to disinterested calculations which are not, I think, disputed, the annual capital investment in the United States needs to be about 18 billions a year. This was the average for 1923 to 1929, and with that much capital investment the Nation will be prosperous, its income will be between 75 and 80 billions.

Flow Of 18 Billions Needed Every Year

THE FIGURE that the layman needs to keep in mind is this 18 billions of capital investment needed for prosperity. He can realize how crucial it is when he sees that in 1931, capital investment fell to less than 9 billions, in 1932 to about 3 billions. This fall in capital investment at the depth of the depression brought the whole nation's income down from well over 70 billions to a little more than 40 billions. So it is clear that to be worried about the amount of capital investment is to be worried about the fundamental difference between national riches and national poverty, between bad times, fairly bad times, and really good times.

Broadly speaking, the problem of recovery is, therefore, the problem of getting 18 billions invested each year. That is what is worrying Wall Street and that is what is worrying the New Dealers who are putting their minds on the subject.

Now, we can get further light on the problem by comparing national investments in 1925, which was a good year, with 1937, which started out to be the best year the country has known since the crash. In 1925 the Nation made capital investments, that can be accounted for, of nearly 17 billions. In 1937, with a considerably larger population, the Nation managed to invest 15 billions.

ALMOST CERTAINLY that explains why in 1925 there was no serious unemployment, whereas in 1937 there was, along with much prosperity, a great mass of unemployment. To have had as full employment in 1937 as we had in 1925, we should have invested more capital because there were more people to be employed. But actually we invested somewhat less capital.

We can get still more light on the problem by comparing the main items of capital investment in 1925 and in 1937.

The first thing we must observe is that contrary to the general belief there was no spectacular change in the amount of capital invested by Government. The real difference between Government spending, financed by the sale of bonds, between the best year of Coolidge and the best year of Roosevelt is that under Coolidge it was the States and cities that did the investing, whereas under Roosevelt it was the Federal Government.

Politically this is an important and serious difference. But economically total Government investment in 1937 was only about $800,000,000 as compared with $527,000,000 in 1925. Between Coolidge and Roosevelt, Government power became greatly centralized, but Government investment increased only a little.

THE NEXT THING we observe is that the capital investment in mining and manufacturing was substantially larger in 1937 than in 1925, about $3,000,000,000 as against $2,600,000,000. So we may say that, taken together, Government, manufacturing and mining were investing rather more in 1937 than in 1925. The origin of the unemployment is, therefore, not there.

It is perfectly clear where the unemployment originates. In 1937 railroads and utilities invested nearly $800,000,000 less than they did in 1925. But what is even more important, housing in 1937 employed nearly $4,000,000,000 less than in 1925. On the other hand, in 1937 over $4,000,000,000 were invested in inventories, in stocks of goods that had not been sold. But in 1925 only $1,500,000,000 were invested in inventories.

Thus the fundamental difference between the prosperity of 1925 and of 1937 was, first, that with a larger population less capital was invested, and, second, that whereas in 1925 a large proportion of capital was invested in railroads, utilities and housing, in 1937 it was invested in inventories. These two things explain why with prosperity there was still unemployment in 1937, and why the prosperity of 1937, since so much of it depended on inventories, was so feeble and so temporary.

IT MAY ALSO explain why the prosperity of 1925 developed into a boom that ended in a crash, whereas the prosperity of 1937 turned into a recession which has become the present stagnation. That is a cardinal point which needs to be studied much more thoroughly.

In any event, we know at least what our problem is. The problem is how to induce the investment of about 18 billions annually in such a way that we do not get the excessive construction of the late 20's and the excessive inventories of 1937.

The real differences of opinion among competent men begin here. For there are some who think that railroads, utilities, and housing could now invest enough capital to restore employment if only the Government would encourage profits and remove various restrictions. There are others who do not believe that private enterprise, even if liberated, could take sufficient capital to provide full employment. They argue, therefore, that Government investment must not only continue but that it should be expanded.

The difference between these two schools of thought, the one that of most businessmen, the other that of the leading economists and of the reformers in the New Deal, is the area of true debate. The question to be debated is how much capital private enterprise could invest under favorable conditions and how much Government investment is needed to supplement it.

Private Enterprise Needs Encouraging

THIS DEBATE is confused, however by the intervention of two groups of extremists. There are the very reactionary who are dogmatically opposed to the whole idea of expenditures for social services. There is the radical group inside the New Deal, who do not want private enterprise to invest what it can, because their objective is not social reform or recovery but the substitution of political for private control of the industrial system.

Were the confusion wrought by these reactionaries and radicals clarified and dispelled, we should soon see that actually the choice is not between private and public investment. We should see that our real task is to encourage private enterprise to invest what it can and then to supplement it by public investment.

Home Economy On The Congressional Plan

Pop—Well, I'm pretty well strapped, so what do you think of buying a new limousine? We've had the old one almost six weeks.

Mom—Once again I wish to emphasize the need of strict economy. It is time to stop waste. We cannot spend our way out of a depression. Go ahead and get a new car, and let's get something more expensive this time!

Pop—I am glad to see you and I are of one mind in the matter of thrift. I yield to no man in my conviction that it is a cardinal virtue. Maybe we ought to buy two cars, one for me and one for you.

Mom—Dear, we must be careful in a crisis that threatens the very future of our home. Did you say two cars or three? It would be nice if the children could have their own sedan.

Pop—I was looking at that house at the shore we were wishing we could afford.

Mom—I am more certain than ever that this is no time for us to even think of buying a new house.

Pop—So am I. So I guess I'll arrange to get it. You see by buying a house now we will put money in circulation, help real estate and help restore confidence.

Mom—But where will we get the money?

Pop—We can worry about that later. I can borrow enough for the down payment. As there is no prospect of our ever being able to make the additional payments I can see no reason why we should hesitate to make the plunge.

Mom—It would be nice if we could have a lake on the property.

Pop—What is the state of the family budget?

Mom—You know we are away in the red and have been for four years.

Pop—It grieves me very deeply to think of extending ourselves under such conditions, in fact I do not hesitate to denounce it as a suicidal course. But we will not only buy the house but get a lake.

Mom—How?

Pop—I haven't any definite idea.

Mom—Good! Go ahead and get the lake. Could we have a waterfall?

Pop—Waterfall at a time like this? Do you suggest when we are practically broke that we should arrange for a waterfall? The very suggestion offends me. It goes against my inborn instincts of economy. Where would you like the waterfall?

Mom—At the end of the trout brook.

Pop—There is no trout brook.

Mom—I can arrange to get a trout brook in my name.

Pop—We must get back to the old-fashioned virtue of thrift and self-denial. What this country needs is an end to extravagance. Yes, we must have a trout brook, by all means. Call up now and put in an order.

Mom—The company took our phone out. We haven't been able to pay for it in over a year.

Pop—Very well, let's build our own telephone plant.

Mom—With what?

Pop—I'm trustee of your mother's estate, am I not? I can use her dough.

Mom—But would that be honest?

Pop—No.

Mom—Very well, let's use it. We will be criticized for our financial policies by the uninformed and the unsympathetic, but a program is a program.

Richardson Memorial Church Is a Tribute To Washington Fireman, Built by Friends

The brief history of Richardson Memorial Church, Colmar Manor, Md., is a saga of struggle, sacrifice, devotion and inspiration.

Standing at McAdoo avenue and Daniels street, the edifice was built with the aid of 75 firemen of 19 companies as a memorial to the late Sgt. Vernon C. Richardson, of Engine Company 17, one of the most popular men in the District of Columbia department.

His Brother

The late sergeant first proposed the congregation on March 3, 1936, at a prayer meeting at Herbert Breeden's home in the community; gave the first donation — $100, and drew up the first plans for the edifice, but never saw his ambition realized.

He was killed in the line of duty on March 10, 1937, just three days after the building loan had been approved by the congregation, originally designated as the Independent Fundamentalist Church. Several days later its name was changed to Richardson Memorial.

Seated last night in his Woodbridge home, the Rev. Byron P. Richardson, pastor, and brother of the late founder of the congregation, with his wife and Mrs. Ethel M. Richardson, the widow, recalled how the firemen sacrificed their off-duty time to help lay the foundation, carpenter, plaster, and wire the church, the cornerstone of which was laid September 16, 1938, by Jesse Jamieson.

Guiding genius behind the project, Jamieson is a member of Engine Company 17, past president of the City Firefighters Association, and was a close friend of the late sergeant.

His Widow

The minister's wife recalled that, on summer days, she carried watermelons to the workmen, many of whom ate during the construction period at the home of Mrs. N. H. Fulton, parishioner, living nearby.

Mrs. Richardson, widow of the sergeant, praised the Colmar Manor Fire Department, whose members pumped water from the site while the foundation was being excavated. Arthur Westburg, Ralph W. Lash, Sam Burch and scores of others, "put their shoulders to the wheel," she added.

While the building was being erected services were held in the Town Hall at Colmar Manor. When the church was ready for occupancy music was played on an organ donated by the Stanton Theater. Obtained through C. Frank Haughawout's efforts, it was reconditioned at little expense. In fact, more than $5,000 was saved in the construction cost through volunteer help, the pastor pointed out.

At present recreational facilities for the summer are being planned, with a tennis court on ground near the church and an open fireplace for weiner roasts.

Among the leaders of the church are N. H. Fulton, Sunday school head; Haughawout, Kenneth Woodring and Fulton, deacons; George Burch, president of the Junior Intermediate Society, of which Mrs. Fulton and Mrs. Byron P. Richardson are advisers.

Richardson

Also Karl H. Voigt, chairman of the board of trustees; Mrs. Harry B. Green of the Missionary Society; Miss Irene Burch, Mary Margaret Voigt, pianist; C. B. Bayne and others.

A former sergeant in the Marine Corps, the Rev. Mr. Richardson serves without salary and is an employe of the Veterans' Administration.

After his honeymoon in Guam in 1922, inspired by missionary work carried on there, he returned to America with Mrs. Richardson to launch a training period for the ministry.

From 1925 to 1927 he studied at the Vermont Avenue Bible School, and in the following year was graduated from the Bible Institute of Washington. He has been teaching for five years at the Washington Bible Institute, 1509 Rhode Island avenue.

Little Stories about GREAT HYMNS

"WHAT A FRIEND WE HAVE IN JESUS"
*Joseph Scriven

"What a friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and grief to bear!
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer!
O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Everything to God in prayer!"

*Joseph Scriven is the author of this hymn. He was born in 1820 in Dublin, Ireland. The circumstance that led to the composition of this hymn was the accidental drowning of a young lady he was engaged to marry. This sad event led him to discover what a Friend he had in Jesus.

How May Girls Who Live Alone in Apartments Keep Their Honor and Also Their Men Friends?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some time when you are not occupied with more urgent questions, perhaps you will discuss one that Marjorie Hillis and Dale Carnegie have missed: How (being a woman) to live alone and not lose men friends?" This appears to be a fairly common problem among Washington's many single women. Several of my unmarried friends have come to me with it. I am not a qualified counselor, since I never found the satisfactory solution prior to my marriage.

It seems desirable for many single women to live alone. For instance, one friend of mine has an apartment by herself because she must do a great deal of typewriting late in the evening. Another finds a bachelor apartment the only way of getting the sleep and rest she needs for carrying on a strenuous job. I lived alone before marriage because I was happier in surroundings furnished and kept according to my particular taste.

But I discovered, as my friends are discovering, that this mode of life constitutes the ideal set-up for alienating men friends. The passing of the old-fashioned chaperone has brought disadvantages along with freedom. Men who, in any other situation, would be well mannered companions and, eventually, perhaps, matrimonially minded suitors, somehow acquire other ideas when conceded entree into an apartment occupied solely by an unattached woman. As one of my friends said the other day: "Sooner or later, usually sooner, the good old charitable offer is all too likely to be made by even the nicest man." (And no doubt this offer is truly charity to many single women!)

It is possible—even necessary, perhaps—to comprehend and accept the fact that men are apt to be more aggressive, biologically, than women. But it is virtually impossible to understand why they are psychologically unable to take a refusal with good grace. It is hard for a woman to understand why she must forfeit a man's friendship because she cannot accept his amorous advances. Yet, no matter how courteously she declines the offer—whether gently, humorously, lightly or seriously—the result is always the same. If the man is convinced she means what she says, he is off to greener pastures.

This is very disillusioning to the girl who had supposed the man liked her as a person and enjoyed her company as a friend. She is likely to suffer from the fear that her manner or behavior somehow "led him on;" that, consciously or unawarely, she was responsible for the denouement and the man's subsequent departure. This makes her unsure of herself, ill at ease and suspicious when the next man appears on the horizon. It would seem that there must be some way in which a girl can convey her code of conduct to a man, without having to state it in so many words . . .

I write all this remembering that I once shed bitter tears over the problem. I came to Washington a widow of 30, but a babe-in-the-woods where men are concerned. I had married my first beau before I was 20, had lived a very protected married life, and after my husband's death had taught in a girls' school. When, at last, I had a place to entertain and could again go out with men, I suppose I was as naive as they come. When I entertained I behaved toward guests as I had behaved in my father's and in my husband's home.

But whether it was the elderly friend of the family, who took me to dinner, gave me paternal advice and then invited himself for the night, or the various Washington bachelors, young and old, with modern ideas, the same old problem came up again and again. The men departed, usually in haste. At the time, I alternately blamed myself and the old masculine tradition about widows. But since then I have come to understand that the trouble was living alone.

The man I married after a few years here in Washington was the only one, who said "Good night" in the apartment house lobby, without suggesting coming in for a cigarette or a nightcap; who saw me every day for two months without making love, and who finally spoke of marriage in the conventional manner. He couldn't have given me a greater compliment. Once or twice I have tried to get from him the man's slant on the woman who lives alone. But he is not interested. It is the woman's problem, after all. He just says: "Boys will be boys, you know." Sincerely,

INTERESTED READER.

The Middle Way

DEAR I. R.: If there is any formula whereby an unattached woman may live alone, enjoy a normal social interchange with men and dispel amorous advances without forfeiting the enterprising male's friendship, I suppose it consists of equal parts finesse and judgment, exercised by the lady. Judgment is necessary for determining whether the gentleman in question is capable of, or a suitable candidate for, friendship; whether he is sufficiently intelligent to know which way the wind is blowing, at a given moment, and sufficiently self-respecting (which presupposes respect for the opinions and preferences of others) to be amenable to reason, and hence eligible to cross a bachelor girl's threshold after 9 p. m., say, for a cigarette and cozy conversation over a "nightcap."

Finesse is necessary for obviating or adroitly dismissing intimate overtures without casting painful reflections upon the man's code of ethics or personal desirability. Most women, I think, are inclined to take "the good old charitable offer" (as you call it) too seriously. They seem to believe that the proposition, once submitted, must be threshed out by discussion then and there, once and for all—when the better way would be deftly to evade the suggestion or gesture, and proceed by cheerful indirection to other topics or activities.

Don't think, however, that I advocate finesse when dealing with the impatient debauchee type of man. The thing to do with him is to throw him out on his ear—if you have been so mistaken as to let him in. But I am of the opinion that any woman who really likes men, and who possesses some intuitive, realistic understanding of masculine nature—which, in most instances, reaches as spontaneously for what it wants as a baby snatches at a shiny bauble—knows instinctively how to transmute masculine aggression into bona fide friendship, if the latter is what she wants. She may not retain each individual man as an ardent suitor, but she may permanently claim the essentially decent man's respect and affection, if deserving of it.

No man ever yet eliminated himself (unless by request) from a woman's calling list simply because he couldn't "get to first base" (as they say among themselves), if, in addition to possessing physical charms most chastely guarded, the woman was—what is vastly more important in most men's eyes—a darn good sport and delightful companion, who demonstrated these qualities in keeping the relationship under control. If a man "drops" a woman the moment he learns that physical conquest is out of the question, she may conclude, I think, that her appeal for him was primarily physical—which is to say that she either did not possess, or did not exert, a fuller repertory of magnetic traits of a mental or social kind.

Make no mistake; the average man is just as disappointed in the woman who takes his "strictly dishonorable" court too literally, either way—whether in succumbing or in how-dare-you-sir-ing—as the average woman is disappointed in him for soliciting her favors. Yet he gives devoted friendship in unstinted measure—compounded of respect, affection and intellectual companionship (of the confidence-swapping and reciprocal advice-giving sort)—to the woman who knows how to keep the record straight without spreading her virtue on with a trowel. Air-Cooled Sheers for Every Age

Both matron and daughter share equally bright spotlights this summer—cast on them by a considerate designer. Harold Eisenberg is the man who caters to the needs of the gray-haired beauty as generously as to the girl just out of her teens. During Mr. Eisenberg's 15 years of flattering the discerning person of good taste he has always preferred elegant fabrics which need little adornment save the woman who wears them. Silk sheers are favorites with him and here are two examples

Blue, Most Flattering Color To Women, Says Designer

Harold Eisenberg Refutes Old Tradition That Men Like Pink; Says Restraint In Dressing Is Essence of Style

The Post Fashion Editor.

This is one of a series of articles on American designers.

"DON'T BELIEVE the tales you hear about men going limp over a pretty girl in pink. That's a trumped-up theory that has little backing from the men themselves."

"This emphatic statement may have some bearing on your adoption of blue this summer, especially as the spokesman was Harold Eisenberg, nationally known creator of distinguished and beautiful clothes. The affable, surprisingly youthful designer, youngest brother in a famous Chicago family of designers, enlarged upon his theories of color and dress while in Washington recently.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Washington Women Wise

"Washington is known as a blue city all over the country," he observed. "While the chic woman of New York or Chicago will streak herself out in black during spring and summer, the Washington woman wears blue, in all shades, the whole year round. This is sensible on her part, for not only is the season's leading color blue, but it is cool looking during the heavy heat of summer. It is the most flattering color in the world to the majority of women."

Mr. Eisenberg also maintains that blue is the color men like best on women. "Pink, though delightful on young girls of perfect coloring," he said, "is a trying color on women of maturity with graying hair and facial lines to contend with. Blue lends enchantment to young and old; it is softening, youth-giving, and makes a man feel the femininity of the woman wearing it."

The sage Mr. Eisenberg, however, brought with him a variety of gowns of both colors to the two Washington shops who feature his originals exclusively. Fortunately that one detriment in the past against blue as a reliable color, that of fading under a blistering sun, has been met this season. Many of the Eisenberg gowns are sheer cottons, though in the past the designer's preference has been toward rich, luxurious fabrics. That means easy sudsing for some of the more humble voiles, ginghams, seersuckers and linens he is sponsoring.

Counsels Restraint

Mr. Eisenberg's 15 years of creating simple elegant frocks have also taught him restraint and selection, which he urges women of all ages to exercise. It has taught him the value of dressing a beautiful woman down a bit, rather than exploiting her wares for long-distance gaze. Especially is he generous to the mature woman in his designs, although his frocks are so straightforward that women from size 10 to 20 search them out.

His most pertinent advice in a season of wavering style trends is, "After a woman reaches size 20, she should shun any silhouette save the straight lined one. She should exercise her taste for confections only in her dress detail. Something soft, like a pleated ruffle or jabot near the face, is enchanting on a woman of approaching age. However, by evening, a woman of any age looks best in simple lines—but—with some trace of coquetry about her gown." Mr. Eisenberg's advocacy of feminizing comes in the form of exquisite hand-worked Swiss or Shiffly embroidery for lingerie collars, or, as seen in one of his most beguiling gowns, eyelet handwork scrolled from top to hem on a white linen sheath.

Some Suggestions

Hand-picking several of his most characteristic frocks for specific types, Mr. Eisenberg selected these themes for the older woman and her debutante daughter. For the former, a dark blue crepe redingote with double patch pockets—worn over a navy sheer of great simplicity. Or, a navy triple sheer long coat over a softly tucked and shirred sheer dress. For the girl in her first bloom of youth, a slick striped seersucker with a great yellow kid belt. Or—and here's the inimitable Eisenberg touch at its best—a black and white checked tissue gingham with a black linen belt and a red-red rose at the lapel. Imagine a lush French rose on gingham! It's charming, and—it pulls that dress out of the domestic's class.

1939 Graduation Frocks Have A Frothy Look

New York (AP). — There's a frothy look to many of this year's graduation frocks.

Accent on femininity in spring fashions has produced a whole school of commencement dresses which are "sheer and sweet."

They are made of organdies, mousseline de soie, dotted swiss, marquisette and sheer embroidered cottons, sometimes trimmed with ruching or lace.

To keep pace with youth's demand for practicality in clothes, more than half of them are so designed that they may be worn later as dance frocks for summer parties. The favorites are cut like evening frocks, with full, sweeping skirts, and are topped by boleros of the same material. Others have puffed sleeved bodices. Something new is a shirtwaist frock of white mousseline de soie which can be worn later as a casual summer dinner dress.

White, of course, is the leader, but there are a number of pale blue, pink, green and yellow frocks

A Woman's New York

New York, May 19.

STEP UP AND shake hands with Marjorie Rose Royce, daughter of Kansas City, and now, at 23, one of the loveliest cultural exhibits of our county fair. Marjorie's name, in the billing of the Crystal Palace, is Rosita Royce, and she is known to current fame as the young lady dancer who has substituted seven darling little doves for the fans of Faith Bacon and the big balloon of Sally Rand.

Like nearly all the young ladies of her uplifting profession, I find La Belle Royce to be a gentle, soft-voiced creature, whose mother is always within hollering distance and whose mind is one-tracked in the direction of her art. Marjorie has been dancing in one way or another since she was a tot of 8 and a pupil of Ruth St. Denis. Since then, with schooling interfering at intervals, she has danced across the Nation about a dozen times. She began her mature career with balloons, and later batted for the Great Rand when Sal stepped out of the Chicago Fair picture.

Now, as far as we all know, she is the only living dove dancer. The climax of this creation comes when the seven highly trained birdies gently remove her filmy gown and shield the resulting epidermis with it until the dance is over. Marjorie says, and I well believe her, that it takes months to train her feathered friends in this way. She also says she has two fully trained teams of seven always on hand, and over 80 birds still in reserve, learning the finer parts of their joint art. She also remarks that they are very temperamental. Perhaps they even picket our heroine demanding lighter gowns, and more and better birdseed. At any rate, I'm sure you will enjoy the novel creation of Miss Royce at our little show—and so, if you will pardon vulgar old slang, will your old men.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I hear that Miriam Hopkins, our friend of stage and screen, is a pretty sick girl, and that she has been ordered to rest by her board of medical strategy. Hope the Georgia Peach minds her doctors better than I do. Aunt Alice drives the medicos crazy, if they were sane before . .

The loveliest of summer night clubs, the Riviera, over on the Jersey shore of the Hudson, has opened bravely for the season, trusting that it will lure plenty of customers from the Fair at the other end of town. Beautiful place, beautiful girls, good grub and the tunes of Ted Fio Rito's band, so long a Hollywood pet . . .

Housewives Warned Of Carpet Beetle

Nothing is quite so repugnant to the average homemaker as discovering insects of any kind scurrying about any part of the home. Generally, it is no reflection on her ability as a housewife, but they are unwelcome visitors, nevertheless.

One that should be watched for with especial vigilance and combated with all the homemaker's resources is a bristly black or brown grub found among clothing in bureau drawers or hiding under loose baseboards, in the cracks of a floor, between the quarter round and the floor or even crawling up a well.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

If Reducing Leaves Muscles Sagging Exercise Is Needed

YOU MAY think we just go along prattling cheerfully of the wonders worked by reducing and blandly ignoring anything that does not turn out so well. If you feel that way about it, you no doubt have a reason for being not entirely overjoyed about your new figure.

Perhaps you took off every pound of weight you were supposed to lose and your midsection is now nice and slim, but you do not have firm, round upper arms; your throatline has gone precipitately downhill; and you still do not measure up to the Balinese maidens pictured in the travel catalogue.

Now, there's a gloomy picture of what can happen on a reducing program! Let's hope that it hasn't happened to you and that you won't let it. Usually in a figure program we hammer away at the hips and waistline because those measurements are the ones most out of line. But you can't concentrate on those measurements to the exclusion of all the others and get the lovely figure you want.

Specialization the Secret

We have worked out some special exercises that will fix the sometimes forgotten measurements in a jiffy.

Well, in a few weeks anyway!

A little throat exercise goes a long way toward beautifying the throat, but the trouble is you are apt to forget to do it. You can make sure of remembering by making your hair brushing double for throat exercise. Every time you brush your hair, tip the head back and brush upward from temples and forehead. Then, as you brush upward from the sides, turn the head over to the sides. You might get in a few more licks of throat exercise when you brush your teeth.

When you have some way of reminding yourself that it is time to exercise the throat muscles, it does not take much thought or time to turn the head slowly from side to side, keeping the chin level, or to drop the head backward and circle it slowly from one shoulder to the other. And you can easily acquire the habit of dashing cold water over the throat night and morning—an excellent astringent and circulation stimulant!

Bouncing Balls Helps

One of the perfect exercises for the feminine figure requires a medicine ball, but this bit of equipment is well worth its price. A 6-pound ball is about right. Toss it into the air and catch it in the outstretched arms. Just keep tossing—and keep the eyes on the ball for throat exercise.

Another good workout for the arm, shoulder and pectoral muscles is to be had by bouncing the ball against a wall, thrusting the arms out at shoulder level for the toss and catch.

A simple routine such as outlined is a figure saver for the reducer, especially when considerable weight is removed, but it is a good practice for any woman, reducing or not, to prevent the unnecessary sagging caused by too little exercise.

Picnic Date

President—Now the next thing is to decide the date for the club picnic.

Mrs. Battle—Madame President, we've ALWAYS had it the first Friday in June.

Chorus—That's too soon!

Mrs. Doodle—Say, I'm very uncertain about the next two weeks. Mr. Doodle may have to go to the hospital any day to have his head operated on.

Chorus—What's the matter?

Mrs. Doodle—It's his sinus——

Mrs. Nitter—Say, don't you let them operate on him! I know a man that had a sinus——

Mrs. Flint—I rise to a point of order.

President—Well what about the second Friday in June?

Mrs. Chipp—Say I've got company coming early in June for the World's Fair.

Chorus—So have I!

Mrs. Joyner—Madame President, I move we have it the third Friday in June.

Mrs. Battle—We've always had it the FIRST Friday——

Mrs. Piney—Friday's a bad day for me. The man always comes to fix the yard.

Mrs. Flytie—I always get my wave set on Friday. The girl saves the time for me.

Mrs. Joyner—All right, we can have it the third Saturday in June—that would be the seventeenth.

Mrs. Battle—We've always had it on FRIDAY——

Mrs. Doodle—I go to market on Saturday.

Mrs. Looney—Another thing, it always rains on the week-end.

Mrs. Yeaman—Madame President, I think Saturday is a bad day. It's just before Sunday.

Mrs. Joyner—All right, what about Thursday.

Chorus—That's maid's day off.

President—We might have it the third Monday——

Mrs. Piney—Monday's a bad day. It's right after Sunday.

Mrs. Nitter—Mr. Nitter and I always go to the movies Monday night——

Mrs. Joyner—Suppose we say the third Tuesday in June?

Mrs. Flytie—Wait! I think that's the day the Kangaroos have their picnic. Mr. Flytie's a Kangaroo——

Mrs. Doodle—Well, of course, we don't want to interfere with the men's date——

Dr. Nannie B. Hopper—Madame President, I don't see why we should upset our plans for the men. Would they put themselves out for us? They would not!

Mrs. Chipp—Well, anyway, I always take Bobby to get his violin lesson on Tuesday. Of course, though, I wouldn't want the picnic upset just for me. I really I don't have to go——

Chorus—Oh yes! Yes!

President—Will the third Wednesday in June suit every one?

Mrs. Nitter—Say, do you think we ought to have the picnic in June? You know a lot of people will be getting married then.

Mrs. Piney—Yes, Mr. Piney's niece is going to be married . . .

Mrs. Flint—I rise to a point of order.

Mrs. Battle—We've always had the picnic on FRIDAY.

Mrs. Flytie—I don't think June's a good month. I'm expecting company the last of June for the World's Fair.

Chorus—So am I!

President—Then suppose we say the first Wednesday in July.

Mrs. Joyner—That's too near the Fourth.

President—What about the middle of July?

Mrs. Nitter—I'm expecting company for the World's Fair in July.

Chorus—So am I!

Mrs. Joyner—What about August?

Mrs. Flytie—There's not a soul in town in August.

Mrs. Piney—Anyway, I'm expecting company——

President—Say, why don't we have a fall picnic—put it over until September?

Mrs. Chipp—I'll have to be getting Bobby off to school then. And another thing everybody'll be buying fall clothes——

Mrs. Flytie—Say, I haven't got a thing for summer yet!

Chorus—I haven't either!

Mrs. Flint—Madame President, I move we hold the picnic the first Wednesday in June a year from next month.

Mrs. Yeaman—Second the motion!

Mrs. Battle—Wait a minute! We've ALWAYS held it on Friday—

D. C. Notables to See Cargo Ships Launched

Maritime Commission to Send Challenge and Red Jacket Down Ways at Kearny, N. J., Today; Mrs. Woodward, Mrs. Moran, Jr., Are Sponsors

A carload of Washingtonians will be present today when the S. S. Challenge and S. S. Red Jacket, two new cargo ships of the United States Maritime Commission, are launched at Kearny, N. J.

The wives of two Maritime commissioners, Mrs. Thomas M. Woodward and Mrs. Edward C. Moran, jr., will serve as sponsors. After the traditional bottles of champagne have been broken across the prows, there will be a reception in the Yard Restaurant Building of the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, commission chairman, is expected to be present, but Mrs. Land will not accompany him. Mr. and Mrs. Moran took with them a party of their friends, among them Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint; Mr. and Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Miss Elizabeth Mann, Mrs. Elizabeth Mae Craig, and Miss Ethel Smalley. Mr. and Mrs. Woodward will have with them their two daughters, the Misses Constance and Carol Anne Woodward.

Since Kearny is just across the river from New York, Mr. and Mrs. Moran left yesterday to enjoy last evening in Manhattan. They are staying at the Hotel Pennsylvania, but expect to return tonight or tomorrow to Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Woodward will be at the Vanderbilt.

Number of Notables Expected to Attend

What the two ladies will wear today depends a bit on the weather. Yesterday Mrs. Moran said that if it is pleasant she will don tweeds, but if cold, would choose a navy-blue suit. The ceremony is scheduled from 10:30 o'clock this morning (daylight saving time).

Also invited to attend were members of the Commerce Committee of the Senate and those on the House Committee of Merchant and Marine and Fisheries, with their wives.

The invitations to the function are unusual and colorful. They show a cargo liner with a huge globe of the world behind it, drawn on squares of bright orange cardboard. A notation says that no cameras are allowed.

Creighton Peet, commission secretary, will be among those present, although pretty Mrs. Peet is remaining in Washington. There is also a possibility that Mayor LaGuardia may attend.

Mrs. Land to Be Luncheon Guest

Tomorrow Mrs. Land will be guest at a luncheon to be given aboard the American Seaman, merchant marine training ship, which will be anchored in the Potomac. The luncheon is in celebration of National Maritime Day, which is on Monday. The best and most completely equipped ship in the world for training merchant marine personnel, it has classrooms, galleys, two machine shops, bake shops and all the facilities for teaching deck and engine crews.

To return to the Challenge and the Red Jacket, they are the third and fourth cargo ships to be built by the commission since it was founded two years or so ago. The commission first remodeled and re-equipped several handsome passenger liners, the Brazil, Argentine and Uruguay. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Land and Mr. and Mrs. Peet enjoyed a trip to South America on the maiden voyage of the Brazil last year.

Mrs. Kavanaugh To Wed Today

With Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney acting as best man, the wedding of Mrs. Hilda Pfabe Kavanaugh to Thomas Quinn Beesley will take place today at noon at St. Matthews' Church. Both the bride-elect and prospective bridegroom are residents of Chicago. The Right Rev. Mgr. Edward L. Buckey will officiate in the presence of a small company of friends.

The matron of honor will be Mrs. Oswald Francis Schuette, of Washington.

Immediately following the ceremony there will be a brief reception in the vestry of the church. The wedding party, including Senator and Mrs. O'Mahoney, Mr. and Mrs. Schuette and Judge and Mrs. Horace J. Donnelly will be entertained at luncheon at the Raleigh Hotel by the bridal couple.

To Make Home In Capital

After a short trip to New York and New England, the couple will make their home in Washington.

Among those who have been invited to attend the ceremony are Senator and Mrs. James M. Mead, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Representative and Mrs. Milton A. Romjue, Representative and Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, Representative Clarence F. Lea and Representative Fred A. Hartley, jr.

Also Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Howes, Gen. James W. Cole, Ramsay S. Black, G. Howland Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. McDermott, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent C. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Milton W. King.

Flew Here For Ceremony

Mrs. Cavanaugh, who flew to Washington for the wedding, will wear today a gown of blue silk trimmed with white pique and a large hat of natural straw trimmed with poppies. Her flowers will be a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

The wedding ring will be an ancient Chinese gift-ring of hand-carved silver and jade. Mr. Beesley selected it in view of the fact that Mrs. Kavanaugh when an undergraduate at the University of Wisconsin visited in the Orient.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Pfabe and the granddaughter of Countess Anna Scyymanska, of Poland.

Mr. Beesley, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beesley, of Chicago, at one time held the post of chief of the Division of Current Information in the State Department. He is a graduate of Princeton.

Mrs. W. W. Sloan Fetes Mrs. Smith And Mrs. Schneider

Mrs. William Wintemute Sloan gave a luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday for Mrs. Walton W. Smith and her mother, Mrs. B. A. Schneider, of Laurel, Miss. Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Smith will leave shortly for the West Coast.

Others present at the luncheon were Mrs. John K. Griffith, wife of Representative Griffith; Mrs. Daniel Lynch, Mrs. John Anderson, Mrs. Watson W. Eldridge, Mrs. George H. Fonken, Mrs. Wallace Frankland, Mrs. Christian F. Getsinger, Mrs. William Gower, Mrs. Arthur B. Gilbert, Mrs. Wallace Frankland, Mrs. Christian F. Getsinger, Mrs. William Gower, Mrs. Arthur B. Shoppers To Aid Hotel Picketers

Alexandria Party To Follow Fete at Home of Mrs. Lewis, Climax Convention

by Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Society Editor.

A picketing party tonight in front of the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, following a garden party at the home of Mrs. John L. Lewis this afternoon will climax the two-day convention of the National League of Women Shoppers which opened its sessions yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

The organization, composed of women of the consumer group who desire to give active support to labor frequently joins strikers in the picket lines. Several of the Washington members have picketed with the nine waitresses on strike at the George Mason Hotel ever since last January. All of the delegates here for the convention have been invited to join the picket line at the dinner hour this evening. They will go there directly from the garden party, for which Mrs. Lewis is opening her home as a benefit for the Southern Summer School for Workers.

Panel Discussion At Lunhecon

A luncheon at the Mayflower at noon, with Mrs. Gifford Pinchot presiding, will feature a panel discussion of labor problems. Participants will be James McNamara, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union of the A. F. of L., who congratulated the Washington League on its picketing during the hotel strike here in the late winter; Lee Pressman, general counsel for the C. I. O.; Gardner Jackson, of Labor's Non-Partisan League; Nels Anderson, of the WPA; Mike Ross, of the National Labor Relations Board, and Carroll Daugherty, of the Wage nad Hour Administration.

Election of officers and approval of the revised constitution also are scheduled.

Mrs. Arthur Garfield Hays, of New York, national president, opening yesterday's session, declared that any strengthening of the labor movement constituted a bulwark against "isms" which threaten democracy. She said the league offered an outlet to the consumer who desired to throw her influence with labor.

Mrs. Hays also advocated the league's co-operation with other organizations interested in strengthening the labor movement. There is a division of opinion on such joining of forces, however, and this promises to be a center of discussion during the convention.

Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, president of the local organization which, with a paid-up membership of 500, is the largest in the country, opened her home last night for a buffet supper for the delegates and some of the local members.

20th Century Club to See Antiques

Mrs. Husband to Open Her Home For a Tour and Tea Tuesday

Varying the house and garden tours popular at this season, Mrs. Walter W. Husband, past president and program chairman of the Twentieth Century Club, will be hostess Tuesday at an "antique tour" for members of the club especially interested in heirlooms.

Her home, 3456 Macomb street, is furnished with pieces handed down in her family from the Revolutionary War period and before. Members of the club who know of her old things have requested that she open her home to them and the "antique tour" Tuesday is the result.

Outstanding among the heirlooms is Mrs. Husband's collection of Bennington ware and St. Johnsbury pottery, made by her ancestors in Vermont. The Bennington ware, more than 100 years old, includes two quaint cow pitchers which were used for milk, a collection of teapots and bowls. The ware is noted for its glaze and is in tones of brown.

Pitchers, jugs, churns, bottles, ink wells and three crockery milk pans are included in the St. Johnsbury collection. These pieces, all in blue and gray or black and gray were made by her great grandfather, Gen. Richard Fenton, of the Vermont militia. She also has some pink luster ware which she remembers her grandmother using.

One of the St. Johnsbury pieces which always interests visitors, she says, is in the shape of a book and is marked "Departed Spirits." It is actually a container for liquor and is said to have been used to carry spirits to church.

A map made by her grandmother in 1823 at the academy she attended in St. Johnsbury is another of the things which will be on display.

The tea served following the tour will be in keeping with the occasion. Mrs. Husband expects to use a red linen tablecloth which belonged to her grandmother and to serve old-fashioned refreshments, including ginger and cream cookies and doughnuts. The tea service too will be old and the hour will be marked by a grandfather clock of the Revolutionary period.

Frederick's Slum Plan Hangs Fire

City Council Fails to Decide on Espousal Despite Pressure Of Federal Aides

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, May 19.—Federal officials who asked a "yes-or-no" answer from the city council on the proposed slum clearance project had to be content with "maybe" today.

W. Clinton McSherry, chairman of the Frederick Housing Authority, asked the council for a final ruling on the proposal to raze 79 white homes and 40 colored dwellings for replacement by low rental housing projects.

Aldermen staged a lengthy discussion, but ended their pro-and-con talk with no vote taken on municipal espousal of the project.

It was brought out at the meeting that several aldermen felt the project had been "hanging fire" too long and had been "kicked around" until there was little local interest in the plan.

McSherry told Mayor Lloyd C. Culler that the USHA had requested the Frederick Housing Authority to submit a contract to the local unit. McSherry said the national authority planned to take final action on the Frederick proposed by May 25. He urged the council to express definite approval or disapproval before that time.

In the course of the discussion, it was suggested that the city "wash its hands of the whole business." Aldermen were unable to agree at a previous meeting on an expression of policy.

Council members said the city had already expended $2,400 in preliminary surveys, and pointed out that the sums will be lost if the project is dropped.

Aldermen also expressed fear that architects' fees could be charged against the city.

Charlottesville, Va., May 19.—Scoring a total of 192 points, Greenwood High School, located near Mirador, childhood home of Lady Nancy Astor, won the championship cup at annual rally day of Albemarle schools. Second place went to Broadus Wood High, at Earlysville, which nosed out Scottsville High by a fraction of a point.

The concrete stands at Lambeth Field, at the University of Virginia, scene of many a thrilling gridiron battle before Scott Stadium was built, were filled today with more than 5,000 residents of Albemarle, assembled to witness the annual program.

Approximately 3,000 children from the eight accredited high schools and 34 elementary schools competed for honors from 10 o'clock until 5 o'clock this afternoon—a youth physical education program without equal in the State.

Woodbridge Wins Cup

The second cup offered for one, two and three room schools was annexed by Woodbridge, in the eastern part of the county, near the Fluvanna line.

In the tennis finals, Glenn La Force and Thomas Kirtley, of Stony Point School, defeated Charles Johnson and Bobby Alwood, of McIntire School.

Among the girls, the doubles team of McIntire School, Catherine Waddell and Nancy Loving, captured first honors by defeating Mary Christian Garth and Pegy Jean Radford, of Crozet School.

Dr. Overstreet Wants Society Bright as Man

'Individually Smart, Collectively Dumb' Is Trouble, He Says

The great problem before America and the world is how to "expand individual intelligence into social intelligence," Prof. Harry A. Overstreet, head of the Department of Philosophy of the College of the City of New York, last night told members and guests of the Social Hygiene Society at its annual dinner at the Y. W. C. A.

"We Americans are individually intelligent, but collectively dumb," he said, "and I am not so sure that that is not the trouble with the world."

The solution lay, Overstreet said, in the expansion of adult education. "Adults ought to know about the interdependencies of life," he declared. He recommended "a good stiff course in propaganda analysis" and one in "co-operative techniques."

"We will some day find another kind of George Washington who will make us see that we must no longer be collectively dumb," he said.

The following were elected to the board of directors of the Social Hygiene Society:

For re-election, three-year terms—Albert W. Atwood, Mrs. Samuel G. Blythe, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, H. H. Hazen, M. D.; Surg. Gen. Marrittee W. Ireland, U. S. A. (retired); Elizabeth Kittredge, M. D.; Ella Oppenheimer, M. D.; Louise Tayler-Jones, M. D.; Lida J. Usilton, Assistant Surg. Gen. R. A. Vonderlehr, U. S. Public Health Service; W. W. Wheeler, and Mrs. Eleanor N. Walker. For election, three-year terms, Vincent Siccard and James V. Bennett. For election, two-year terms, Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, Mrs. Maurice Friedman and Richard Lee Sylvester, M. D.

Gerstenfeld Installed as Rabbi Here

Christian Leaders Assist in Inducting Washington Hebrew Congregation Leader

A pale-faced young man, visibly moved by the honor and responsibility laid on his shoulders, was installed last night as rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation with solemn and impressive services at the congregation's temple.

The new rabbi, 34-year-old, English-born Norman Gerstenfeld, was charged by his former teacher, Dr. Julian Morgenstern, president of Hebrew Union College, at Cincinnati, with a text from Ezekiel, "I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me."

Assisting in the ceremonies were Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, of Adas Israel Congregation, Dr. Albert J. McCartney, chairman of the Committee of Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, who read the text, and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, who delivered the sermon.

Dr. Simon Praised

Paying glowing tribute to Rabbi Gerstenfeld's predecessor, the late Dr. Abram Simon, Bishop Freeman declared that "God buries his workman, but carries on his work." To "stiffen in his task" the young incumbent, Bishop Freeman asked him and his congregation to face a new age with confidence and to banish the fear and pessimism which "inimical trends" of today's world call up.

He asked for "freshened courage, freshened hope, increasing realization of the power of Almighty God."

Dr. Morgenstern, at whose college Rabbi Gerstenfeld was ordained only six years ago, asked the new leader to make the Washington congregation the pattern among congregations throughout the country, in order to represent Judaism in the Capital not by a flag or an ambassador "but by a house of prayer."

Firemen to Honor Him

Dr. Gerstenfeld, who has been associate rabbi of the congregation since 1935, is a graduate of Chicago University and has studied at Harvard, London and Jerusalem universities. He was a fellow of philosophy at Hebrew Union College.

Representatives of the District Firemen's Association today will present Rabbi Gerstenfeld with an association badge, formally inducting him as a chaplain of the organization. Dr. H. A. Kester, of Congress Street Methodist Church, and the Rev. Thomas B. Dade, of St. Patrick's Church, were installed as chaplains this past week.

Presentation ceremonies will be held at 9:30 a. m. in the temple, with Abraham Goldwater, of Twenty-first Engine Company, and H. F. Bell, of Twenty-fourth Engine Company, representing the association.

Middie to Get 'Son of '97' Sword

Midshipman Thomas Comins Hart will receive the sword. He is the son of Rear Admiral T. C. Hart, of the Shoreham Hotel, who was a member of the class of '97. An inscription on the sword will read: "To the Eleventh Son of Ninety-seven to Graduate from the U. S. N. A." Lieut. Comdr. John W. Morse, U. S. N. (retired), of 2337 California street northwest, is secretary of the '97 class.

Jeanette MacDonald Star In 'Broadway Serenade;' Barnet Band on Stage

"BROADWAY SERENADE," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Lew Lipton, John Taintor Foote and Hans Kraly, adapted to the screen by Charles Lederer, starring Jeanette MacDonald, with Lew Ayres, Ian Hunter, Frank Morgan, Wally Vernon, Rita Johnson, Virginia Grey, William Gargan, Katherine Alexander, Al Shean, Esther Dale, Franklin Pangborn, E. Allyn Warren, Paul Hurst, Frank Orth, Esther Howard, Leon Belasco, Kitty McHugh and Kenneth Stevens. Musical direction by Herbert Stothart. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

There is even a sink in "Broadway Serenade." Of course, it would be mere quibbling to mention that it is not a kitchen sink; it is just a dressing room basin, but as such it serves its purpose, for the Capitol's new Jeanette MacDonald musical film has absolutely everything else. One the stage, Charlie Barnet's orchestra presents more music in swing time.

There is that nostalgic old story about the beautiful—and innocent—young singer who captivates just the right people in time to evolve into the toast of New York. There is the firm—but honest—young man, whose music, you are told without reservation by another very honest individual, is a veritable amalgamation of Wagner, Chaikovski and Strauss, although it really is all Chaikovski and all "None but the Lonely Heart." The young composer conceives some notion of how a shepherd's pipe was the inspiration for that haunting melody and, with the conspiracy of a Broadway producer, manages to bring the song up to date.

Song Presents Problem

Bringing a song that is a universal favorite "up to date" turns out to be some problem. It involves modernistic masks, innumerable staircases, a stage about as large as the New York World's Fair and enough changes of tempo to give the Washington Monument the heebee-jeebees.

Miss MacDonald struggles gracefully with all of this opposition, but it is difficult for anyone to seem anything but ridiculous when, as Butterfly, she is forced to sing her "Un Bel Di" aria not to one Suzuki, but some eight or ten under a bridge that looks as if it is spanning the Golden Gate. Lew Ayres, as the ambitious composer, manages to bring more credibility to his role than one might suspect. Frank Morgan is occasionally amusing as the forgetful producer, whose "Revue of 1939" has been running over two years before "Broadway Serenade" reaches its finale. Ian Hunter is the Britisher who "angels" Mr. Morgan's production and Rita Johnson and Virginia Grey are two feuding chorus girls. Wally Vernon is completely successful as a pop-eyed individual who threatens to put the jinx on the whole show by his evil eye.

Swing on Stage

On the Capitol stage Charlie Barnet and his orchestra swing the current songs with a good deal more zest than the film achieves. It is the swingiest sort of swing this band offers, but, of its kind, it is expert and finished. Saxaphonist of the top rank, Mr. Barnet leads his men in arrangements that stress his instrument. "Scotch and Soda" and "Echoes of Harlem," two of the most popular Barnet recordings, are the show-stoppers until the band's songstress, Judy Ellington, comes on. She is a pert and lively blonde, who sings "It Ain't Whatcha Do, It's Hotcha Do It," and "The Lady's in Love." The Barnet group brings its act to a climax with "The Battle Cry for Jitterbug Land."

As master of ceremonies, there is an energetic chap, Don Rice, whose humor is much like that of "Hellzapoppin," which would mean one either likes him very much or not at all. He has some hefty gags and a group of imitations which found favor with yesterday afternoon's audience.

Nora Williams, the good-natured quart-sized songstress who introduced "Piccolo Pete," brings back that number with amusing variations and also sings "Hold Tight" and "The Angels Sang." The Robbins Brothers and Margie open the variety bill with some tricky dance creations, titled "Unusualities."

Columbia

"Stagecoach" carries its oddly assorted cargo of passengers to an inevitable return engagement at Loew's Columbia this week.

Walter Wanger knows how to handle contrasting types, and so his characters are played against each other until the tension inside the plunging coach is almost intolerable. The coach is plunging because it is trying to make a run before the rampaging Indians get within scalping distance. That the cavalry arrives just in time is an engaging facet of the plat, which utiliizes old standby story devices and yet manages to be fresh and exciting.

Seven passengers ride in the stagecoach—a banker (Barton Churchill), an Army officer's wife (Louise Platt), a fancy woman called Dallas (Claire Trevor), the Ringo Kid, escapee from the pen (John Wayne), a mousey whisky salesman (Donald Meek), an inebriated doctor (Thomas Mitchell), a tinhorn gambler with wellborn flourishes of gallantry (John Carradine). Driving the team is Curly (Andy Devine), and beside him sits Chuck (George Bancroft), with rifle poised for a sight of Indian-and-pony silhouetted against the skyline.

Mr. Wanger has his banker deliver some scorchingly satiric lines about what this country needs, double-edged words which are poignantly fitting to this modern day. Each character is gemlike in its complete entity.

Dramatically unfolding their idiosyncrasies in the boxlike interior of the swaying coach, the people grow into mammoth proportions and are graven on the minds of the audience until the antiquity of the plot is forgotten. Fragile yet sturdy as a prairie flower is the romance which develops between the Ringo Kid and Dallas. Thomas Mitchell, with his marvelously plastic face is the most unforgetable of the seven, if first choices must be made.

Filmed on the Painted Desert, the wild scenery fits into the primitive emotionalizing and makes it all blood and thunder make-believing which is tonic and stimulating.

Accompanying shorts and newsreels are adequate and satisfying.

Richard Dix Gains Stature in Title Role of 'Man of Conquest'

Story of Houston Is Perfect Vehicle; Wayne King Scores On Earle Stage

"MAN OF CONQUEST," Republic picturization of a story by Harold Shumate and Wells Root, adapted to the screen by Wells Root, E. E. Paramore, jr., and Jan Fortune, starring Richard Dix, with Gail Patrick, Edward Ellis, Joan Fontaine, Ralph Morgan, Robert Barrat, Victor Jory, Robert Armstrong, George Hayes, C. Henry Gordon, Janet Beecher, Pedro de Cordoba, Max Terhune, Kathleen Lockhart, Ferris Taylor and Leon Ames. Directed by George Nicholls, jr. Previewed Wednesday, May 17. At the Earle Theater.

"Man of Conquest," on the screen at the Earle Theater this week, is the heroic and inspiring story of Sam Houston. Sam Houston is a figure in American history who deserves to be known intimately, for what he was and what he did. This picture will stand as a bit of a monument to his exalted Americanism, willingness to fight for freedom and the achievements that set the seal to his patriotism.

BELL

"Man of Conquest" quite probably distorts a few of the facts in the life of Sam Houston, but it compiles so impressive a record of personal accomplishments that this occasional indulgence in "dramatic license" on the part of the authors easily can be condoned.

In the early sequences of the picture there is, perhaps, a little too much of the torch-light flamboyance of political campaigning, but once the action gets into its full swing there is disclosed a panorama of tempestuous melodrama that is little less than overwhelming. The developments of the story are logically pursued and compound cumulative intensity until the thundering climax of the Battle of San Jacinto, in which Houston outmaneuvered Santa Anna and his Mexican hordes, following the debacle of the Alamo.

Was a Man of Parts

Houston was a man of many talents, many moods and many idiosyncrasies. Having been a member of Congress and twice Governor of Tennessee, he became then, according to the film's revelations, a member of the Cherokee tribe of Indians and attended a Presidential ball at the White House in Indian garb. This, I suspect, is a trifle fictitious. Nevertheless, his close association with Andrew Jackson made it possible for that eminent leader to talk Houston back into the white race. With trouble brewing in the Southwest, this stalwart patriot set out to do something about Texas. Again Jackson prevailed upon him to make his conquest one redounding to the glory of the Union rather than to his own personal aggrandizement. This all is woven into a drama that moves with speed, conviction and, as I have said, a constantly mounting degree of dramatic suspense that culminates in a climax of tremendous excitement and power.

While these essentially political aspects of the play are being expounded, time is found to reveal something of the romantic life of a fighter and a statesman whose first love affair was a deadening failure and whose second was one of idyllic beauty. Eliza Allen, a gently bred girl of Tennessee's aristocracy, could not adjust herself to the seemingly wild life led by her husband. Margaret Lea, a daughter of the rugged Western country herself, found in Houston an ideal mate.

The Cast Excels

There are so many ramifications of plot in this far-flung and important drama that they may not all be detailed here. Despite the diversity and intricacy of the tasks laid upon them, the cast acquits itself with extraordinary credit. Richard Dix has had no such role as his present one since "Cimarron." He brings to it a complete equipment to make it one of the memorable creations of the season's cinema. Gail Patrick, as Margaret Lea, and Joan Fontaine, in the much smaller role of Eliza Allen, both lend the film graceful and ingratiating feminine touches.

Among the supporting players there are several who contribute exceptionally fine character portrayals. Foremost among them is Edward Ellis ("A Man to Remember") in the role of Andrew Jackson. Mr. Ellis brings to his part something of the strength that might have been Andrew Jackson's. Another splendid character creation is that of Lannie Upchurch, by George Hayes. This is one of the outstanding performances of the play. Then there are Ralph Morgan, Robert Barrat, Victor Jory, C. Henry Gordon, Robert Armstrong, Janet Beecher and Pedro de Cordoba, all in assignments to which they bring the richness of ripe experience and great talent. The production is commensurate with the distinction of the artists who appear in it.

King Still Is King

Wayne King and his orchestra make this week's stage bill at the Earle a delightful interlude of music that is mellow and soothing, interspersed with specialties that are of the first rank. There is no need at this time to expatiate upon the high musicianship of Mr. King and his men. They stand at the head of their class. So do Peppino and Camille, the "international dancers"; Dean Murphy, impersonator, and Lynn, Roy and Van, a trio of skilled and graceful dancers who go burlesque about midway of their offering with extremely comic effect.

It seemed to me yesterday afternoon that Dean Murphy was stretching his character impressions into too great length, but he turned out to be the only "show-stopper" on the bill, so I must have been wrong. He pays his respects to the White House in double-barreled measure.

The Paramount News completes a bill that is commended to every judicious theater-goer.

RICHARD DIX

as he appears in the title role of "Man of Conquest," the Republic production now on view on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. In the character of Sam Houston, Dix restores himself to the ranks of the cinema's most competent and most forceful actors. He is surrounded by a cast of unusual strength

The New Yorker

New York, May 19.

RADIO DEPARTMENT: Last week Washington's radio commentators won their long fight to be admitted to the hallowed press section in the Senate and the House . . . They immediately formed an organization to preserve their rights—but already there is dissension . . . One faction wants the organization to be known as the "Radio Correspondents' Association." Because the initials would be RCA—parent company of the National Broadcasting System—the other faction, representing the rival Columbia Broadcasting System, insists that the name be "Capitol Broadcasting Society."

FINANCE DEPARTMENT: John Barrymore's legal woes still are undetermined . . . In Chicago Barrymore confided to friends that his next legal headache will result from the agreement made with his ex-wife, Dolores Costello—an agreement to support their children.

THEATER DEPARTMENT: One of the scenes in the Federal Theater's musical, "Sing For Your Supper," had a topsy-turvy theme wherein everything is shown in reverse . . . George S. Kaufman was invited to assist the production, and made one suggestion for this scene—that picketers parade their signs across the stage . . . The actors, however, refused to carry the suggested signs even if the sketch was labeled as an everything-backwards presentation. The picket signs were to read: "Put Tom Mooney Back in Jail."

FASHIONS DEPARTMENT: John Fredericks, who helped popularize those weird hats worn by the ladies, received this complaint from one of his recent customers—who had purchased a lilies-of-the-valley creation . . . She donned the hat and proceeded to an undertaker's establishment where services for a departed friend were being conducted . . . Because the room was warm, she removed the hat and set it down on the seat beside her. An usher whispered: "Thank you for your thoughtfulness," and placed it gently—among the other bouquets sent by the departed's friends.

BOOK DEPARTMENT: Attorney Geoghan kicked back at Commander Herlands' investigation into padded expense vouchers concerning the detention of Paul Wendel, the witness whose kidnaping and hoax confession postponed Hauptmann's execution for two days . . . Geoghan, however, will be embarrassed in this case—from an unexpected source . . . Wendel is writing a book about his connection with the Lindbergh case. The book will bear the affectionate dedication: "To My Friend —William F. X. Geoghan."

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, ETC.: Look magazine, preparing a story about the President's children, will include this: Some years ago Anna Roosevelt arrived at the White House just at the conclusion of a meeting of women who had come to discuss maternity problems . . . When the last guest had departed, John Roosevelt stepped from behind a portiere . . . "What have you been doing here?" Anna demanded . . . "Sh!" John confessed. "Listening."

LOCAL NEWS: A pianist in Ben Bernie's band is suing Dorothy Lamour, charging that he helped coach her to fame . . . Lawrence Tibbett will help Marian Anderson and two choral groups entertain their Majesties at the White House. They'll sing American folk songs . . . Mrs. Tony Canzoneri has changed her name to Rita Rhoni . . . Mayor LaGuardia is sponsoring a Czecho-Slovakian festival at the 165th Regiment Armory to raise funds to open the Czech Pavilion at the Fair . . . Canada has removed its ban against Ken magazine, which had published a cartoon satirizing King George. Morris Ernst flew to Ottawa, on behalf of Ken, and induced the officials to lift the ban.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT: At the Barter Theater in Virginia, a farmer—leading a cow—sought admission to see the show. "How much is a ticket?" he asked . . . "We have no fixed price," the cashier informed. "You pay for a ticket by giving us vegetables, clothes—well, for example, you have a cow there. Well, if you give us, say, three-quarters of a gallon of milk we'll give you a ticket" . . . And so the farmer secured a can and milked the cow until he had three-quarters of a gallon . . . "Here you are," he stated . . . "Wait a minute," said the cashier. "Isn't that your wife with you?" . . . "Yes," returned the farmer, "but t'hell with her. If she wants to see the show let her milk the cow."

Crime Drama Packs Punch On Met. Screen

Humphrey Bogart and Billy Halop Divide Top Acting Honors

"YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH MURDER," Warner Brothers picturization of a play, "Chalked Out," by Lewis E. Lawes and Jonathan Finn, adapted to the screen by Don Ryan, Kenneth Gamet and Robert Buckner, with Humphrey Bogart, Billy Halop, Gale Page, John Litel, Henry Travers, Harvey Stephens, Harold Huber, Joe Sawyer, Joe Downing, George E. Stone, Joseph King, Joseph Crehan, John Ridgely and Herbert Rawlinson. Directed by Lewis Seiler. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Metropolitan Theater.

Crime does pay off—behind the eight ball. That's the moral of "You Can't Get Away With Murder," currently decorating the Metropolitan screen.

Though Humphrey Bogart has played many meanie parts, his portrait of the cheap stick-up guy is about the most venomous he's ever done. All that he needs is a tail to make him the perfect rat. He's a double-crossing, short-changing, murderous so-and-so, if there ever was one, Bogart can do this sort of part standing on his ear. He plays it with a hard, contained incisiveness that makes you wish the Hollywood powers would combine one of Hemingway's crime stories and Bogart.

Billy Halop, one of the original "Dead End" kids, emerges as a surprisingly good young actor in this one. He plays the "punk" kid, ensnared into crime by Bogart, stoutly resists the obvious temptation to overact, turns in a sharply etched performance.

Film Is Swiftly Paced

Essentially, "You Can't Get Away With Murder" is a dramatized detective story. Billy steals the revolver belonging to his sister's fiance and loans it to Bogart who intentionally drops it at the scene of a shooting. Result is that the fiance is almost railroaded to the electric chair. Bogart and Billy take a "short rap" on a lesser charge, thus tranferring the whole action to Sing Sing. Dialogue written both skilfully and simply adds tremendously to the forcefulness of the picture. Swiftly paced direction, with a complete absence of lagging spots, contributes an added element of zing.

Character work of the finest and excellent "straight" playing distinguish the entire cast.

It's a man's picture. Gale Page, playing Billy's sister, and very nicely, is the only girl in the action. Harvey Stephens, as Gale's fiance, acts with attractive sincerity. In a brief bit as a lawyer, John Litel proved brilliant and forceful.

Those ace character actors, Henry Travers, Harold Huber and George Stone, all perform on a scale quite equal to that of the picture's stars. Mr. Travers appears as an aged and gentle "lifer." Harold Huber is a completely satisfying "wrong guy." George Stone is an ebullient convict who runs a gambling game in prison.

There is nothing subtle or complicated about "You Can't Get Away With Murder." But it's a good, workmanlike picture with plenty of entertainment value.

Diversified Short Reels

An Edgar Kennedy comedy, "Around the Clock," also features that very quaint old gent, Bill Franey, and the world's most exasperating clock. Vivian Oakland again plays Missus Kennedy and Ol' Bill is again Edgar's father-in-law. This is one of the best of the Kennedy comics.

A really remarkable short is "Death Valley Thrills," showing tobogganing and skiing on the salt flats of Death Valley, also some weird cross-country motoring in a jalopy with the endurance and climbing ability of a tractor.

England's King and Queen dominate the newsreel this week, naturally. They both photograph extremely well, look very happy and cordial while greeting their Canadian subjects.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 19 (INS).—Complications loom if Douglas Fairbanks, sr., is really serious about his idea of turning actor again to co-star with Fairbanks, jr., in "Don Q, Son of Zorro," after Darryl Zanuck has announced a Zorro story for Tyrone Power. It isn't hard to believe that Doug sr. is interested in turning actor again. He's always been too much of the showman to be content with a producer's role — even though he announced he would sponsor both "The Californian" and "Lola Montez" at various times.

LOUELLA PARSONS

It would be swell seeing Doug back on the screen with junior in a Zorro picture, except for the fact that he sold "The Mark of Zorro" to Twentieth Century-Fox for Tyrone. Some fun for the innocent bystanders to watch Ty cavorting as Zorro in one theater, and just across the street, the Fairbankses being equally agile as a couple of other Zorros.

Madeleine Carroll, concentrating on comedy for lo these many months, is going to get a chance to chew scenery to her heart's content in "Safari"—a heavy drammer about a misunderstood siren in South Africa. But what intrigues me almost as much as beauteous Madeleine's change of pace is that Paramount is modestly questing for either Gary Cooper or Spencer Tracy to be the man in the case. Perhaps it isn't so far fetched, after all, that one or the other of these popular heroes will be free to accept, for the picture will not go into production until Miss Carroll has had her annual two-month vacation in Europe. In fact, there's talk that Para will send a location troupe to join the star in Africa for backgrounds. E. H. Griffith will direct.

Cute Baby Sandy, the milkman's daughter who toddled away with "East Side of Heaven," is going to have to keep on as a male impersonator. After the picture with Bing Crosby and Joan Blondell, everybody thought "he" might return to his natural sex. Everybody knows now that the baby is a little girl. But no—along come the scripters on "his" second picture, "Sandy," and dream up a plot so that her nibs has to play Mischa Auer's "uncle." If you think I'm going into all the ramifications of a yarn that makes a 1-year-old Mischa's uncle, you can guess again. But it's very funny. However, it should be some relief to Sandy to realize that they can't keep this up forever.

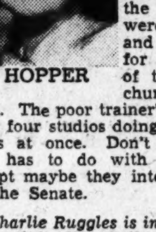
Texas Guinan's former manager, John Stein, has his dander up over Carl Laemmle's plan to produce a picture based on the night club hostess' colorful life. According to Stein, he has a letter from Texas giving him permission to write her biography and that he has done, with a copyright. Though his book has never been published, he's proclaiming up and down that he'll fight any dramatization of her life. Be that as it may, Laemmle, jr., is in New York to engage Gene Fowler to whip up a Guinan yarn and he'd like to get the bride. Barbara Stanwyck, to play the title role.

That's all for today.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., May 19.—They have a regular menagerie for Frank Capra's "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." A pacing porcupine, parrots, clucking cuckatoos, white and black mice, a deordized (?) skunk, a sweet-faced fox, a raccoon, monkeys and guinea pigs. The trainer told Jimmy Stewart the guinea pigs were vegetarians and Jimmy fell for it until one of them took a chunk out of his hand. The poor trainer's going mad with four studios doing animal pictures at once. Don't know what this has to do with Washington, except maybe they intend to smell up the Senate.



HOPPER

Charlie Ruggles is in San Francisco defending Hollywood in the National Handball tournament. Here we don't even think he's athletic.

German players, who are rehearsing "William Tell" which goes on at El Capitan soon, are squawking like mad. Maybe it was a mistake, not to let Hitler keep them!

The new Swedish "Intermezzo," Ingrid Bergman, is being played down, Selznick wants America to discover her for itself.

Among the extra ranks there's a real count who wears a crown on everything—studs, cuff buttons, coat lapel (that one's jewelled). He formerly was married to a very rich woman, got tired of that bargain when she insisted upon his kneeling to kiss her hand and murmur: "Good morning, Countess."

He drives up in a Rolls-Royce to Social Service for his weekly allowance!

Nats Make Five Errors as Indians Win, 8 to 4

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

For seven of the eight club owners, the American League's vital statistics are very dismal reading these days. They tell the same harrowing story—the story of Yankee dominance and all that it implies—a joke pennant race, seven clubs fighting for second place.

POVICH

'Tis year there is even danger that the Yankees may lap the field, step out into such a lead that by July 4 the race might be reasonably said to be over. The rest of the schedule through July, August, September would be a mockery. The picture is even more discouraging than it was last season. The Yankees, in late June of 1938, were still fighting for the lead.

But at this writing they have won nine straight games, and are comfortably out in front of the second-place Red Sox by 2½ games. That may not appear to be a commanding lead, but closer scrutiny of what the Yankees have been doing holds out little hope for the rest of the league. Because for the past three weeks the Yankees have been winning ball games without benefit of Joe DiMaggio.

DiMaggio hasn't been in the lineup since he took his tumble in the Yankee outfield against Washington on April 29, but seemingly it hasn't made any difference to the Yanks. They just keep rolling along. But with DiMaggio back in there, and he'll be back in there any day now, they will be a better ball club. And the league can't stand any improvement by the Yankees.

Leonard Only Right-Hander to Beat Yanks

In 24 games, the Yanks have been licked only five times. Dutch Leonard, in fact, is the only right-hander in the league to beat 'em this season. Their other four defeats have been at the hands of southpaws—Chase and Krakauskas, of the Nats; Milnar, of the Indians, and Smith, of the White Sox. To the Washington club the league is indebted for three of those five Yankee defeats.

Red Ruffing is proving himself synonymous with victory for the Yanks. He has won all of his six starts, and Monte Pearson in four trips to the mound hasn't been licked yet. Such as Atlee Donald and Bump Hadley and Wes Ferrell have also been winning for the Yanks, and whenever they need a relief pitcher they can call upon the best specialist in the league in lanky Johnny Murphy. Ruffing, Pearson, Donald, Hadley, Ferrell and Steve Sundra have yet to be licked this year.

There's only one club in the league with even a ghost of a chance of heading off the Yanks and rescuing the circuit from another joke race. That team is, of course, the Red Sox of Joe Cronin. And at this date they are 2½ games to the rear. They've lost ground to the Yanks even with DiMaggio lost to the Yankee outfield for three weeks. It doesn't add up to anything bright for Cronin's club.

One item is plainly evident. If the Red Sox lick the Yankees, they'll have to do it themselves. Aside from the Nats who have won three out of five jousts with the New York club, the Red Sox have been getting little assistance from the rest of the league.

But the Red Sox cannot be counted out if only for one reason. They have 21 remaining games with the Yanks this year and that is their only hope of averting a wreck of the league race. Cronin's club has played the Yanks only once thus far this season, losing a 2-0 game behind Lefty Grove. If Boston can gain a commanding advantage in the future hand-to-hand battling with the Yanks the Red Sox may still be a power in the race.

Best Defensive Team in American League

One of the popular misconceptions of the past two seasons is that the Yankees have been winning pennants on their power. That is not a fact. Last year, as a team, they were outhit by 20 points by the Red Sox, and outhit even by the St. Louis Browns. They won pennants with their timely distance-hitting backed up by the finest pitching and defense in the league.

At this writing the Yanks are the best defensive outfit in the circuit by a wide margin. And they have the best pitching staff. In their 23 games, the Yankee pitchers have allowed only 73 runs. That breaks down to an average of only three runs—of both earned and unearned variety—yielded by the Yankees pitchers per game. Backed by the lang-range clouting and the superb defense of the Yanks, that sort of pitching figures to win any pennant.

Joe Cronin is either a consummate actor or sincere in his belief that his Boston club will lick the Yankees this year. In fact, he is ready to battle at the suggestion that it can't. He is taking his encouragement from the fact that Boston has lost only one more game than the Yanks, though it has won four less.

Cronin's club, with its 15 wins and 6 defeats, gives evidence of being a fine ball club, if not as good as the Yanks. He traded wisely when he shipped Pinky Higgins to the Tigers and relied on Jim Tabor to do the third base job for the Sox. Ted Williams is amply filling the outfield berth vacated by Ben Chapman, and Cronin and Jimmy Foxx are apparently bound for another brilliant year at bat. He has come up with a rare rookie pitcher in Woody Rich and young Jim Bagby, jr., and Lefty Grove are holding up nicely.

But if the Yankees are worrying, it probably concerns the size of their 1939 World Series checks.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

St. Louis, May 19.—The remarkable thing about that 19-inning game the Dodgers played against the Cubs the other day is that it isn't remarkable. Since 1902 there have been ten 19-inning big league games; three 20-inning games; four 21-inning games; two 22-inning games, a 24-inning game and a 26'er.

CONSIDINE

As you might suspect, Brooklyn played the 26-inning one. The sterile opposition was afforded by the Boston Braves. It was played through most of May 1, 1920, and it ended in a 1-1 tie. Cadore, for Brooklyn, and Oeschger, for Boston, both went the full route—yet a lot of old gaffers around today will tell you that the last of the Spartan old Orioles died with the turn of the century.

One of the features of the 24-inning game, committed September 1, 1906, was that Brooklyn didn't play in it. Philadelphia beat the Red Sox in that little workout, 4-1. Jack Coombs pitched the entire game for Mr. Mack, and Joe Harris went the distance for Mr. Boston.

The most arresting piece of baseball long-windedness was the 18-inning game played between Philadelphia and Cleveland on July 10, 1932. The Athletics won 18-17 in four hours and five minutes, with Wes Ferrell getting the discredit for the game.

Nine Hits in 11 Trips to Plate

Johnny Burnett, of Cleveland, made nine hits that day in 11 trips to the plate. Jimmy Foxx hit three home runs and drove in eight runs. Mack started a pitcher named Krause, but Mr. K was knocked out of the box in the first inning and Eddie Rommel was sent in to pinch pitch. He pitched 17 full innings as a relief man and he's prouder of that today than he is of any one of his other baseball performances.

"Why shouldn't I be?" he demanded the last time I saw him. "I'm maybe the only guy in baseball history who ever went in there and won a game by holding the other side to 29 hits and nine walks!"

The home run practically came into its own—as a standard big league attraction—in a marathon game played between the Yankees and Cleveland in 1919. Cleveland won the game in the nineteenth inning, 3-2, on Joe Wood's second home run of the contest. In the first nine innings each team hit two homers, with the bases empty. The belts of Wally Pipp and Frank Baker nicely equaled the smashes of Wood and Elmer Smith. Then they went 10 more innings without coming close to a run, and Wood finally hit one over the right field wall. Every run, therefore, was a home run. Stanley Coveleski pitched the entire game for Cleveland.

Pittsburgh and the Bees, nee Braves, hold the record for long-term fruitlessness. They went 20 innings without scoring a run, in their game on August 1, 1918. Pittsburgh shoved across two tallies, or runs (as they are sometimes called), in the twenty-first inning.

Nats, Tigers Went 18 Innings to Tie

On July 16, 1909, Detroit and Washington went 18 innings to a 0-0 puncture. Walter Johnson was so tired after the ordeal that he refused to pitch again until July 18, 1909.

Ted Lyons, who's still winning ball games, supposedly came to the end of his pitching effectiveness nine years ago when he lost a 4-3 game to Detroit in 21 innings. George Uhle, who pitched the whole way for the Tigers, led off the twenty-first with the single that marked the beginning of Lyons' now-indefinitely-postponed end.

There have been few greater pitching feats than the one turned in by Carl Hubbell on July 2, 1933, when he beat the Cardinals 1-0 in 18 innings. The Cards never recovered from the blow, and the Giants followed their plucky leader, Col. Wilberforce Terry, right up the hill to capture the senior circuit's escutcheon and win a place in the blue ribbon classic of the national pastime.

Brooklyn tampered gingerly with the standard marathon script in their 9-9 tie with the Cubs Wednesday. For nine innings their runs came as easy as a pass to a Sixth Avenue auction parlor. Then for the next 10 innings they could get only one runner as far as second base. There doesn't seem to be much sense in that kind of action, but then who was ever dope enough to demand sense from the Brooklyn team?

It is the only team in baseball today that is pioneering in new ways to win 'em, lose 'em and draw 'em.

Rippy Repeats in Chevy Chase Golf Play

Frank Allan Runner-up Third Time

Shanty Loses, 2 and 1, As Indian Spring Golfer Wins Second Straight Crown

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

There are no new names on the Taft and Sherman trophies, that go to the winner and runner-up in the annual Chevy Chase Invitation tournament. For the 1938 champion, Claude Rippy of Indian Spring, defeated the 1938 runner-up, Frank Allan, of Pittston, Pa., by a 2 and 1 margin yesterday compared to his 19-hole triumph of last year.

The finalist role earned an honorary membership for Allan into any hardluck club, for it marked the third consecutive year that "Shanty" has lost in the Chevy Chase finals. Rippy's victory made him the third repeat champion in the 29 year history of the event, joining George Voigt and Harry Pitt. Walter Tuckerman and Roland MacKenzie are also two-time winners, but not in succession.

The finalist were both tuckered from gruelling semi-final battles and were way off, Rippy needing par for a 79, ten over perfect figures, when the match was over and Allan had four for an 80.

Show Stealers

The morning matches were the show-stealers of the day's play. Rippy dropping a 12-foot, down-hill birdie putt on the sixteenth hole to go 1 up on Spencer Overton, and halving the next two holes in pars for a 1-up victory over the medalist from Rolling Road. The match was within a hole of even all the way, but Rippy was just one hole steadier.

The semifinal between Allan and Bart Yount, the excitable 19-year-old youngster from Columbia, went 21 holes before Yount three-putted to lose a match featured by comebacks, scrambling on the part of the loser and a pair of great putts by Allan on the first and second extra holes, 6 feet each, that kept him in the match.

The greatest played hole of the day was the eighteenth between Allan and Yount, with the match all even as the former three-putted the seventeenth green. Yount drove in the deep rough, was over in two, in the path, while Allan was just short in two. Yount pitched 10 feet past the cup and was partially stymied by Allan's ball.

Barely Misses an Ace

Here the tall blond youngster, with a Hawaiian shirt flying about him, rapped the ball in the cup to send the match into extra holes. He scrambled for halves on 19 and 20, and with a chance to win the match on the twenty-first, he missed an 8-footer and then missed a 2-footer coming back. He was heartbroken.

Rippy and Allan were both out in 41 and even in the finals. The champion nearly aced the tenth hole, placing a tee shot 1 foot from the cup, but he was in the water on No. 11 and the match was even. Allan

Ft. Myer Team Sweeps Horse Show Event

Local Entries Score In Touch, Out Class At Atlantic City

By Anne Hagner
Special Correspondent to The Post.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 19.—It was a great night for Fort Myer's Horse Show team in the opening class of the Horse Show's fourth day here, for the toughest class of the evening, the fourth phase of the touch and out, was completely dominated by Army entries.

The event was won by Capt. T. J. H. Trapnell on Rusty, who got the last fence of a touch and out course that stopped every other entry before the fifth jump. Second place went to Capt. Robert Taylor on another Government mount, Eyes Delight, and third was won by sturdy little Sandy, with Capt. Henri Luebbermann up. Lieut. Col. A. W. Roffe took the fourth on Clipped Wings, making it a clean sweep for the Fort Myer representatives, who during previous evenings have had to be content with seconds, thirds and fourths to the May Top Stable's Bartender, outstanding civilan entry, who has been raking in blue ribbons.

Steady Improvement

The Fort Myer horses have been steadily improving in performances in spite of the unusually hard footing that has been a serious handicap to many hunters and jumpers here, and were due to come out on top when the May Top entrant began hitting fances in this afternoon's competition. Tonight's victories make the entire team eligible for the final phase of the touch and out division, which will be held tomorrow night when all previous ribbon winners will fight it out among themselves for the championship.

A surprising side of Fort Myer's triumph is the fact that Rusty and Sandy, third place winner, have only one eye each, but it does not interfere with the top jumping form that is now placing them in the ribbon-winning brackets.

In the largest money class in the show, the Marlborough-Blenheim $1,000 Jumper Stake, N. H. Wagner's bay Sargeant Joe, piloted by Joe Meara, stopped May Top Stable's winning streak by outjumping Glendhu Farm's high flying mare, Glendhu, and May Top's Golden Brew, ridden by Cappy Smith, who placed third.

Roffe Takes Fourth

Fourth went to Lieut. Col. A. W. Roffe on the Fort Myer Horse Show team's brown mare, Clipped Wings, and fifth went to Crispin Oglebay's Question, which tied with Margaret Cotter's Rockside for the award and triumphed in the jump-off. Washington and Virginia exhibitors were glad to see that Rocksie had recovered from his allergy toward a stiff hogback fence at which he has stopped in every open class thus far in the show. Today the great-going horse did not even hesitate at the fence which has been keeping him out of the ribbons heretofore, and he made only 1½ faults to tie with Oglebay's horse. The sixth place

Griffith and Vitt Discussing a Trade

Griffith and Vitt denied everything, but reports had it that Vitt demanded Shortstop Cecil Travis in exchange for Outfielder Jeff Heath, of the Indians.

Red Ruffing Registers Sixth Straight Victory, Holding Foes to Seven Hits; New York's Late Spurt Wins Game

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 19.—Without their usual waste of power, the New York Yankees exploded three runs in the eighth inning today to halt the Chicago White Sox 4 to 2 and mark up their ninth consecutive American League victory.

Charley (The Red) Ruffing spread seven hits over the route to score his sixth personal triumph without a defeat. He kept out of harm's way except in the sixth when Gerald Walker tripled to left and came home on Rip Radcliff's single, and in the ninth when Catcher Ken Silvestri homered into the centerfield bleachers.

Lefty Ed Smith suppressed the champions on three hits for seven innings, but they bunched three more in the eighth and Clint Brown had to be called in to finish.

Freedom with his passes, of which he gave seven, kept Smith in danger and resulted in the first run of the game without a hit in the fifth frame. He walked Ruffing and Red Rolfe and hit Tommy Henrich with a pitched ball to fill the bases and Ruffing scored on a forceout play at second.

Joe Gordon opened the eighth by beating out a hit to short and came home on Joe Gallagher's triple. Babe Dahlgren walked, then Gallagher scored on Ruffing's single and Dahlgren came in one play later on an infield out.

Michigan Sets Pace in Big 10 Track Meet

By the Associated Press.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 19.—Michigan's mighty track and field team rolling toward its third straight Big Ten outdoor title and one of the most remarkable championship records in collegiate history, spread-eagled the field in today's preliminaries of the thirty-ninth annual Western Conference meet at historic Ferry Field.

Big Bill Watson, smashing a 23-year-old discus record, led the parade of 20 Michigan qualifiers into tomorrow's championship finals. In addition to hurling the discus 160 feet 10⅝ inches for a new meet mark, he also qualified in the broad jump and shot put to bulwark Michigan's bid for its sixth title since Charles Hoyt became Michigan track coach in 1931.

Hoyt, who goes to Yale as track coach next season, saw his final Wolverine squad make a rout of the trials program. Wisconsin was second in the number of qualifying places earned, with eight. Then followed Indiana and Ohio State, with 7 each; Minnesota and Iowa, 6 each; Purdue and Illinois, 5 each; Northwestern, 3, and Chicago, 2.

Lombardi's Homer Beats Phils in 12th

Ernie's Clout Breaks Up Pitchers' Battle As Reds Score, 4-3

Cincinnati, May 19.—Ernie Lombardi ended a 12-inning ball game here today with his fifth home run of the year, giving Cincinnati a 4-to-3 victory over Philadelphia and a virtual tie with St. Louis at the top of the National League pennant heap.

Even six errors, three to a side, failed to dampen the heat of a pitchers' battle between Max Butcher and big Paul Derringer before a crowd of 3,167.

Butcher, behind a two-run lead gained in the first on three singles and Lombardi's error, favored only Lombardi until the sixth, when he walked two and found his lead whittled as the big catcher delivered his second blow to drive in Frey.

Butcher walked five, but fanned six, while Derringer struck out two and issued not a pass until the tenth.

Short flies or fouls predominated, Frank McCormick, the Reds' first sacker, chalking up 15 points, and Walter Millies, Butcher's batterymate, 10.

The victory, fourth straight for the Reds, brought them into a virtual tie with St. Louis for first place, the Cards were idle because of rain, but having played fewer games, clung to a fractional percentage point of advantage.

With what was considered a very lucky single, Johnny McGowan gave Eastern High its second interhigh baseball victory of the season over McKinley yesterday, 7 to 6, in the 11th inning of an East division game at Lincoln Park. The White Tide broke its first-place deadlock with Anacostia with the victory.

At Central Stadium, the defenders, strong choices for the West section title, were batted around by Roosevelt for seven innings, came back strong in the final two periods, but finally lost the contest, 8 to 7. Before the game the Mt. Pleasanters were presented with a forfeit on an earlier game, by Woodrow Wilson, due to the use of Frank Hettenkemer. The latter was ruled ineligible because he had played outside ball.

McGowan's single in Eastern's stand against Tech was one of those which occur all too often in high school ball. Three men went back to cover it and each depended on the other for the catch. It dropped safe and "Puddin" Lovett raced over with the winning tally.

The lucky blow came after Tech had made a desperate and successful attempt to knot the count in the ninth. Trailing into the inning by a 6-to-2 count, the little Maroon marauders scored four times on four singles and an error. Warren Earheart, who started for the Tide, was sent to the showers after the first hit, and Lovett was touched for the other three.

Despite its loss, Tech outhit the winners, 14 to 12, though the safeties were more widely scattered. The only two home runs of the game were smashed out by Francis Hallama and Les Cooksey to account for Eastern's three runs in the seventh.

Central also made a dying effort to get back in the game in the ninth, but wasn't as successful as Tech. Benny Steiner, recovering from one of the most disastrous slumps to hit a high school player this season, pounded out an inside the park home run to score three of Central's five runs in the period, but it wasn't good enough. Danny Boothe, Roosevelt slugger, also hit a home run, his coming in the sixth to score Waters and Vermillion.

Accidental Triple Play

Players of Central and Roosevelt each had a moment when they looked very good in the field. Roosevelt's was an unexpected and unintentional triple play in the seventh. With the bases loaded, Pat Fenlon, Central second sacker, hit a pop fly to Jimmy Robertson. Jimmy fumbled and dropped it, but Fenlon was automatically out on the infield fly rule, and Jimmy recovered quickly enough to throw home and catch Len Sokol. Sam Di Blasi also got off base and was thrown out—Hymie Perlo to Jimmy Thrift.

Fenlon came up with Central's scintillating play in the fourth. Fielding Al Miller's grounder with the speed of lightning, Fenlon saw he was out of position to throw to first, tossed the ball to Steiner on a dead run, and saw Steiner toss to first in the nick of time.

The only extra-base hits were made by Charlotte Hall, Stan Kihn getting a double and home run, and Guyther a double and triple. The latter scored six runs and had a perfect day at bat with four hits in four trips. Rock, of Gaithersburg, got all of his team's hits.

Mrs. Walper Scores Golf Upset, Beating Mrs. Meckley, 2 Up

The upset-a-day theme of the Maryland State Women's Championship at Congressional was continued yesterday as Mrs. Leo Walper, Capital, defeated the two-time champion from Indian Spring, Mrs. Betty Meckley, by a 2-up margin to advance to the title round.

Her opponent in the finals will be Mrs. Jerome Sloman, of the Suburban Club of Baltimore, who reached the same round last year before losing to Helen Dettweiler, now a "businesswoman golfer."

Mrs. Sloman went 20 holes before Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor, who lost in the same round of the '38 tournament, missed a 3-foot putt to lose a match in which she held the advantage from the first hole until the fifteenth.

Mrs. Sloman and Mrs. Walper have reached the title round before, the former losing to Mrs. Meckley in 1936 and Mrs. Sloman having her chance last year. Mrs. Sloman was also medalist several years ago.

Trouble with Putter

Mrs. Meckley, having a bad day with her putter, was three down at the ninth to Mrs. Walper, who has been playing well throughout the tourney. Mrs. Walper lost two holes of her lead at the fourteenth, but won the fifteenth when her opponent was trapped from the tee.

Mrs. Meckley won the seventeenth to stay in the running, Mrs. Walper missing a short putt, but the match was over on the next as the winner bagged a par to win the hole.

Mrs. Pray won the first hole with a 6, increased her lead to 2 up at the third with a par and was out in front either one or two holes until Mrs. Sloman won the fifteenth to draw even.

The Baltimorean went 1 up for the first time on the sixteenth, but Mrs. Pray came from behind this time, winning the eighteenth with a 4 as Mrs. Sloman was over the green in 3.

Germany's Davis Cup Team Leads Poland in Zone Play

Warsaw, Poland, May 19.—Germany's Davis Cup team took a lead over Poland in the opening singles matches of their European zone match today, played before a crowd that showed, on the whole, good sportsmanship despite the tense feeling between the two countries.

Roderick Menzel, who formerly played under Czecho-Slovak colors, won, 7—5, 6—3, 2—6, 2—6, 6—4, over the Polish ace, Adam Bawotowski, who once played for Austria, although a Pole by birth. The second match was called because of darkness with Ignacy Tloczynski leading Germany's Heinrich Henkel, 6—4, 6—8, 6—4.

Some of the chief dramatics came from 500 bleacher fans. Although loudly shooshed down by grandstand spectators, the bleacherites let their feelings get the better of them at times, to the extent of jeers, personal jibes and applause when the Germans missed a shot.

The Nazi flag floated alongside the Polish colors over the Warsaw Tennis Club grounds. This was the first important Polish-German athletic contest in several months.

The victory followed two triumphs in the singles yesterday and sent France to semifinal round of the zone against England next week.

Fort Myer Team Sweeps Show Event

Fort Myer's olive clad riders proved their versatility when, after defeating the best of them in the open jumping division, came back in the event for hunt teams and, after completing the course with performances that were close to perfect, annexed the blue over teams representing Glendhu Farms, Mrs. Whitney, and Crispin Oglesbay. Members of the winning team were Capt. Trapnell on Rusty, Capt. Kenneth Hoge on Broomfield, and Capt. John Meade on Dansoux.

The class for ladies' hunters this afternoon was won by Crispin Oglebay's chestnut Holystone, many times a champion in Northern shows, and second and third went to Claredda Farm's Woodfellow and Patricia Dupont's King Vulture, respectively.

In the event for horses suitable to become hunters, 4 years old and under, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Untermeyer's Illuminator, a beautifully schooled youngster who had a successful show season last year, came out on top over another Untermeyer entry, a bay filly named Velveteen. Third was Sallyport, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's brown mare who is making an enviable reputation for herself here.

Illuminator scored another important triumph in the hard fought class for hunter hacks, when he defeated the Greenhalgh's Protest, ridden by George P. Greenhalgh, jr., who placed second. Third place went to Capt. Henri Luebbermann's Dress Rehearsal, which has appeared in four hunter classes so far and has won three ribbons.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 19.—Staging their biggest scoring spree of the season, the New York Giants rampaged through the Chicago Cubs, 11 to 5, today for Righthander Harry Gumbert's fourth victory against one defeat.

They drove Rookie Gene Lillard from the mound in a five-run second inning and continued the assault against Charley Root and Jack Russell for a total of 11 hits, but the Cubs contributed three errors all of which helped in New York's scoring.

In the big second inning Hank Leiber dropped a fly ball to let in one run, two were forced in by passes and two more came home on Hank Danning's single with the bases loaded.

Again in the sixth two singles and a fumble filled the sacks and Bill Jurges hit two tallies across and Mel Ott sacrificed another in.

Record Falls as Stars Qualify for Conference Track Meet

Maryland Qualifies 10 for Finals

Craig, Gamecock Ace, Breaks Shot Mark in Trials for Event At Chapel Hill

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 19.—One conference record was broken and another equaled in the preliminaries of the seventeenth annual Southern Conference track meet here this afternoon. The University of North Carolina, defending champion, led the other 12 Conference schools in the number of men reaching the finals with 22, as against 13 for Duke and 10 for Maryland.

Larry Craig, of South Carolina, set the Conference record in the shot-put trials with 48 feet 7⅝ inches to better the mark of 48 feet 4¼ inches, established by Bob Strickler, of V. M. I., last year. Strickler, defending titlist, was second. Bill Corpening, North Carolina, tied the Conference 120-yard high hurdle mark of 14.5 seconds set by Don Kinzle, of Duke, last year.

Joe Murphy Wins

Joe Murphy, of Maryland, and Tom Holmes, of Carolina, were timed 9.9 seconds as they won their heats in the 100-yard dash, and Duke's Hubert Reavis won his low hurdle heat in 23.6 seconds, breaking the local Fetzer Field record and missing the Conference mark by one-tenth of a second for other outstanding performances.

In addition to winning his heat in the "Century," Murphy qualified in the 220 and broad jump for the best individual performance for the Terrapins. Alan Miller, champion and record-setter in the 440 in the Southern Conference indoor games here last winter, ran second to Jennings, of Carolina, to reach the finals in his event, and later he qualified in the 220 trials. Hermie Evans, the Terps' hurdle star, ran good races in taking second in the low hurdle heat won by Reavis in 23.6, and second in high hurdles behind Corpering.

Other Maryland finalists are Ochsenreiter in the 440, Kluge in the javelin, and Kenney in the broad jump.

Terps Are Liked

Although the Terps did not fare so well in the trials of the field and short running events today, they are expected to be among the leaders in the distance races tomorrow.

New records are expected in the half-mile, mile, and 2-mile, and Maryland entries in these events are touted as being capable of winning these records in record time. Jim Kehoe, indoor champion, is pitted against Carolina's Bill Hendrix in the half. Mason Chronister will attempt to defeat Carolina's Jimmy Davis in the mile after edging him out on the last lap of their race indoors last winter. Joe Peaslee, outdoor champion, and Tom Fields, indoor champion, will be out to beat Tom Crockett, another Tarheel well grounded in cross country.

Ed Miller, who already has bettered the conference high jump record this spring, is expected to set a new conference record should he be pushed by the remaining field.

Take Lead in Race For Baseball Honors In Montgomery County

Richard Montgomery High, of Rockville, took a lead in the race for high school baseball honors in Montgomery County yesterday when it scored a close 8-to-7 victory over Bethesda-Chevy Chase. In an earlier battle the teams played to an 8-to-8 deadlock. Yesterday's was Rockville's tenth triumph of the season.

Dick Cleveland, Rockville pitcher, did more than merely hurl seven-hit ball over the route. In the eighth, with the game tied up at 7 to 7, he poked a long sacrifice into centerfield that scored Third-baseman Day with the winning run. Bethesda's Danny Wells was rapped for seven hits too, but suffered from misplays in the field.

The Sooners, showing strength in the dashes and hurdles, grabbed 18 qualifying positions for tomorrow's finals. Almost keeping stride, however, was Missouri, the defending title holders, with 17 positions, two more than gained by Nebraska's Cornhuskers, perennial Big Six track rulers before the Ilgers outpointed them a year ago.

Back in the field were Kansas State with 10 qualifying positions, Iowa State with 9 and Kansas with 6.

Okla. Aggies Qualify 18 in Missouri Valley

St. Louis, May 19 (AP).—Oklahoma A. & M. let the other seven members of the Missouri Valley Conference know today its defending Cowboy champions are out to win the outdoor track championships again by qualifying 18 men in this afternoon's preliminaries.

In the dashes, hurdles and broad jump, Washington University placed 11 men, Drank 7, Grinnell 4, Tulsa 3, St. Louis University 2 and Washburn and Creighton, 1 each.

Terps Play Georgetown Today in Return Game

Maryland Puts Nine-Game Winning Streak on Line in Only Local Event

By Jack Munhall.

The University of Maryland baseball team will expose its nine-game winning streak to Georgetown at College Park this afternoon in the final contest of the season for both teams. Game time is 2 o'clock.

Either Earl Springer, unbeaten lefthanded ace, or righthanded and equally effective Pershing Mondorff will (pitch) for Maryland as if seeks to repeat an earlier victory over the Hoyas. It was their 8-4 defeat of the Hoyas at the Hilltop last month that started the Terps off on one of their greatest winning streaks, which included upsets of Duke and Richmond.

Only Local Event

Vinnie Powers, Georgetown's promising but erratic sophomore righthander, who was charged with the loss in the previous contest with Maryland, is expected to go to the mound for Joe Judge's nine.

The Maryland-Georgetown game is the only major college sports attraction here, but at Baltimore Catholic University, American University and Johns Hopkins will come together in a Mason-Dixon Conference track meet and the powerful Maryland lacrosse team hopes to keep its undefeated record intact in a match with Johns Hopkins; and at Chapel Hill the Maryland track team will be participating in the annual Southern Conference championships.

Burt Shipley's Maryland baseball team will carry against Georgetown today one of the most impressive records ever fashioned by an Old Line nine. Since a tough-luck opening game defeat by Ohio State, the Terps have won 12 of 15 games, losing only to Boston College, V. M. I., by one run, and to Michigan, which is close to the Big Ten title.

Disappointing Season

Georgetown, on the other hand, has been a keen disappointment, dating back to its defeat by Maryland. Boasting at that time five straight victories the sophomoric Hoya team since has been inconsistent, losing four of seven games. During this stretch Georgetown suffered the ignomy of still another disastrous trip to New York.

In the Gotham area where Georgetown athletic teams seldom are successful, the Hoya nine lost in succession to New York University, Fordham and Army.

Auto Races At Frederick Slated Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., May 19.—Barring rain at post time, the field of 22 entrants in the big car auto race will attempt to stage the delayed inaugural at the Fair Grounds here tomorrow afternoon.

The race was originally scheduled for last Saturday but the rain made the track too hazardous for even the young daredevils. Danny Goss, of Bridgeton, N. J., driving an Ambler Special, has displaced Mark Light as the probable favorite.

Goss rose to the top spot because of his work in the Langhorne races last Sunday—the same event that culminated in the tragic death of Bud Henderson, who was to have raced at Frederick tomorrow.

In trial spins this week also, Goss has been showing championship form. His severest contention will come from Rex Williams, Charley Carey and Light.

Several "local" entrants are sprinkled in the large field. Charley Clifford is from Silver Spring, Buck Carter from Takoma Park, Bob Hall from Arlington, Bob Blake from Washington, Dusty Rhoades from Baltimore, and Art Hepburn from Brentwood. The last is a son of the chief of police of Prince Georges County.

The time trials are scheduled to start at 2 p. m. and the first race is set for an hour later. With a break in the weather, Promoter Jim Frattone anticipates a crowd of 10,000.

Episcopalians Close Season This Afternoon

Coach Cardwell Will Direct Boys Last Time In Woodberry Game

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 19.—Episcopal High School's baseball team closes its last season under the direction of Coach Bickerton W. (Bick) Cardwell tomorrow afternoon against Woodberry Forest School, of Orange, in their annual traditional encounter. Starting time has been set for 3:15.

Cardwell, who has been athletic director since 1928, is resigning his post next month, and, although he will be at the school until the middle of June, tomorrow marks his final active participation in any Episcopal sport. He has enjoyed one of the most brilliant careers of any mentor in Virginia, achieving particular success in football in which he has produced five State championship elevens in the past decade.

Aside from the fact that it will be their last game under Cardwell, coupled with the natural rivalry surrounding any Episcopal-Woodberry contest, tomorrow's game is an important one for the Maroons inasmuch as they need one more victory to finish the season with a better-than-.500 average. The locals have won six, tied six and lost two in 14 starts.

Lewis Bell, veteran crew member, has been appointed coach of the Old Dominion Boat Club rowing team for the coming season, it was announced today by Athletic Chairman Johnny Edmonds. He will be assisted by Julian Whitestone, a former captain of the Old Dominion crews.

Bell has scheduled an important practice for next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, at which time all candidates are requested to attend.

Marylyn Marshall, pretty 17-year-old school student, who established a precedent by reporting as coxswain for the Old Dominion crew, will continue to set the beat for the eight. She is the first girl to compete in club history, and is regarded by experts as a highly competent coxswain.

The Mount Vernon Independents play their first game away from their home diamond on Sunday, when they journey to Fort Hunt to meet the Fort Hunt CCC nine at 2:30. Either Wease or Snellings will hurl for the locals.

The Mounts will be seeking their third victory in four starts.

Pitcher Retires

Minneapolis, May 19 (AP).—Bill Hallahan, left-handed pitcher for the Minneapolis baseball club, today announced his retirement from baseball. Hallahan joined the Millers this year after serving with the Philadelphia Nationals in 1938. He was a member of the St. Louis Cardinal staff for many years.

Maryland Yearlings Close Out Season With Eighth Victory

Maryland University's freshman baseball team closed out its season yesterday on the home lot, beating Mount St. Joseph for its eighth victory against only two losses this season, 12 to 9. McHale, with three hits in five times up, including a home run in the eighth and a triple in the sixth with two on, paced the winners' stickwork.

While Vannais held the Mounts scoreless in the first five frames, the Terp yearlings amassed an eight-run edge. Mount St. Joseph seemed to get the range in the sixth, however, scoring two runs then and following them in the seventh with seven more as the Terps collapsed in every department. A tightening process after that won for the Terps.

Tigers Seek Fourth Track Title Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., May 19.—Coach David Reveley's Hampden-Sydney track team will battle for a fourth consecutive Chesapeake Conference title in Lynchburg tomorrow.

With Capt. Will Craft, usually good for 20 points in the conference meet, still crippled by a sprained ankle, the Tigers have before them their stiffest tussle in four years.

Capt. Craft, co-holder of the State discus record of 143 feet 10 inches, is favored in this event. But it is doubtful whether he will enter the hurdles or high jump.

Osville Finne is out to better Capt. Craft's shot put mark of 40 feet 2½ inches. Finne has to his credit this season a dual meet toss of over 143 feet.

Other outsanding Tiger entrants are Pinckney Wood, high jump and discus; Bobby Trice, sprints; Syd Walden, broad jump, javelin, sprints; Elmo Berry, pole vault and javelin; Bill Armes and Volney Campbell, 440-yard dash; Bill Baker, 880-yard run; Bill Boyd, mile, and Hoskins Sclater, 2 miles.

Boasting much strength in the running events, both Randolph-Macon and Bridgewater seriously threaten the Tigers' supremacy.

Mount Rainier Wins, 5-3, Over Bladensburg

Peek Fans 10, Walks Only One Man and Allows Six Hits

With William (Prettyboy) Peek fanning ten, walking but one man, and allowing only six hits, Mount Rainier's hard-working nine downed Bladensburg High, 5-3, yesterday in a seven-inning tussle on the Mount Rainier diamond.

F. Branzell, hurler for the Peace Crossers, struck out eight, walked only two, and gave up only six hits, but two costly errors by his teammates in the fifth proved his undoing.

Bladensburg scored in the first frame. Burton, lead-off man, singled to right, and after stealing second, romped home on Kitsch's single. The Mounts came back in their half to take the lead. Ager walked and stole second. Merriam followed with a single to score Merriam.

The Mounts clinched the game in the fifth with a three-run rally. Ager singled and stole second, Iager singled to score Ager and continued to second on the relay home, Merriam sent a one-base blast through short scoring Iager and also went to second when the outfielder pegged the pellet to the catcher in the attempt to cut off the run. Merriam took third on Landolt's ground ball to short, and came home when F. Branzell balked in trying to pick him off third.

Romney Royal, $12.20 Shot, Wins Feature at Charles Town

Night Watch Beaten Out By Fair Deal

Winner Scores by a Half Length After Bad Acting at Post; $26.60 Daily Double

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 19.—After giving an imitation of a mad dog at the post, J. S. Seitz's Romney Royal forgot his bad post manners as soon as he heard the starting bell and ran home in front of seven others to win the fourth race on today's program.

The 5-year-old gelding, which started 12 times last year and won a single purse, was making his second start of this year and scored by a half length over D. H. Tabler's Fair Deal with Mrs. V. Glorioso's Night Watch third.

Romney Royal, by either Gallant Knight or Strolling Player, out of Heart o' Gold (and she ain't saying), had only a scattered backing and paid a $12.20 mutuel while racing the 4½ furlongs in 0.50. The oval was lightning fast.

Directly after the feature, one of the wildest storms since racing came to these parts hit the track. With the rain coming down in sheets and the lightning flashing on all sides, the field left the paddock on schedule. With the track a lake, Justa Jimme, a $5.20 favorite, drove to the wire a head in front of Top Shell. Tuleyries Lad was third.

The longest mutuel of the meeting came in the first race when S. B. Berry's Princess Lady, a daughter of Prince of Wales, came around the leaders to win going away. She paid a $97.40 mutuel. Flagetta and La Canter were closest at the finish.

Jockey Sammy Palumbio and Buddy Root, old Charles Town standbys, rode the key winners in the daily double. Palumbo brought Shanteb home in the second race at $4.40, while Root hustled Repass along to take the third race, at an individual mutuel of $10.80.

The daily double paid $26.60.

FLAGETTA, rushed to front, disposed of LA CANTER and WINNING STREAK and continued gamely, but was no match for winner. LA CANTER weakened in closing three furlongs. SHANTEB, off alertly and forced between horses at first turn, ran on inside of BORO POKER to stretch, drew out under drive and was opening a long gap at end. BORO POKER set and pressed pace from start and held on willingly. CHESSIE, started outside of gates, raced wide and showed good effort. SPRING'S HERE was forced to race between horses and weakened. LULA KHAYYAM lacked usual early speed and was held safe. The others were outrun.

DUNRITA tired gradually.

Horses to Watch At Charles Town

ADHEIMAR—Was first on the "also eligible" list but did not get to run. Will show a good effort at first asking.

PARKING TICKET—Was given as a winner earlier in the meeting and is expected to win right back.

TRIXIE LASS—Showed speed in first start of year. Will improve off that effort and should score.

ROCKY MOUNT—Has always been like a bullet out of the gate. Will account for a purse at this track.

CALEB—Had speed in first start at this point, but was beaten by a 1-2 shot. Will forget to stop in next effort.

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Charles Town, W. Va., May 19.
Dear Al:

The apprentice Allen Cole is a promising young rider. He has been under the guidance of Dick Pending for some time and is beginning to bud into a good horse handler. He is gaining confidence with each mount and should ride a lot of winners at this meeting. Jake Smith, who also handles Jockey Leon Garrett, has Cole's book. Jockey Buddy Root is leading the saddle artists here with five victories. Kelly Childress is handling his book. Mrs. Aaron Horwitz, of Bowie, Md., has shipped Ginger Hackle and Chilliad from Bowie. Wagering and attendance are well ahead of last year and the track hopes to pack them in tomorrow with the $1,000 Laird Handicap as the high spot of the week-end program. Six horses have been named for the seven-furlong test including Dizzy Dame, Victory Light, Groucher's Boy, Ocean Roll, Royal Teddy and Arboreal. If the track remains fast, the record of 1.25 2-5 for the route will be endangered. The record is held jointly by Wise Sister and Edith Walker. Red Wings, Truthfully and Lady Cirek are on Starter Johnny Morrisey's schooling list. Buck Middleton, former Washington sandlot baseball star, is working in the mutuel department here. Pork Chops looked resplendent in his new jockey for Seagram, J. K. L. Ross, press box gang. Don Reed, of the Baltimore Sun, was a visitor today. The lead pony here is the classiest-looking animal I have ever seen on a race track. Henry Erickson, former Jockey for Seagram, J. K. L. Ross, is the outrider. Bill.

First race—Lady Buck was off poorly in her first outing here. Needs only to break with her field to defeat these. Rocky Mount has plenty of speed and is a threat. Ado has had a long rest and is reported fit and ready.

Second race—Parvin performed in a fair manner on the milers and may find this event a suitable place for a crack down. Rough Buddy and Goldun are on the reserve list, but will be in there battling if placed in action.

Third race—Lady Dunlin is far down the "also eligible" list, but will be right there if put in the running. Sun Belle showed a good effort first out and is dangerous. Misled to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Sir Time was conditioned on the milers, and, if able to get around these turns, will be right there for the main pay-off. Home Hunter will be right at home in this company and should be close. Mr. Fingers for the minor award.

Fifth race—Celtic Legend has fine early speed and may get the off track he likes. I'm going to string along. Adhelmar gets in light and is a threat. Prince Turley is a doubtful starter, but may take it all if put into the field.

Sixth race—Dizzy Dame has done about everything asked of late and could take down the main money in this company. Royal Teddy has worked as fast as anything at this track and is dangerous. Ocean Roll is dropping down, but does not seem to be as good as last year.

Seventh race—Hurdy Gurdy demonstrated fitness first out over the course, and, with Buddy Root up, this one should take it all. Guinealaw galloped off with a purse and is a threat. Clever Girl needs only to escape the reserve list to be a potent factor.

Eighth race—Bav is another doubtful starter, but off that recent good effort is due respect. Flying Carpet is good, and an off track would help. Prince Khayyam to take care of the others.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take Miss Trycom, Miss Wing and Blue Prelude.

Flash! Washingtonian Catches Fish

Here is one fish that didn't swim over that dam. It's being held by Dr. Stirling Ruffin, of Washington, who caught it on his trip to Oregon Inlet, N. C. The disgruntled gentleman on the right is Senator Josiah Bailey, of North Carolina, who caught none. Incidentally, the fish is a channel bass

The Brighter Side...

By Damon Runyon

RUNYON

We are mighty glad Sam Wood went over to England to direct "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, otherwise us American cash customers of the movies would be further depressed by the way those English are hitting picture home runs to our local three-baggers and sometimes fouls.

Sam is as American as hog jowls and turnip greens, and we can derive satisfaction from the thought that while "Mr. Chips" is a great picture, it is another of those directors' pictures. That is to say, its entertainment value, pictorially and otherwise, lies in the direction.

It took magnificent direction to capture and hold the sweet, gentle spirit of James Hilton's literary classic, one of the finest stories every written. Probably some of Sam Wood's own personality is reflected in the pictures. Sam is by nature a gentle chap, according to those who know him best. In any event, we think he has come up with one of the greatest pictures in years.

Well Acted

It is a gulper, of course. By that we mean it will make you out with the old bandanna. We saw the opening of the picture in New York City at the Astor Theater the other night, and there were lumps in all the surrounding throats bigger than pineapples. You can score two gulps for us personally on "Mr. Chips"—one for the picture and one for the story in book form.

The book runs about 20,000 words, which makes it what the trade calls a novelette, but we would like to bet that James Hilton has made more money on them than any other 20,000 words have produced in a long time. We would say $5 per word is putting it low. Those particular words are worth more, at that.

"Mr. Chips," as you perhaps know, is the story of an English schoolmaster, now one of the most lovable characters in literature. Robert Donat, one of the our favorite actors since the time we first saw him as "The Count of Monte Christo," is "Mr. Chips," and he does a job of acting in this that is superb.

Speaking of acting, we would like to say a word here for one of our young American actors, Tyrone Power, the lad with the insidious eyebrows. We saw him the other night in "Rose of Washington Square," a title derived from a song written years ago for Fannie Brice by a couple of pals of ours—Jimmy Hanley and the late Ballard MacDonald.

Real Trouper

Now what we want to say for Tyrone Power is that he has a higher average in our book for sheer effort than any other actor on the screen. He is frequently miscast, and for that reason some of the cash customers of the movies are inclined to be critical of him, but he never fails to give a character a good sincere try, and sincerity is often better than just good acting.

We would say that young Power is a real trouper. He takes the parts as they come and we have never yet seen him when he could be accused of shirking one. His stunt in "Rose of Washington Square" is not calculated to win him cinematic immortality, but he handles it all right. One of these days they will give him something that fits him more like his own clothes.

"Rose" is good entertainment. The story was written by Nunnally Johnson, who rarely fails to give you at least that. We were particularly interested in seeing the picture because of the appearance in it in a secondary role of Al Jolson, who used to be first, second and sometimes third in any picture he graced. Jolson ranks as one of the all-time great artists of the American theater, though he is not so young now as he used to be.

'In the Blood'

He is a wealthy man, probably a multimillionaire, and you hear fellows saying they wonder why he wants to go on working. That is because they do not understand the urge in the soul of an artist. Acting is in Jolson's blood. We think he would be silly to stop acting as long as that is the thing that makes him happy, even though he were a billionaire.

He sings his old songs in "Rose" and sings them as only Jolson could sing them. The younger generation that never saw Jolson in the days when he was the undisputed king of the entertainment world should take notice of his mannerisms, and if they find them familiar they may be interested to know that it is because Jolson was copied by half the stage performers of his time and his style passed on down to this very day.

April Busiest Building Month In Eight Years

New York, May 19 (AP).—F. W. Dodge Corporation, building statisticians, reported today that construction awards in April in the 37 Eastern States were $330,030,000—the greatest one-month volume in eight years.

84 Companies In '38 Topped 1929 Profits

But Earnings of 960 Corporations Fell 50% In the Same Period

New York, May 19.—A list of 84 corporations which last year earned more than in the pre-depression boom year, 1929, has been compiled by the Standard Statistics Co. Net income of these 84 companies in 1929 totaled $236,511,000 and in 1938 net was $397,217,000, a gain of 68 per cent. The record for these corporations is all the more startling when it is considered that net of a larger number of companies (960) fell off just 50 per cent during the same period. Of the 84 companies under consideration, 14 reported a new peak in earnings in 1938, bettering their records of the more generally prosperous 1937 year.

Major industries among the 84 companies number 27, although some of these were represented by only one or two companies. The 14 industries in which there were three or more companies are as follows:

Industry	Companies
Petroleum	8
Gold mining	6
Retail trade	6
Machinery	6
Aircraft	5
Beverages	5
Textiles	4
Paper	4
Drugs	3
Non-ferrous metals	3
Finance companies	3
Automobile tires	3
Tobacco	3
Chemicals	3
Miscellaneous	22
Total	84

Political Factors

Political developments explain the good showings of a number of the companies. The devaluation of the dollar resulted in sharply increased profits for gold-mining companies. Repeal of prohibition opened the profitable United States market to the Canadian distillers. War scares and the resultant demand for military planes from both foreign countries and the United States military services, added to the growth element in this relatively new industry, have meant substantial profits for the aircraft manufacturers.

In addition to the aircraft companies, other relatively new industries are reported in the list. Consumers credit has become of importance only in recent years, and the installment finance and small loan businesses had not yet completed their development in 1929. In recent years, also, the technology of alloy steels has been increasing by leaps and bounds, to the benefit of companies engaged in this industry.

Petroleum companies which have pursued successful exploration programs and chemical companies which have expanded by gathering in numerous other companies and developing new products, are also represented in the list.

Of all proceeds of sale of the issue, $3,400,000 will be used to retire a like amount of 5 per cent Consolidated Gas Co. of Baltimore City consolidated first mortgage bonds due July 1 of this year, and the balance will go to the Treasury to pay for improvements to properties made since September 1, 1936. White, Weld & Co. of New York will head the offering group.

Firm Despite Pressure on Steels U. S. Rubber, Up a Point, Leads Activity, Oils and Low-Grade Rails Fall Behind

New York, May 19.—A quiet recovery continued in the stock market today with trading dull but the bullish forces encouraged by the fact that the pressure against the steels in the last two days has failed to unsettle the balance of the list. From a technical standpoint this is regarded as encouraging, for with the market moving back and forth within a narrow range, as it has been doing for several days, traders regard the current level as a testing area from which any breakaway will be significant.

The steel group has been the most important while this test has been going on, for the industry has been supplying more than its share of the bearish trade news and there have been several drives against the leading shares in this group. In today's trading United States Steel preferred was pressed down below par but came back to close above this figure and only off a small fraction.

The common gained ⅜ after equaling the low for the year made on Thursday and there was good resistance to selling pressure displayed by other leading issues in this section. The conclusion reached by the technicians was that the drive had been absorbed and that as the balance of the market had not been injured, it was a victory for the bullish forces.

Average Gains a Little

Only the oils and lower grade rails dragged in today's session and the general market added an average of 0.20 point on a trading volume of just under 400,000 shares. A few of the speculative leaders added 1 to 2 points, but the vast majority held within fractional limits. Most active stock was United States Rubber, up about a point. General Motors and Chrysler were popular, gaining more than a point each, and Brooklyn Union Gas continued to feature the utility section with a runup of 1¼. Standard of New Jersey led the oils with a fractional decline. Bendix was the most prominent of the aviations, gaining about a point, and Columbia Broadcasting was well supported.

The street watched dispatches from Washington for some indication of the form the reported new spending-lending program would take, but thus far its form is indistinct. The President, at this press conference, was quoted as being opposed to monkeying with the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and to be emphatically opposed to using this money to finance aids to business.

As much as business may need aid, its requirements are not insurmountable and they could be satisfied if Federal spending could be kept under control and deterrent taxes removed. Strange as it may seem, the President unquestionably will find a majority of the conservatives agreeing with him in his opposition to monkeying with the stabilization fund and to using it in financing business.

Source of the Money

For it is well to realize where this $2,000,000,000 came from, and then, if it is to be dispensed, to place it where it belongs. This money represents some of the so-called "profit" realized by the Federal Government when it called in gold and then revalued the metal.

As such it represented a tax on all types of property and the fairest disposition of it would be to pay it back to the people by applying it to the Federal debt. The danger is that it will not be put to such a beneficial use, and will follow the many more billions used for pump priming, which have already gone down the sink without having accomplished the desired result. It is to be hoped that the President will be given every support in his expressed desire to stop any monkeying with the fund and that certainly includes any idea of using it to finance business.

Treasury Bonds Hesitate

Small dealings and irregular price movements left the listed bond market little changed today. United States Treasury issues drifted downward, largely in compensation for counter market losses late in the previous day. But well-rated corporate issues improved. In the speculative groups, gains outweighed the losses, with some rails forging ahead easily on modest inquiry. Foreign dollar bonds likewise reflected buying. Turnover was only $4,810,000.

Long term Treasury bonds fell 1-32 to 8-32, largely because of the reaction of the previous counter trading. One or two inactive issues appeared on the bond tape for the first time in some days and established fresh highs. Guaranteed issues were neglected, while terms of the $900,000,000 H. O. L. C. refunding were awaited. The two telephone debentures of 3¼ per cent return touched new highs, and good buying appeared in power and light bonds. Best rails and industrials were steady.

Medium-priced carrier bonds did well on general buying, which bore the earmarks of investment. Gains of a point or more were common in Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific and a few other lines. Borderline and default rail bonds also attracted some attention. Both rail and utility holding bonds did well, and convertibles followed their related equities upward. Local tractions, communications and other special groups were good.

Polish, Hungarian and Czech bonds advanced in the foreign section, while small gains were noted in German and Italian bonds. The Scandinavian group was quiet, and small advances appeared in Australian and Canadian issues. Japanese bonds continued to scrape along without much variation. Argentines were good in the Latin-American section, but default bonds were neglected.

Trans. & West. Air Organizes Under Frye Control

Kansas City, May 19 (AP).—Vincent P. Conroy, of Salt Lake City, today was elected vice president of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., in charge of its traffic-sales. He has been general traffic manager of T. W. A.

Five directors resigned from the company at a reorganization meeting here. They are John Hertz, sr., John Hertz, jr., Harold Talbot, John Ritchie and Marco Hellman, all of New York City. The resignations followed the recent sale of stock held by Lehman Brothers to a group headed by Jack Frye, T. W. A. president, and Paul Richter, executive vice president. The transfer gave the airline management control of the company.

Frye said that no new directors were elected but that an executive committee of five, with Frye as chairman was organized. Other members are Nelson S. Talbott, of Dayton, Ohio, and Richter. Two others will be named later.

T. W. A. has applied to make Cincinnati the twenty-fourth city on its coast-to-coast airline.

Distant Cotton Futures Higher, Nearby, Lower

New York, May 19 (AP).—The July cotton contract wavered in its recent aggressive stride toward the 9-cent level. Final prices were 5 points lower to 4 higher. Distant months were most in demand as buyers reversed their recent stand.

Some analysts advanced the theory that the sharp rise in July lately was a little premature. The advance, they said, might attract cotton from loan stocks, which would ease the spot supply situation and in turn depress future values.

Selling was in the form of long liquidation by mill accounts, considerable hedging and Bombay straddle reversing. New Orleans also sold. Liverpool was a good buyer and Bombay take March and May contracts. Speculative demand appeared still chilled by lack of Washington news concerning legislation affecting the staple.

Luxury Sales 30 Per Cent Over Last Year

Pianos, Luggage, Furs Furniture and Jewelry Figure in Advance

Minneapolis, May 19. — Pianos, phonographs and records have renewed the sensational comeback which they began in 1934 and 1935, with the American public "going in" for good music and higher priced records; sales are running 20 to 40 per cent ahead of last spring and are close to 1937 levels, according to a quarterly study of demand for luxury and semi-luxury goods by Northwestern National Life Insurance Co.

The public are also buying more luggage, furniture, furs and costume jewelry than this time last year, the company's figures for 236 department stores show. Also, men's clothing, which usually leads the trend of department store sales, made its best comparative showing in March, with sales 10 per cent over March of a year ago, the survey states.

Sporting Goods Lag

Sporting goods sales still lag behind the spring of 1938, but are gaining. Favorable golfing weather is having its effect, and the centennial of baseball's beginnings has resulted in gains exceeding 25 per cent in sales by leading manufacturers of baseball uniforms, bats and other supplies for the national game.

Dollar sales of phonographs and records for March climbed to within 2 per cent of March, 1937, and exceeded March, 1938, by 40 per cent. With the sales tempo speeding up in April, preliminary figures indicated that that month would exceed April, 1937, by a small margin. While the "swing" craze cuts a large figure in the revival, "Red Seal" and other classical records are actually gaining faster just now than the popular selections. Stores report that "swing" addicts gradually begin to pick up a few better records, usually starting with modern classics like Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," and increase their proportion of good music with each return visit.

Piano Shipments

Piano shipments of 25,548 instruments in the first quarter of this year far exceeded the 19,911 total for the first quarter of 1938, and almost equaled the 1937 figures of 25,649 pianos shipped in the first three months of that year. Retailers report a slight slowing of public demand in April, but May, with its "music week," is expected to show a rising volume. Due to the introduction of rapid style changes in pianos, dealers no longer carry heavy stocks, but buy very close to their current requirements, so that manufacturers' shipments closely follow the trend of actual retail sales, the study observes.

Though department store sales of luggage were down 1.4 per cent for the first quarter compared with a year ago, March was up 7.4 per cent over March of 1938. With a big travel year in prospect, under the stimulus of two world's fairs, stores expect fairly heavy sales in their luggage department from now on.

Home furniture and electrical household equipment sales showed modest gains for the first quarter, reflecting increased volume of home construction. Department store jewelry sales were sharply higher than a year ago, with an 8.6 per cent increase for the quarter, and 12.5 per cent for March, reflecting continued style demands for costume jewelry.

Gold Importations Turn Upward in Week

Gold imports jumped upward again in the second week of May. The Commerce Department reported yesterday that $160,319,093 came into the United States in the week ended May 12, after tapering off to $88,459,609 in the preceding week. The shipments, possibly reflecting European fears over the outcome of the Polish-German territorial dispute, included $118,758,539 from England.

Other shipments included $24,545,934 from Belgium; $8,307,963 from the Netherlands; $2,244,721 from Canada; $2,369,216 from India, and $2,113,931 from Columbia.

U. S. Expenditures Top 8 Billion With Six Weeks to Go

By the Associated Press.

Federal expenditures for the fiscal year passed $8,000,000,000 yesterday but still were more than $1,500,000,000 short of what President Roosevelt expected to spend in the 12 months which will end in six weeks.

The Treasury reported that in the year which began last July 1 it had spent $8,025,790,442 and had taken in $4,949,631,914, causing a deficit of $3,076,158,528 which pushed the Federal debt to a record high of $40,227,673,187.

Revenues, however, had a chance of exceeding the $5,520,070,000 predicted in the President's January budget message. Another quarterly installment of the income tax is due June 15 and excise and customs taxes are running slightly ahead of last year.

A fourth of the expenditures to date were for the WPA and the National Youth Administration which together used $2,000,210,437. The PWA, however, was lagging far behind budget estimates, having spent only $230,395,661 on its $1,000,000,000 project program. The PWA projects were all allotted last fall, but the Federal payments are not made until the projects are well under construction or completed.

In the comparable portion of the previous fiscal year, expenditures amounted to $6,553,974,212 and receipts $5,376,217,647.

Substantial Gain Predicted for Chemical Trade

New York, May 19.—A substantial improvement in the earnings of the chemical industry is in prospect for this year, according to Poor's Industry and Investment Surveys today. Net income for the 1939 first quarter recorded a sharp gain above that for the corresponding period of 1938.

"The present slump in general business conditions will cut into sales only moderately," states the forecast. "Earnings for the second quarter promise to register a sizable improvement above 1938 levels, even though the percentage gain may not be as large as that witnessed during the initial three months.

"Since the present interruption in the recovery movement is not expected to be prolonged, earnings in the final six months of the year should hold above the levels of last year. Full-year 1939 earnings of some leading companies in the industry promise to come close to their 1937 record profits.

"Profits in the chemical industry are very sensitive to fluctuations in volume of business. Since prospects point to the maintenance of general business activity at levels considerably above those of last year, increased chemical sales will be accompanied by marked profit gains."

Quaker Oats Votes $1.25 on Common

Chicago, May 19 (AP).—The Quaker Oats Co. directorate declared today a quarterly dividend of $1.25 per common share, payable June 24 to stockholders of record June 1. The payment will be the second of the year and bring the total to $2.50.

A quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the 6 per cent preferred was declared payable August 31 to stockholders of record August 1.

St. Louis, May 19 (AP).—An increase of 1.2 per cent in total sales reported last month by 13,435 stores in 40 cities, as compared with April, 1938, was announced today by the National Retail Credit Association.

The association reported collections increased generally on an average of .8 per cent during April over the corresponding month last year, while credit sales decreased 0.5 per cent.

Wheat Prices Yield After Brisk Rise

May Delivery Crosses 80 Cents and July Equals Season's High

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 19.—May wheat sold at 80¼ cents a bushel for the second time this season today and July contracts also equaled the year's high of 75¼, but after these net gains of about a cent had been registered the market weakened and lost about all of the advance.

Rapid price fluctuations in May wheat over a range of almost 2 cents was due to closing-out operations prior to the Monday dead line, when trading in this contract will end. The deferred contracts, representing the new crop, were strengthened by purchasing based on unfavorable crop reports.

Profit taking, encouraged by a forecast of continued unsettled weather with showers and cooler temperatures overmuch of the grain belt, held the advance in check and contributed to the late setback. Rains reported in Canada and the Dakotas also caused some selling, with Winnipeg prices dipping slightly below the previous close.

Chicago quotations closed unchanged to ½ higher, compared with yesterday, July 74⅜@74¼, September, 74@74⅛. Corn was ⅛ to ⅜ higher, July 51¼@51⅜, September 51¾; oats ¼ to ⅜ up; rye ⅜ to ⅝ higher; lard 7 to 10 lower.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, May 19 (P). (United States Department of Agriculture)—Graded territory wools were receiving calls for sizable quantities in the Boston market today. Combing ¼-blood territory wools had quite a strong demand at 54@56 cents, scoured basis. Some sales of ⅜-blood grade territory wools were at 58@60 cents, scoured basis. Low ¼-blood territory wools were moved at 52@54 cents, scoured basis. Demand from users was reported to have let up somewhat on the finer grades of territory wools in original bags.

Rukeyser Says: Sam Reyburn Lifts Status Of Retailing

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,

International News Service Economic Commentator.

New York, May 19.—Back in July, 1914, after the reorganization of the Claflin interests, the bankers brought a Little Rock, Ark., banker named Samuel W. Reyburn up to New York to do a temporary job for the department stores operated by the Associated Dry Goods Corporation.

Twenty-five years later, Mr. Reyburn is still on the job, and meantime he has lifted the standards of retailing throughout the United States. He has been a pioneer in raising retail training to a professional status at New York University.

Sam Reyburn finds folk up in New York pretty much the same as in Arkansas, once you make allowance for environmental differences. It has been his life rule to be honest with himself, and, in judging other people, he thinks it a useful guide to assume that they are very much like himself.

He made the shift from banking to merchandising readily. "Business is all pretty much the same," he said. "In the bank, we were buying and selling intangible promises. In department stores, we are in the business of buying and selling goods and services."

Sought Scientific Basis

Coming to retailing from the outside, Mr. Reyburn questioned tradition and sought to find a scientific basis for policies. His influence has run far beyond his own organization.

In his transition from banking to retailing, Mr. Reyburn exemplified the wisdom of H. G. Wells' observation that progress is made nowadays when specialists impinge on the field of another specialty.

Mr. Reyburn has been active in the solution of problems of social security, and represented business on the nonpartisan Social Security Commission, of which this writer acted as chairman. The wise counsel of Mr. Reyburn and his colleagues on the commission enabled that body two years ago to outline the revisions in the social security act which the House Ways and Means Committee recently recommended.

E. A. Cudahy, jr., president of the Cudahy Packing Co., in a message to employes, spoke for many nonwar mongering businessmen besides himself when he made a plea for keeping out of foreign entanglements.

"In short," the executive counseled, "let us mind our own business. And, as we know, there is plenty of it to mind. It is our business now to set our house in order and let others wreck theirs if they so decide without our help or sympathy.

Duty to Find Jobs

"It is our business to stop unnecessary, wasteful and reckless spending by the Federal and local governments. It is our business to find jobs for 12,000,000 unemployed Americans who, under present conditions, have no jobs.

"It is our business to amend our tax laws so that industry will have a fair try at the problem of finding these jobs. It is our business, among other things, to change our labor laws so that they will assure fair play to all concerned, and thus reduce to a minimum disputes, strikes and industrial warfare which have hampered industry and have proved disastrous to the interests of the employer, the employe and the public."

Giving the specifications for revision of the Wagner act, Mr. Cudahy added: "Assure equal responsibility for both employer and employe organizations; give equality before the law to all; separate the functions of prosecution, fact-finding and adjudication; give the courts the right to review the findings of fact; prohibit the compulsory closed shop and check-off."

There is growing resistance, especially in business quarters, against any attempt to divert American attention from American problems by focusing on European affairs.

Contract Bridge

By R. F. Foster.

Harrison Gray and S. J. Simon, members of the team to represent England in the international team-of-four championship, were high scorers on today's hand, which was taken from one of the recent English trials. Mr. Gray and Mr. Simon reached a contract of five clubs, which was made when Mr. Gray executed an end play on his adversary in the East position.

West opened his singleton heart, and East's king fell to South's ace. Three rounds of trumps were played, West winning the third and shooting back a spade as he had noted his partner's high spade discard. On the third club, East threw a heart.

Mr. Gray won the spade lead with the ace in dummy and played a low diamond, finessing the ten, which held. He then took two more rounds of trumps, exhausting West, on which East discarded another heart and the king of spades. Declarer then cashed his heart queen and threw East in with a low heart lead. East had no exit and was forced to play from his queen, nine, four diamonds into the ace, king, jack to give Mr. Gray the last three tricks.

South made five clubs, losing a club and a heart.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

IT'S GOING to be Minnesota night next Thursday at the Playhouse performance sponsored by Federal Employes' Union No. 2 in the Agricultural Auditorium. The fun begins with a film—"Father of the Cradle of Waters"—showing beauties of Minnesota which should do plenty to promote homesickness among residents of the Gopher State in Washington. There'll also be another film, "Three Women," a General Electric technicolor show. Admission is free.

The Federal Transportation Association's tour to the New York World's Fair, which left at 4:50 p. m. yesterday, should be a huge success. In addition to taking in the Fair wonders, those on the trip will be guests tonight at the Vox Pop radio program. We'll be listenin'.

The FCA Employes' Credit Union paused this week to take stock of its activities on the fifth anniversary of its founding and discovered the FCA workers had borrowed close to $500,000 during the five years, says J. A. [illegible], president.

Jordan reported also that membership in the group has increased from the original 12 to 960 and they have saved $91,917 and accumulated a reserve for losses on loans amounting to $2,885. Nice going!

There's another "rain or shine" hike for Government employes scheduled tomorrow. This time it's at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and the hikers can decide whether they want to cover 3 or 11 miles during the trek. The short hike is confined to the Harper's Ferry area, while the other will take in everything from the top of Chimney Rock to Keyes Gap.

The train leaves Union Station at 8:35 a. m. and arrives in Harper's Ferry at 10 a. m. The party will return at 10:20 p. m. The round trip railroad fare is $1.50, but those who prefer to travel by auto can meet the group at the Harper's Ferry railroad station.

Tonight's a big night for the Owls Club of Patent. It's their third annual spring dance from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. at the Cameron Club. There'll be refreshments, as usual, and the tariff is $1 per person.

And speaking of the Patent Office, the Camera Club holds a print competition Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Science Library. B. F. Ralston, FHA architect, will judge. The competition is confirmed to prints showing some phase of architectural design.

The Agriculture Players, to our mind one of the best "little theater" groups in the Government whirl, are considering a summer venture now that their winter season is over. The decision will come early next week. More power to this ambitious gang!

Bob Burns Says—

When you look back on all the progress we've made in our ways of living in the past 20 years, it's simply amazin'. Even the old-fashioned gourd dipper that used to hang by the well is now wrapped in cellophane.

But with all these new gadgets that have come into daily use, it's been kinda necessary to fix 'em to keep some folks from killin' themselves on 'em.

Not long ago Grandpa Snazzy came in the barn and he was just as mad as a wet hen. Uncle Hod said, "What's the matter, Snaz? What're you so riled up about?"

Grandpa said, "Listen, I don't mind usin' these new-fangled contraptions, but I just nicked my chin with my new safety razor, burnt myself on a safety match . . . and then almost got run over while readin' a safety-first sign!"

'Information Please' Tonight at Center

First prize will be a week's free vacation at camp, according to Miss Sadie Grossman, general chairman of the affair. Proceeds will go to philanthropic endeavors.

Secrets in Love

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

After the Embassy reception, with all its perturbing events, including her tryst with Anthony, Peg found time hanging heavily on her hands, for Hewitt was out of the city on business. Her mind was not clear as to her feeling toward Anthony. She had spent an evening with Maizie and later had confessed to Otto Nelson, her godfather, that she loved Hewitt. Nelson promised her he would make Hewitt a partner. Then, as Peg started out to lunch she saw dark forms on the stairway. Hewitt had Thalia Polk in his arms and was kissing her.

CHAPTER XIII

PEG knew what she was going to do. When she went out for lunch in a moment or two she would take all those little personal things that a girl in an office accumulates.

She would go home and tell Aunt Mehalie that she didn't want to work for Mr. Nelson any more. Aunt Mehalie would ask questions: She would think all sorts of dreadful things about Mr. Nelson, no matter how vehemently they were denied. She had been very reluctant to let Peg work, even for her godfather, and she would probably cry out this afternoon, righteously indignant: "Peg, what happened? What did that old coot do?"

She was right, Aunt Mehalie did precisely that. She made Peg lie down and brought her tea and sat beside the high teaster bed, rubbing her temples gently. Aunt Mehalie was saying: "Peg, you look ill. You're as white as a sheet. Why, that old scoundrel. And at his age, too!"

Peg very patiently tried to make Aunt Mehalie understand that Mr. Nelson wasn't a scoundrel, that he hadn't done anything untoward, that she was just bored with the office, the work, the pay—everything.

Aunt Mehalie refused to believe her. "Now there's no earthly use in your trying to defend Otto Nelson, Peg. Whatever else would have made you leave like this, all in a minute, without a second's notice." But at last she was placated, almost convinced. Enough to telephone Mr. Nelson and tell him just what Peg had instructed—that Peg was too tired to go on working in an office.

Suffering

The house was quiet after that. Peg lay on the bed all afternoon, asleep apparently. But her eyelids were shut only as the blinds of the room were shut, to keep out the light and make a quiet, dark world where she could think. Under her thin silk negligee her body lay cold and immobile as marble. Not crying. Too numb, too mortally wounded to cry.

She couldn't understand this numbness. She supposed that after a while it would leave her. That the whole overwhelming potency of her loss would come over her and she would go completely to pieces. But now she was only numb with a dry expressionless ache bottled up tightly within her.

She wondered, too, how Hewitt would tell her. There was something to tell, of course. You couldn't see Thalia in his arms like that without realizing it. He would probably say, loathing to hurt her: "Peg, I wouldn't have had things happen like this for anything in the world. I'm not a cad. . ." And she would probably say, very calmly: "I hope you'll be very happy, Hewitt." Just like a million other girls who have listened to such words of the other woman and, like them, feeling that her wretchedness was all new.

Anthony Covington, having called Peg's office and learning that she had resigned, called Aunt Mehalie's. But Aunt Mehalie said that Peg was asleep and she'd rather not disturb her. Yes, she had really resigned. Then Aunt Mehalie told him something which had been worrying her all morning. Duncan had brought his bag in last night to stay the week-end with them, but he hadn't come back from some date he'd had. Nor had he reported at the Munitions Building for work.

"That isn't like Duncan," Aunt Mehalie said, "and I'm worried." She was almost ill with the belief that something dreadful had happened to Duncan. She had wanted to speak to Peg about it, but Peg had come home from the office, all pale and nervous, and she hadn't wanted to pile anything else on her. She said, finally: "Have you any idea where he might be, Anthony?"

"Not the slightest, Aunt Mehalie," he said. He assured her he would look into it. He'd run out to the bungalow and see if Duncan had spent the night there. Then he said: "I'll get in touch with you later. In the meantime, don't worry. I'm sure Duncan's O. K."

Aunt Mehalie

Aunt Mehalie went into the kitchen after that and began doing things with brown sugar and nuts and flour. Peg loved brownies, she was remembering, and maybe they'd help a little to make her more cheerful tonight. Somehow she always felt helpless and futile with these, her sister's children. She never knew quite what to say or what to do about their problems. And she was fearfully afraid to interfere lest she do something to drive them from her, for she hadn't know how lonely she was until Peg had moved in, bringing the sunshine of her youth with her. "If I'd had some children of my own," she thought.

And promptly cut the thought off with the bright sharp scissors of determination. She never let herself think back on those days of the Spanish-American War, of the tall young naval officer whose ship had been the Maine. Once a year now, usually on Memorial Day, she went over to Arlington and stood for a long while before the mast of the U. S. S. Maine with its conning tower still in place, with its white marble base bearing 229 names . . . one beloved lost name. She would permit herself thoughts on that day, poignant memories. Afterward she would come back to Georgetown and go to bed and lie awake the whole night through.

But Peg didn't eat the brownies that night. She didn't eat anything. When she saw Aunt Mehalie's bright blue gaze on her full plate Peg tried to steer her attention into a channel that was always of vital interest to her. "Tomorrow morning I'll make some of those ice-box cookies with walnuts, for your Dames meeting, Aunt Mehalie," she said. "They're awfully good. Dad used to be crazy about them." And speaking of her father like that her heart cried out at her as it had a thousand times that afternoon, "Dad, what am I going to do? Dad, if you were only here to tell me!"

Aunt Mehalie's voice cut through her thoughts: "Peg—what's the matter!"

Peg took her hands down quickly. She said, brokenly: "Nothing. Not a thing in the world. Everything is just simply swell!" And she got up from the table, ran blindly out into the hall, gathered up her hat and coat and rushed out into the night.

Always the next two hours would be a blank in Peg's mind. She remembered vaguely typing at school, she remembered the scowl on the teacher's face in stenography.

She remembered climbing in a bus and riding a block too far and walking back with the first soft snow of the year falling like feathers around her. And she remembered how surprised she was when she came in and stood there in the hall, blinking at Aunt Mehalie and Count Paul Stranyan sitting before the open fire.

Count Shows Up

Count Stranyan got up instantly and came across the room to her. He took her cold fingertips in his and kissed them gallantly. He said: "But you forgot! You forgot this was Friday. My night. I've been waiting two hours. But that doesn't matter now." He turned and smiled at Aunt Mehalie. "I've had such a delightful wait, such charming company. I've quite lost my heart."

Peg said in a small confused voice: "I—I did forget. I'm—sorry And then. "You two know each other, of course. But more formally, Aunt Mehalie, this is Count Paul Stranyan." She turned toward the hall. "I can be ready in a few moments. We're supposed to eat snails some place, aren't we?"

He laughed at that. "Snails at 7 o'clock would be fine, but at 10—hardly. With your permission let me take you to a very interesting place I know." He told her where it was. Peg had heard about it, what a gay night spot it was.

"That'll be mad, mad fun," she said in a voice that completely contradicted her words.

Aunt Mehalie followed her upstairs. "Hewitt Gill telephoned," she said. Peg leaned back against the edge of her vanity for support, her eyes suddenly very blue and bright.

"But he didn't leave any message. Said he was sorry you weren't well. Said he'd call later if he got the chance. I didn't tell him you had gone to school. I said you were in bed. After all, Mr. Nelson thinks you are sick, you know."

Then Aunt Mehalie said: "Why don't you wear that blue dress? It's the most becoming thing you have. Especially when you wear the blue hat. Peg, Count Stranyan is perfectly delightful. He's had such a glamorous life. So much excitement. I was just thinking that if you and he . . . my, my, nothing like that has ever happened to any one in our family . . . why, it's just plain exciting to think about it."

Peg said, smiling a little: "You're an incurable romanticist, Aunt Mehalie. I think you said something quite similar about Anthony Covington. I think you very carefully pointed out that Anthony had had a glamorous life and so much excitement, what with being in the thick of things in China, not to mention Spain . . ."

Another Call

Aunt Mehalie looked sheepish for a moment. And then she became suddenly very serious. "I still think so," she said, evenly. "They're both grand men. They've got background and breeding, something which your Mr. Gill doesn't know the first thing about. I didn't have to talk to him but two seconds to know that everything about him was spurious. For that one reason alone, I'm glad you've left Mr. Nelson's office. No good would have come of you seeing too much of Hewitt Gill. And don't think I haven't noticed which way the wind was beginning to blow. Because I have. Why is it that when a girl can have a choice of a dozen men she always picks out the very worst one in the lot?"

"Why, Aunt Mehalie . . .!"

But the little old spinster had said her say and was gone, closing the door behind her and pausing there in the hall blank with amazement at herself. "Why, I never . . .!" she thought, frightened and a little weak, and went on down the stairs feeling the weight of her 72 years. She didn't even hear the telephone ringing.

But the rustle of its bells echoed in Peg's heart. That would be Hewitt, she thought, with a weak, all-gone feeling in her stomach. What would she say? But it wasn't Hewitt. It was Anthony. Anthony said in a voice that was tight and strained: "Peg, I'm coming straight over there. I've got to see you and Aunt Mehalie right away."

Woman, 70, Has Horse in Derby, $150,000 Hope

Irish Sweepstakes Fortune Would End Years of 'Hard Going'

A soft-spoken, mild-mannered 70-year-old colored woman guarded a crumpled bit of paper last night, hopeful that it will bring her an Irish Sweepstakes fortune because "I've had hard going all my life."

Mrs. Mary A. Swann, who keeps a tidy little apartment at 1903 Fifteenth street northwest, was the only Washington resident to draw a runner in the Epsom Derby, which will be held next Wednesday. She is certain of collecting $1,985, even if her horse, Larchfield is scratched, and will win approximately $150,000 if the entry wins. Second place means $75,000 and third $50,000.

Mrs. Edith B. Coursey, of University Park, Md., an employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, also drew a horse, Roderick Dhu. Both Larchfield and Roderick Dhu are "long shots."

Four Others Get $1,985 Each

Four other Washingtonians and a dozen men and women living in this vicinity drew horses which were entered in the Derby but which have been scratched since, which means they will receive $1,985 each.

Hardly had she received her cablegram of notification from Dublin than Mrs. Swann got a telegram from a New York ticket broker offering to buy her ticket.

"But I'm going to hold on to it," said the unperturbed housekeeper. "I really don't know whether it's real, I'm so surprised."

The sweepstake ticket was the second she had ever bought, she said. Still skeptical, in spite of official notification and the offer to buy, Mrs. Swann said she won't decide what to do with the money until she sees it. She used the pseudonym "Alone" when she bought the ticket from a friend.

401 Tickets in U. S.

"Just My Luck" stood for Mrs. Coursey, whose ticket was bought for her by her father, Thomas H. Collier. She said her 11-month-old baby, will be the beneficiary.

The Washingtonians who drew nonrunners were Sol Taishoff, National Press Building, Bandinellli; Bruce B. Hutsler, 658 E street southeast, Military; "Hope," 1825 Vernon street northwest, Heptarch, and "Bill, Jack and Joe," 1414 Fifth street northwest, War Star.

Drawn from the big gold drum in Dublin yesterday were 401 tickets held in the United States. Of them, 19 were among the 45 tickets drawn on the five betting favorites. These favorites are Blue Peter, Hypnotist, Admirals Walk, Heliopolis and Pairstone.

Total receipts in the sweepstakes was announced as $7,813,807, of which $4,474,548 will be distributed in prizes.

Reciprocity Club Hears Keech on Utility Regulation

Kline, reception; Fairfax Oyster, sick; E. O. Paland, welfare; G. R. Leake, attendance, and A. F. Miles, golf. H. Stanley Stine was named head of the delegation to the national convention at Philadelphia next month.

Color-Blind Can Drive, Doctor Says

Position of Traffic Lights Guides Them, Detroit Survey Shows

By International News Service.

St. Louis, May 19.—Just because a person is color blind and can't distinguish green from red is not sufficient reason to refuse him a driver's license, contrary to popular opinion.

Chancing a challenge from the safety engineers, Dr. Lowell S. Selling, of Detroit, made this assertion today before the section on diseases of the eye at the final session of the American Medical Association.

The physician had figures to back him up, declaring he based his opinion on examination of 716 drivers in the traffic clinic of the recorder's court in Detroit. Of that number, one was totally color blind, 39 were red-green blind and 10 were partly red-green blind.

How did the color-blind distinguish between the red and green lights? Simple. Merely by the position of the lights when they flashed on, Dr. Selling said. They also were assisted by observing the movement of other cars.

Only 12 of the color blind had records of driving past red lights, according to the physician. A much larger number of the "normal" persons studied had tickets for this offense, he said.
